Unions Fined For Marin's Boycott

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A U.S. District Court judge fined three labor union locals $25,000 each yesterday for criminal contempt in connection with secondary boycotts against Independent-Journal advertisers.

Judge William T. Sweigert gave the locals — San Francisco Typographical Union 21 and Teamster locals 70 of Oakland and 85 of San Francisco — 15 days to pay the first $10,000 of the fines. He said the other $15,000 would be levied if there were further violations during a year's probationary period.

Three union officers were also placed on a year's probation for criminal contempt and were warned that if there are violations during the next 12 months, they could face up to six months in prison.

The judge also reserved the right to lengthen the probation period for both the unions and their officials if he wishes.

Union attorneys said they would appeal the fines.

The officials are Don Abrams, organizer for the typographical union local; James R. Muniz, president of Teamster Local 70, and Timothy J. Richardson, business manager and recording secretary of Teamster Local 85.

The unions and their officers were found guilty in December of criminal contempt after almost eight weeks of trial.

They were tried after complaints were lodged by the National Labor Relations Board that the unions had violated three of the court's injunctions prohibiting secondary boycott activities.

The complaints grew out of picketing at Marin stores in October and the threatening of delivery truck drivers going to the stores.

The NLRB cited 28 instances in which truck drivers in Marin were harrassed or threatened or where I-J advertisers were illegally picketed.

During the hit-run intimidation of drivers, tires on trucks and other vehicles were slashed, including tires on the cars of two U.S. marshals serving notices on Teamsters ordering them to cease their activities.

Getting Upper Hand Against The Slicks

By JEFF GREER

The campaign to clean the beaches reached a new crescendo today.

Many marin County and San Francisco residents added their weekend leisure time to the efforts of volunteers who had worked all week long to combat the oil pollution along the shoreline.

Coordinating centers were directing hundreds of volunteers to main cleanup areas and to some spots previously neglected, such as Muir Beach.

Although some reports circulated that the cleanup was "past the halfway mark," coordinators warned against any letup in the campaign against the oil.

"Once we have a storm, it's all over," said Jerry Kresy, chairman of the Marin Ecology Center in Mill Valley. He feared rough water would drive ashore any slicks still at sea.

Kresy and other coordinators urged volunteers to avoid driving to West Marin this weekend. Traffic has clogged roads and hampered delivery of supplies and equipment to Bolinas, Stinson Beach and other coastal areas, Kresy noted.

He suggested that anyone wanting to help should first telephone a coordinating center to learn what is needed. In addition to the Marin Ecology Center, information is available from the Save The Birds Switchboard operated by the Intercity Telephone Answering Service in San Rafael (456-4244 or 456-4253); the National Audubon Society on Richardson Bay or the Marin Humane Society in Novato.

Virgil Hollis, county superintendent of schools, recommended that volunteers call Ranger Pinsley Stetson at the Bear Valley ranger station at Point Reyes National Seashore, another coordinating point.

At Bolinas itself, the Marine Biology Station of the College of Marin is a central information point.

One major gathering point for volunteers today was the parking lot of the old Purity market at East Blithedale Avenue and Camino Alto in Mill Valley. A constant stream of vehicles was shuttling volunteers from there to coastal points where cleanup help was needed, Kresy said.

The overall picture of what has happened since two Standard Oil Co. tankers collided in dense fog early Monday — one spilling an estimated 800,000 gallons of heavy oil in the Golden Gate — still was far from clear today.

Emmett Griffin, public relations spokesman for Standard Oil, said he could

'Drastic Change' For Bay

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — "Drastic changes" to limit growth in the Bay Area must be made if its citizens ever are to enjoy clean air, a top smog official declared yesterday.

D. J. Callaghan, chief administrative officer of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, said these limits will have to be applied to industry, residential development and automobiles.

The nine-county area now has some three million vehicles, but if past growth in the number of vehicles continues, the total will reach almost nine million by the year 2000, Callaghan said.

His estimate brought an audible gasp from district directors.

Representatives of industry in the audience, however, shook their heads at his suggestion that the growth of industry would have to be limited.

Callaghan stressed that the region's atmosphere had definite limits on its capacity to absorb contaminants. "Once this quantity is reached for each contaminant, no further sources can be permitted in the area if we are to maintain air quality standards."

San Francisco Supervisor Dianne Feinstein, praising Callaghan for "getting down to the nitty-gritty decisions that have to be made," won agreement from other directors to consider making it official district policy to discourage growth throughout the region. Resolutions declaring the policy will be considered at a special board meeting sometime next month.

Callaghan explained that the district's regulations temporarily will reduce some contaminants, but that the levels will rebound as growth swamps the effectiveness of the regulations.

Specifically, he recommended consideration of the following actions as a "long-term solution:"

1. Limit the number and

Nixon Urges Radical Move

State, Local Branches Could Share The Power

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon has promised a "new American Revolution" based on increased power for state and local governments coupled with a $16 billion revenue sharing program — including $6 billion in new money — to help them exercise it.

In his second State of the Union speech Friday night, Nixon also proposed deficit spending to reduce unemployment, pleaded for welfare reform, outlined a massive reorganization of the federal bureaucracy and urged bold new health programs including a $100 million search for a cure for cancer.

Reaction of lawmakers assembled for the joint session of Congress generally followed partisan lines with Republicans enthusiastic and Democrats cool. Most of Nixon's programs face tough going in the Democratic-controlled Congress.

Nixon told Congress and a national radio and television audience that "the truly revered leaders in world history are those who gave power to the people, not those who took it away."

The big surprise in the 31-minute speech was the scope of Nixon's plan to share federal revenues with the financially hard-pressed states and cities. The program called for a total of $16 billion, including $10 billion that was already earmarked for established narrow-purpose programs.

Highlights of the speech, devoted almost entirely to domestic issues, included:

—A promise to submit to Congress soon a program to make America "the healthiest nation in the world." He said he would call for legislation to "insure that no American family will be prevented from obtaining basic medical care by inability to pay." The only specific program he mentioned was $100 million to fight cancer.

—A call for a new effort to save and restore the environment including expansion of the nation's parks, particularly in areas close by to crowded cities.

—A proposal to reorganize

Democrats Cool To 'State' Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon held out his hand to the Democratic-controlled Congress Friday night asking for a partnership to enact his bold new programs. Democrats appeared unwilling to shake it.

The night was drizzling and cold when Nixon stepped into the House chamber for his second State of the Union message. It wasn't much warmer inside, judging from the applause.

Nixon was interrupted 11 times, mostly by enthusiastic Republicans during the 31-minute address. Democrats were polite but generally sat on their hands.

The President's proposals for a major overhaul of the federal bureaucracy, a $16 billion plan to share federal wealth with the states and a vast reform of the welfare system drew favorable comment at least as far as the goals were concerned.

But the practical probability of any of the measures surviving the 92nd Congress, at least without major surgery, was considered dim.

As for a consolidation of the federal bureaucracy, even Republicans recalled the fierce opposition stirred up among business and labor groups to other, less ambitious plans to tamper with federal agencies with which they deal. Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Pa., said the plan had no better than an even chance. And Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., doubted it would be accomplished in one session.

The welfare reform idea already was in serious trouble with both liberals and conservatives.

But Democrats, recognizing they were being put on the spot before the next presidential election, refused to dismiss the ideas out of hand.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., called the proposals "excellent and hopeful" and said "we will meet the President more than halfway," but he said, "I want to see the specifics."

The man who holds the key to many of Nixon's programs — Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee —was not present for the speech and could not be found afterwards. Mills already has announced strong opposition to any revenue sharing plan.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said he did not see how Nixon could propose a $16 billion revenue sharing program while the war in Southeast Asia drained federal resources.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., said he was surprised Nixon did not submit a single new proposal to deal with crime.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said "There wasn't a line in the speech for the man who is out of work."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said he was enthusiastic about the plan to restructure the bureaucracy, but opposed revenue sharing. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said he liked revenue sharing bat thought the rest of the speech was "propaganda."

Republicans, in the minority in both houses, immediately began pressing the Democratic majority to act.

"It is now up to the Democratically controlled Congress to see whether they can live up to the modernism, boldness and daring of the President of the United States," Scott said.

Sen. Wallace Bennett, D-Utah, the ranking Republican on the Senate Finance Committee which will handle most of the new measures, said Nixon was trying "to remake our whole federal structure to fit the needs of the 70s and I applaud him for it. Now it's up to Congress."

AIRPORT DESTROYED — Buildings around the perimeter of Phnom Penh's airport lie in ruins today after Communist commandos attacked the airport and an adjacent army base in a pre-dawn raid yesterday, destroying 95 per cent of Cambodia's air force and causing heavy casualties. Today the commandos struck in downtown Pho Phnom Penh.

(UPI Telephoto)

Red Commandos Strike Downtown Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist commandos who laid waste to Phnom Penh Airport struck in the capital itself today and blew up a government immigration office. Police said 20 persons were wounded, seven seriously.

Despite the blast in downtown Phnom Penh, there was no sign of a general offensive on the city following a pre-dawn raid on the airport Friday which knocked out 95 per cent of Cambodia's air force and caused heavy casualties.

But military authorities announced new curfew regulations and block strategic points.

The city remained on full alert tonight. Fighting could be seen directly across the Mekong River from the old Royal Palace. Tracer bullets fired by helicopter gunships, presumably crewed by Americans, could be clearly seen as they zeroed in on Communist positions around the city.

The explosion this morning was the second in downtown Phnom Penh since the airport assault. A bomb ripped the residence of the South Vietnamese ambassador to Cambodia Friday night, slightly injuring the diplomat and seriously wounding one of his servants.

The blast today, at 10:30 a.m., caused heavy damage to the immigration office where all aliens in Phnom Penh, including Vietnamese and Chinese residents, must register once a year.

Cambodian intelligence sources predicted more terror explosions. Last week, sources said that such attacks as the one on the airport would be followed up with terror actions in the city "to create as much confusion as possible." The guard around all public buildings was strengthened Friday after the airport raid.

The situation eased somewhat today. The airport reopened for limited military traffic and two U.S. Cargo planes arrived from Saigon with a load of ammunition and weapons to replace losses in the attack Friday.

South Vietnamese spokesmen in Saigon said their troops had completed clearing Highway 4 from the capitol to the seaport of Kompong Som by linking up with the Cambodian army at Pich Nil Pass Friday afternoon. They said the South Vietnamese marine, ranger and armored units that participated in the operation soon would begin withdrawing from Cambodia.

Phnom Penh was calm, but Prime Minister Lon Nol went on natonal radio today to call on Cambodians to fight back if Communists strike the city again. Lt. Col. Am Rong, spokesman for the High Command, said they had intelligence reports that Friday's attack was coming but they could not prepare for it —they did not even have enough barbed wire to surround the airport.

Elsewhere in Cambodia, South Vietnamese rangers operating along Highway 1 near the important provincial capital of Svay Rieng ran into heavy action with Communist troops and reported killing 26 while losing only two men.

In South Vietnam, U.S. B52s struck again at the extreme northwestern corner of the country in an effort to knock out Communist supply lines and dumps. It was the 12th strike in that area this month.

The U.S. Army lost two helicopters to Communist ground fire in South Vietnam, bringing to 1,854 the number of choppers shot down there since 1961. Eight Americans were killed in the two helicopter crashes.

Four Freed Of Charges On My Lai

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (UPI)—The Army, in what a spokesman said was in the best interest of justice, has dropped charges against all enlisted men in the alleged My Lai massacre.

The action leaves charges or investigations pending against six officers. Three are accused of participating in the infantry sweep in which up to 310 Vietnamese men, women and children were reportedly gunned down. Three others are accused of trying to conceal what happened.

Originally, 12 officers and men were charged in connection with the infantry sweep on March 16, 1968 and 14 officers were charged with covering up what has been termed as one of the worse blots against the American military.

Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, 3rd Army commanding general, announced the dismissals Friday against the remaining four enlisted men still facing charges. They are Sgt. Esequiel Torres of Brownsville, Tex.; Spec. 4 Robert W. T'souvas of San Jose, Calif.; Pvt. Max D. Hutson of Attica, Ind., and Pvt. Gerald A. Smith of Chicago.

Poison Gas Shipment Arrives

JOHNSTON ISLAND (UPI)—The first part of 13,000 tons of lethal gases being transferred from Okinawa arrived Friday on the navy cargo ship James E. Robinson.

San Francisco Against Wider Span Approach

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The city's Planning Commission has endorsed the city planning director's objections to a state proposal for widening the southern approaches to the Golden Gate Bridge.

The State Highway Commission proposes widening the present six-lane stretch a mile south of the bridge toll plaza to eight lanes at a cost of $10 million.

Planning director Allan B. Jacobs objected Thursday to additional widening at certain places and a change in an off ramp. In each case, he said, there would be a "major impact on the open space environment of the Presidio."

Commissioners have authorized him to continue negotiations with the state.

The city and the Golden Gate Bridge District have balked at a state proposal that each pay a quarter of the widening costs.

Egypt Sees Peace Talks Failing

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said today Egypt has told the United States the Middle East peace talks are not making satisfactory progress and called for new guidelines to help U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring's search for accord.

Al Ahram said the Egyptian position was outlined in an exchange of messages between Secretary of State William L. Rogers and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad.

Rogers suggested an extension of the Middle East ceasefire beyond its Feb. 5 cutoff date to help Jarring pursue his mission and said the United Stated preferred "quiet diplomacy" and did not favor a U.N. Security Council debate on Jarring's progress, Al Ahram said.

The newspaper said Egypt's reply made the following points:

—Cairo failed to see any progress in the talks, particularly in view of the latest Israeli memorandum allegedly repeating Israel's refusal to withdraw from Arab territory.

—The United States should "shoulder its responsibilities" as author of the Rogers initiative and a permanent member of the Security Council and join with other major powers to give Jarring guidelines.

—Egypt affirmed its readiness to implement all provisions of the Nov. 22, 1967, Security Council resolution on the Middle East.

Libya, Syria and the Sudan Friday night issued a communique accusing Israel of using the cease-fire to maintain its occupation of Arab lands.

Rogers Plans Trip To Latin America

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The State Department says Secretary of State William P. Rogers may make an official trip to Latin America this year.

A spokesman said no definite plans had been made, but sources in the department said it was probable he would make the trip prior to the Interamerican Foreign Ministers Conference, scheduled for April 14 in San Jose, Costa Rica.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Launch Try Again

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The U.S. Space Agency will try again tonight to launch the biggest and most powerful communications satellite ever built.

The launching was postponed Friday night because strong winds 30,000 to 40,000 feet high would have subjected the $16 million Atlas-Centaur rocket to dangerous stresses on its climb toward space.

Project officials rescheduled the shot for 7:01 p.m. EST tonight. It will be followed in four days by the launch of a smaller military communications satellite and by the Jan. 31 blastoff of Apollo 14's three moon-bound astronauts.

The $13.5 million satellite that was grounded by weather is the first of eight 1 1-2-ton Intelsat 4's being built for the privately owned Comsat Corp., and its 76 international partners. It will be able to relay up to 9,000 transatlantic telephone calls compared to the 1,200 circuit capacity of the best now in service.

Ban On Priests

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—A federal judge ruled Friday that the Revs. Daniel and Philip Berrigan, Roman Catholic priests active in the antiwar movement, do not have the right to circulate sermons and writings outside of prison.

U.S. District Court Judge T. Emmet Clarie wrote in a 12-page brief first amendment rights of free speech do not extend to prison inmates.

The brothers, both serving terms at the Danbury Federal Prison for destroying draft records in Catonville, Md., in 1969, filed suit in December contending they had a "right to be heard." They said they were being denied their constitutional rights.

Truman Better

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Former President Harry S Truman, 86, in "good spirits and feeling better," faced further tests today as doctors tried to diagnose the cause of stomach pains which forced his quick trip to the hospital Thursday.

Officials at Research Hospital said Truman's condition "remains good."

Doctors indicated late Friday the former President would probably remain hospitalized through the middle of next week.

Grass Killed Sheep

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—A deadly weed that is spreading rapidly across grasslands of the Western United States has been blamed for the death of 1,400 sheep in Utah's isolated Antelope Valley.

Scientists told Utah Gov. Calvin Rampton Friday that separate laboratory studies of samples of tissue from the dead animals revealed the deadly factor to be halogeton, a toxic member of the goosefoot family of plants.

Atomic radiation from a December underground blast that sent a cloud of fallout dust across the nation from Nevada to Canada was ruled out as a cause of death, as was the possibility of deadly gas leaking from the Dugway Proving Ground, 150 miles to the northeast.

Ecuador Defiant

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI) — Minister of National Defense Jorge Acosta said Friday that if the United States cuts off military aid to Ecuador because of the "tuna war" the country can turn to othe nations for any aid it may need.

"We are ready to give back the equipment lent us, without trouble," Acosta told newsmen. "All we want is to defend our legitimate rights."

If aid is withdrawn, he said, the country can turn to "other nations" for help. He did not specify.

The United States has said it will cut off military aid and threatened to stop economic assistance if the fight over fishing rights continues.

Tate Trial Move

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—In its attempt to obtain the death penalty for Charles Manson and three young women defendants, the state has begun issuing subpoenas for 40 witnesses it will call in the penalty phase of the Tate murder trial.

The prosecution issued the first subpoena Friday as the jury in the seven-month trial completed a full week of deliberations in the case with still no sign when it will bring in verdicts. Deliberations were to continue today.

Tear Gas Rout

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—Law officers routed a large crowd of young persons from the University of Arizona campus with tear gas Friday in the second night of disturbances police have attributed in part to "street freaks."

At least 40 persons were arrested.

Two city policemen were injured when struck by thrown rocks. One was hospitalized. Dozens of minor injuries were reported.

Authorities said the disturbance erupted after a palm tree on the campus was set afire and a few moments later three fire bombs were thrown at a drug store across the street from the main entrance of the school.

Bank Manager Gabs While Robbers Flee

COVENTRY, England (UPI) —The manager of the Trustee Savings Bank was involved in a discussion with a customer Thursday when three bandits armed with shotguns burst in, herded four women tellers from behind the counter, grabbed $7,200 and fled.

The tellers turned toward the manager, who was still intent in the discussion. He was unaware the bank had been robbed.

Younger Appointment

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger was appointed chairman of the California Council on Criminal Justice Friday by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

AIRPORT DESTROYED — Buildings around the perimeter of Phnom Penh's airport lie in ruins today after Communist commandos attacked the airport and an adjacent army base in a pre-dawn raid yesterday, destroying 95 per cent of Cambodia's air force and causing heavy casualties. Today the commandos struck in downtown Pho Phnom Penh.

Red Commandos Strike Downtown Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist commandos who laid waste to Phnom Penh Airport struck in the capital itself today and blew up a government immigration office. Police said 20 persons were wounded, seven seriously.

Despite the blast in downtown Phnom Penh, there was no sign of a general offensive on the city following a pre-dawn raid on the airport Friday which knocked out 95 per cent of Cambodia's air force and caused heavy casualties.

But military authorities announced new curfew regulations and block strategic points.

The city remained on full alert tonight. Fighting could be seen directly across the Mekong River from the old Royal Palace. Tracer bullets fired by helicopter gunships, presumably crewed by Americans, could be clearly seen as they zeroed in on Communist positions around the city.

The explosion this morning was the second in downtown Phnom Penh since the airport assault. A bomb ripped the residence of the South Vietnamese ambassador to Cambodia Friday night, slightly injuring the diplomat and seriously wounding one of his servants.

The blast today, at 10:30 a.m., caused heavy damage to the immigration office where all aliens in Phnom Penh, including Vietnamese and Chinese residents, must register once a year.

Cambodian intelligence sources predicted more terror explosions. Last week, sources said that such attacks as the one on the airport would be followed up with terror actions in the city "to create as much confusion as possible." The guard around all public buildings was strengthened Friday after the airport raid.

The situation eased somewhat today. The airport reopened for limited military traffic and two U.S. Cargo planes arrived from Saigon with a load of ammunition and weapons to replace losses in the attack Friday.

South Vietnamese spokesmen in Saigon said their troops had completed clearing Highway 4 from the capitol to the seaport of Kompong Som by linking up with the Cambodian army at Pich Nil Pass Friday afternoon. They said the South Vietnamese marine, ranger and armored units that participated in the operation soon would begin withdrawing from Cambodia.

Phnom Penh was calm, but Prime Minister Lon Nol went on natonal radio today to call on Cambodians to fight back if Communists strike the city again. Lt. Col. Am Rong, spokesman for the High Command, said they had intelligence reports that Friday's attack was coming but they could not prepare for it —they did not even have enough barbed wire to surround the airport.

Elsewhere in Cambodia, South Vietnamese rangers operating along Highway 1 near the important provincial capital of Svay Rieng ran into heavy action with Communist troops and reported killing 26 while losing only two men.

In South Vietnam, U.S. B52s struck again at the extreme northwestern corner of the country in an effort to knock out Communist supply lines and dumps. It was the 12th strike in that area this month.

The U.S. Army lost two helicopters to Communist ground fire in South Vietnam, bringing to 1,854 the number of choppers shot down there since 1961. Eight Americans were killed in the two helicopter crashes.

San Francisco Against Wider Span Approach

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The city's Planning Commission has endorsed the city planning director's objections to a state proposal for widening the southern approaches to the Golden Gate Bridge.

The State Highway Commission proposes widening the present six-lane stretch a mile south of the bridge toll plaza to eight lanes at a cost of $10 million.

Planning director Allan B. Jacobs objected Thursday to additional widening at certain places and a change in an off ramp. In each case, he said, there would be a "major impact on the open space environment of the Presidio."

Commissioners have authorized him to continue negotiations with the state.

The city and the Golden Gate Bridge District have balked at a state proposal that each pay a quarter of the widening costs.

Four Freed Of Charges On My Lai

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (UPI)—The Army, in what a spokesman said was in the best interest of justice, has dropped charges against all enlisted men in the alleged My Lai massacre.

The action leaves charges or investigations pending against six officers. Three are accused of participating in the infantry sweep in which up to 310 Vietnamese men, women and children were reportedly gunned down. Three others are accused of trying to conceal what happened.

Originally, 12 officers and men were charged in connection with the infantry sweep on March 16, 1968 and 14 officers were charged with covering up what has been termed as one of the worse blots against the American military.

Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, 3rd Army commanding general, announced the dismissals Friday against the remaining four enlisted men still facing charges. They are Sgt. Esequiel Torres of Brownsville, Tex.; Spec. 4 Robert W. T'souvas of San Jose, Calif.; Pvt. Max D. Hutson of Attica, Ind., and Pvt. Gerald A. Smith of Chicago.

Gag Rule Hit By Younger

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A domino-effect could result in the courts if the gag rule to block pre-trial public statements is enforced, says Attorney General Evelle Younger.

Speaking in opposition to the rule before the San Francisco Press Club Friday night, Younger said, "Recent history reveals that, when one court imposes a gag rule on a particular case, other courts follow suit."

He added that if a prosecutor "makes public statements calculated to prejudice a defendant's right to a fair trial, there are remedies." These, he said, include the appellate process for the defendants and the ballot box for the public.

"But a prior restraint based on no firmer a foundation than the trial court's intuitive notion that prejudicial publicity will be forthcoming is not the proper solution," Younger said.

"Any public official who is sensitive to his duty to the public must keep them informed," he added.

Younger also outlined proposals he planned to place before the legislature in an effort to increase the effectiveness of the state's criminal laws.

The most notable included a system in which prospective jurors in criminal cases be examined by a judge or commissioner; prohibiting defendants in felony cases from defending themselves and give the State Bar Association responsibility for certifying attorneys competent to represent clients in capital cases.

"Law enforcement involves a successful sequence of investigation, adjudication and punishment" and "a breakdown at any stage destroys the effectiveness of this system," he said.

"The plain truth is that the system is no longer effective and steps must be taken to make corrections so that it will be just as safe for citizens to walk the streets at night as it is for astronauts to walk on the moon."

State Demos Accused Of 'Piracy'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California Democratic leaders opened their biennial convention today bent on adopting election reforms and choosing new officers to guide the party during the 1972 presidential campaign.

Even as the state Democratic Central Committee prepared for a long weekend meeting, Putnam Livermore, a top Republican state officer, attacked proposed Democratic election revisions as "political piracy."

Democrats denied the charge and, in turn, criticized Livermore, GOP state vice chairman, for spreading "misinformation" about recommendations of their "California Commission on Democratic Party Reform."

About 940 delegates are eligible to cast votes Sunday on the election of new officers who will head the California party during the 1972 presidential election year.

Former Rep. George Brown of Monterey Park, an outspoken dove on the Indochina war and unsuccessful contender for the U.S. Senate, was regarded as the leading candidate to succeed Roger Boas of San Francisco as party chairman.

Also seeking the post were Leon Cooper, the party's current Southern California chairman, and Charles Manatt, Newport Beach attorney, and director of Sen. John V. Tunney's southern California campaign.

The commission's 53-page report proposed dozens of revisions in the election process both at the state and national level. Most required legislative action.

One controversial recommendation proposed for California an Oregon-style presidential primary open to all comers while another would abolish residency requirements for voting. A third would give major candidates free broadcast time.

Sen. George Moscone of San Francisco, commission cochairman, conceded that some of the recommendations might not win the convention's endorsement but said they would be introduced in the legislature anyway.

He said such legislation "has a better chance for passage if it has the stamp of approval of the Democratic State Central Committee" but added if the committee turned some proposals down "there still may be legislation proposed because we think it's the right way to go."

Regents Knock Down Proposal For University Money Probe

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A motion for a sweeping investigation of how the University of California handles its financial affairs has been decisively defeated by the university's Board of Regents.

The motion was presented Friday by Regent Norton Simon, a long-time and persistent critic of university financing.

He claims the university spends money unwisely, mishandles its huge investments and is affected by personal investments of some regents.

"I'm completely unclear about what the motion is," said University President Charles J. Hitch. The motion was rejected 13-2 with four abstentions.

Simon's motion called for appointment by the regents of "a special committee to study the matters under study by the auditor-general's report and also the regents' investment activities."

Simon said the regents' committee was needed because the state auditor-general was conducting an investigation and had concluded in a preliminary report there might be a conflict of interest on the part of some of the regents.

Simon's motion called for an investigation into the personal investments of some regents, although Simon did not name them in the motion.

He has been extremely critical in the past of Regents William French Smith and Edward W. Carter because of their involvement in development of land around the Irvine campus. He accused them of conflict of interest.

In fact, five regents at one time or another abstained from some of Friday's actions because of conflicts of interest. Carter abstained twice, once as a director of Southern California Edison and once as a director of AT&T.

Regent William K. Coblentz said Simon should put the matter over until his motion was in clear form. Simon refused and declared: "I have put the matter of investments over entirely too long."

In other action, the regents gave final approval to guidelines making campus chancellors personally responsible for enforcing some restrictions on the content of student newspapers.

PUC Approves West Marin Deal

The California Public Utilities Commission has approved transfer of two West Marin water systems to the North Marin County Water District, according to Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

However, the water district will not assume operation of the Point Reyes Station and Inverness Park water systems until a formal order is drawn up, Churchill said. He said the order should be ready within a month.

GOP Group In Comeback From Debts

ANAHEIM (UPI)—The California Republican Assembly, largest GOP volunteer group in the state, has paid most of its unpaid debts which were left after the disappearance of $23,600 from its treasury last year, it was reported Friday.

CRA official David Gater of Anaheim claimed the CRA has paid about $8,000 of its $12,5000 back bills and said the group was "in better shape now than in a long time."

The quarterly board meeting of the CRA begins today. The group was entirely without funds after the loss was discovered and most of the money has been raised by the efforts of the 11,000 members.

Paul Casattas, 44, Sunnyvale, former treasurer of the conservative group, pleaded innocent in Sunnyvale Municipal Court Jan. 12 to charges of taking more than $10,000 in CRA funds. His preliminary hearing is set for next Tuesday.

Nine Candidates File For School Board

Nine candidacy filings for the April 20 Marin School board elections were reported yesterday by the Marin County Schools Office.

The filings include those of five incumbents — three for the Marin County Board of Education. About two-thirds of the 47 incumbents in the 21 school districts have indicated they will seek reelection.

Candidates who have already filed are:

Dixie School District — Duncan Davidson of 25 Mount Tenaya Drive, San Rafael, an attorney. Two seats up for election.

Larkspur School District — Shirley A. Walker of 476 Montecito Drive, Corte Madera, a housewife, and Curtis P. Kamai of 61 Pixley Avenue, Corte Madera, an engineer and incumbent. Two seats up for election.

Lincoln School District — David Leveroni III of 3100 Novato Boulevard, Novato, a dairy rancher and incumbent. One seat up for election.

Novato Unified School District — Liz Mertel of 20 Baywood Circle and Jan Murray of 93 Estrella Way, Novato, both homemakers.

Marin County Board of Education — James A. Carroll of 33 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Ross, a junior high school teacher; Lee C. Richardson Jr., of Inverness, garage operator, and James A. Swenson of 424 Alameda De La Loma, Novato, paint salesman. All are incumbents. Four seats up for election.

Gag Rule Hit By Younger

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A domino-effect could result in the courts if the gag rule to block pre-trial public statements is enforced, says Attorney General Evelle Younger.

Speaking in opposition to the rule before the San Francisco Press Club Friday night, Younger said, "Recent history reveals that, when one court imposes a gag rule on a particular case, other courts follow suit."

He added that if a prosecutor "makes public statements calculated to prejudice a defendant's right to a fair trial, there are remedies." These, he said, include the appellate process for the defendants and the ballot box for the public.

"But a prior restraint based on no firmer a foundation than the trial court's intuitive notion that prejudicial publicity will be forthcoming is not the proper solution," Younger said.

"Any public official who is sensitive to his duty to the public must keep them informed," he added.

Younger also outlined proposals he planned to place before the legislature in an effort to increase the effectiveness of the state's criminal laws.

The most notable included a system in which prospective jurors in criminal cases be examined by a judge or commissioner; prohibiting defendants in felony cases from defending themselves and give the State Bar Association responsibility for certifying attorneys competent to represent clients in capital cases.

"Law enforcement involves a successful sequence of investigation, adjudication and punishment" and "a breakdown at any stage destroys the effectiveness of this system," he said.

"The plain truth is that the system is no longer effective and steps must be taken to make corrections so that it will be just as safe for citizens to walk the streets at night as it is for astronauts to walk on the moon."

State Demos Accused Of 'Piracy'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California Democratic leaders opened their biennial convention today bent on adopting election reforms and choosing new officers to guide the party during the 1972 presidential campaign.

Even as the state Democratic Central Committee prepared for a long weekend meeting, Putnam Livermore, a top Republican state officer, attacked proposed Democratic election revisions as "political piracy."

Democrats denied the charge and, in turn, criticized Livermore, GOP state vice chairman, for spreading "misinformation" about recommendations of their "California Commission on Democratic Party Reform."

About 940 delegates are eligible to cast votes Sunday on the election of new officers who will head the California party during the 1972 presidential election year.

Former Rep. George Brown of Monterey Park, an outspoken dove on the Indochina war and unsuccessful contender for the U.S. Senate, was regarded as the leading candidate to succeed Roger Boas of San Francisco as party chairman.

Also seeking the post were Leon Cooper, the party's current Southern California chairman, and Charles Manatt, Newport Beach attorney, and director of Sen. John V. Tunney's southern California campaign.

The commission's 53-page report proposed dozens of revisions in the election process both at the state and national level. Most required legislative action.

One controversial recommendation proposed for California an Oregon-style presidential primary open to all comers while another would abolish residency requirements for voting. A third would give major candidates free broadcast time.

Sen. George Moscone of San Francisco, commission cochairman, conceded that some of the recommendations might not win the convention's endorsement but said they would be introduced in the legislature anyway.

He said such legislation "has a better chance for passage if it has the stamp of approval of the Democratic State Central Committee" but added if the committee turned some proposals down "there still may be legislation proposed because we think it's the right way to go."

Regents Knock Down Proposal For University Money Probe

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A motion for a sweeping investigation of how the University of California handles its financial affairs has been decisively defeated by the university's Board of Regents.

The motion was presented Friday by Regent Norton Simon, a long-time and persistent critic of university financing.

He claims the university spends money unwisely, mishandles its huge investments and is affected by personal investments of some regents.

"I'm completely unclear about what the motion is," said University President Charles J. Hitch. The motion was rejected 13-2 with four abstentions.

Simon's motion called for appointment by the regents of "a special committee to study the matters under study by the auditor-general's report and also the regents' investment activities."

Simon said the regents' committee was needed because the state auditor-general was conducting an investigation and had concluded in a preliminary report there might be a conflict of interest on the part of some of the regents.

Simon's motion called for an investigation into the personal investments of some regents, although Simon did not name them in the motion.

He has been extremely critical in the past of Regents William French Smith and Edward W. Carter because of their involvement in development of land around the Irvine campus. He accused them of conflict of interest.

In fact, five regents at one time or another abstained from some of Friday's actions because of conflicts of interest. Carter abstained twice, once as a director of Southern California Edison and once as a director of AT&T.

Regent William K. Coblentz said Simon should put the matter over until his motion was in clear form. Simon refused and declared: "I have put the matter of investments over entirely too long."

In other action, the regents gave final approval to guidelines making campus chancellors personally responsible for enforcing some restrictions on the content of student newspapers.

PUC Approves West Marin Deal

The California Public Utilities Commission has approved transfer of two West Marin water systems to the North Marin County Water District, according to Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

However, the water district will not assume operation of the Point Reyes Station and Inverness Park water systems until a formal order is drawn up, Churchill said. He said the order should be ready within a month.

GOP Group In Comeback From Debts

ANAHEIM (UPI)—The California Republican Assembly, largest GOP volunteer group in the state, has paid most of its unpaid debts which were left after the disappearance of $23,600 from its treasury last year, it was reported Friday.

CRA official David Gater of Anaheim claimed the CRA has paid about $8,000 of its $12,5000 back bills and said the group was "in better shape now than in a long time."

The quarterly board meeting of the CRA begins today. The group was entirely without funds after the loss was discovered and most of the money has been raised by the efforts of the 11,000 members.

Paul Casattas, 44, Sunnyvale, former treasurer of the conservative group, pleaded innocent in Sunnyvale Municipal Court Jan. 12 to charges of taking more than $10,000 in CRA funds. His preliminary hearing is set for next Tuesday.

Nine Candidates File For School Board

Nine candidacy filings for the April 20 Marin School board elections were reported yesterday by the Marin County Schools Office.

The filings include those of five incumbents — three for the Marin County Board of Education. About two-thirds of the 47 incumbents in the 21 school districts have indicated they will seek reelection.

Candidates who have already filed are:

Dixie School District — Duncan Davidson of 25 Mount Tenaya Drive, San Rafael, an attorney. Two seats up for election.

Larkspur School District — Shirley A. Walker of 476 Montecito Drive, Corte Madera, a housewife, and Curtis P. Kamai of 61 Pixley Avenue, Corte Madera, an engineer and incumbent. Two seats up for election.

Lincoln School District — David Leveroni III of 3100 Novato Boulevard, Novato, a dairy rancher and incumbent. One seat up for election.

Novato Unified School District — Liz Mertel of 20 Baywood Circle and Jan Murray of 93 Estrella Way, Novato, both homemakers.

Marin County Board of Education — James A. Carroll of 33 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Ross, a junior high school teacher; Lee C. Richardson Jr., of Inverness, garage operator, and James A. Swenson of 424 Alameda De La Loma, Novato, paint salesman. All are incumbents. Four seats up for election.

Nixon Plan To Share Washington's Power

the federal bureaucracy, reducing the 12 Cabinet-level departments to eight and consolidating overlapping programs. The Departments of State, Treasury, Justice and Defense would be untouched, but the present Departments of Agriculture, Labor, Commerce, Transportation, Housing and Urban Development, and Health, Education and Welfare would be combined into four new departments —Human Resources, Community Development, Natural Resources and Economic Development.

—A renewed plea for passage of administration bills left over from the last Congress, especially the welfare reform plan intended to build a $1,600-a-year floor under the income of every family of four.

—A deficit federal budget intended to stimulate the economy and reverse a rising trend of unemployment. The President said the budget he will submit to Congress next Friday would be balanced if the economy were operating at full employment, which it now is not. He listed no figures but other sources indicated the budget would be about $230 billion with approximately $10 billion of that in red ink.

The lawmakers appeared generally cool to the President's plea to share power with the states.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., is an outspoken opponent of Nixon's revenue sharing plan. A much more limited proposal, involving first year outlays of only $500 million, died without even a hearing in Mills' committee last year.

In many ways, the speech was a sharp break with Nixon's past. It contained only one passing mention of foreign affairs —the desire to withdraw from Vietnam honorably —and it glorified deficit spending in a way not usually heard from Republicans.

But in vowing to shift power from Washington to the states, cities and towns, Nixon was was following Republcan orthodoxy.

He called for "a New American Revolution —a peaceful revolution in which power was turned back to the people —in which government at all levels was refreshed and renewed, and made truly responsive."

Nixon, who has never served a day in state or local government during his 24 years in politics, pinned his hopes on the states and cities to "close the gap between promise and performance in American government."

His revenue-sharing plan was in two parts. First, the President would provide $5 billion a year in no-strings-attached grants which the states and cities could spend as they see fit. About 52 per cent of the money would go to states and the rest to cities, counties and towns.

He also proposed $11 billion in grants tied to specific purposes but not to narrowly-defined programs. The categories were education, urban development, rural development, transportation, job training and law enforcement.

The $11 billion includes $1 billion in new money and $10 billion which will be included in the new federal budget for specific programs in case Congress balks at the revenue-sharing principle.

The money for revenue sharing will have to be borrowed. The president conceded that federal revenues — held down by the business slump —will not even cover the cost of existing programs.

use of automobiles, trucks and aircraft in the district.

2. Further restrict emissions from all existing industrial and commercial sources.

3. Develop an areawide, nonpolluting urban transport system.

4. Limit population growth by sharply restricting subdivision and residential expansion.

5. Limit commercial and industrial growth to facilities that emit no contaminants.

6. Restrict emissions from agricultural, domestic and recreational sources.

Callaghan's recommendations closely paralleled those in November by the state Air Resources Board's technical advisory committee. The committee called for similar limits, saying "drastic changes which must occur will have direct and jarring effects."

Crash Survivor Reported Better

Capt. George Burk, 29, lone survivor of the crash of an Air Force plane in the Sonoma Hills near Sears Point, May 4, 1970, has recovered from burns that covered more than 60 per cent of his body in the crash.

Thirteen persons were killed when the plane crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamilton Air Force Base, but Burk, communications officer with the Western Communications Regional Headquarters, then stationed at the base, survived.

The captain is in Texas on convalescent leave from Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Houston, Tex., according to the public information office at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Carrara Estates Before Planners

The Novato Planning Commission will consider plans for Carrara Estates Subdivision at Center Road and Sun Lane at 8 p.m. Monday at Novato Community House.

The developers are asking to construct 26 homes on 7.5 acres now zoned for limited agriculture.

The commission also will have a hearing on a revised tentative map of the Oaks, unit 2, a 79-lot subdivision in the Marin Highlands area, which has been opposed by the Marin Highlands Homeowners Association.

Sewer Additions Due Council Study

Additions to the sewage treatment plant will be considered by the Petaluma City Council in a study session Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Also on the agenda is a request from firefighters for a reduction in their work week and continued discussion of major capital outlay requests for 1971-72.

Bagshaw Heads Freeway Group

T. Fred Bagshaw of Mill Valley has been named executive director of the California Freeway Support Committee, which recently moved its office from Los Angeles to Sacramento.

Bagshaw, of 317 Hillsdale Avenue, replaces Max Gillis as executive director. Bagshaw resigned as secretary to the California Highway Commission last May to join the committee.

No newcomer to highway problems, Bagshaw served as director of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, director of the State Department of Public Works, Supervisor for Marin county and Mayor of Mill Valley.

Tomales Junior Defends Title

James Spaletta, a junior at Tomales High School, will defend his regional title in a Future Farmers of America speaking contest in Santa Rosa Feb. 25 to 26.

Spaletta, winner of regional competition last year, won the sectional championship in Santa Rosa Monday competing against speakers from Santa Rosa, Petaluma, Napa and Healdsburg. His topic was "insecticides in Our Environment."

Speakers in the regional competition will be from coastal counties from Half Moon Bay to Oregon.

Guilty Verdict In Dope Case

Peter Bruce Winston, 24, of the Diaz Ranch near Mill Valley, was found guilty yesterday by a Marin Superior Court Jury of possessing marijuana and cocaine and a misdemeanor count of possessing a device for smoking narcotics.

Judge Henry J. Broderick set sentencing for March 5.

Winston was arrested in a raid on the ranch in March 1969.

OIL

not verify how much of the oil has been scooped up and returned to the refinery in Richmond. He said the 336,000-gallong figure given yesterday to the Independent-Journal "was somebody's rough estimate. Nobody knows now how much has been picked up."

He also denied reports that a factor in the collision was that the tanker Oregon Standard had been delayed in sailing Sunday night to repair a small oil leak, thus placing the ship in the Golden Gate at the same time as the Arizona Standard tanker. The repairs — to a ruptured hose — were made earlier, while the ship was offloading its previous cargo, Griffin reported.

High-altitude photos yesterday showed large oil slicks spread along the Pacific Coast from Point Reyes to Half Moon Bay in the south. Observers at the Bolinas laboratory said beach pollution extended only as far north as Double Point, south of Point Reyes. But oil-soaked birds were coming in from Drake's Bay north of Double Point.

Standard Oil said a fleet of nine oil skimmer craft was gathering up remaining oil in San Francisco Bay and offshore of Stinson Beach and Bolinas.

Barges and small craft worked day and night along the Tiburon Peninsula and Sausalito waterfront, and at Point Richmond.

Three booms were in place at the inlet to Bolinas Lagoon, and were said to be keeping oil in the lagoon to a minimum.

Col. George White, Stinson Beach fire chief, said heavy equipment under contract to Standard was hauling away huge quantities of goo-polluted sand and straw both along Stinson Beach and at Bolinas. "The beach will be the cleanest it has been in 30 years," he said.

White rejected repeated rumors of bad relations between Standard Oil workers and the more than 1,000 volunteers along the beach. He said Standard has been "very cooperative" with the volunteers.

At the marine lab in Bolinas, volunteers agreed with White. Standard has been supplying food to a volunteer kitchen set up in the Bolinas Community Center, they reported, and has helped distribute meals to workers as far away as Muir Beach.

Jules Mayer, a Standard Oil cleanup official, in turn praised the volunteer effort as "overwhelming."

Meanwhile, Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, announced that Standard had assured her the company would replenish all wildlife killed by the oil spill.

The bird rescue operation today centered more on long-term care than on emergency cleanup. The Bolinas marine station said few birds came in during the night. All the birds cared for at the laboratory have been transferred to the San Francisco Zoo for long-term housing until their damaged feathers have replaced themselves.

The Humane Society Center today housed some 700 birds for long-term care. The Audubon headquarters said its birds and those from a temporary warehouse in Terra Linda and the Boyd Museum in San Rafael had been moved to San Francisco.

Experts were beginning today to try to assess overall damage to wildlife. James Steer, a Stinson Beach veterinarian, planned to tour the offshore areas by helicopter this afternoon to check for signs of injury to seals and other ocean mammals.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinicke toured beach cleanup and bird rescue operations in San Francisco yesterday. He praised volunteers for "your compassion" and said he favors federal regulation of tanker traffic in the Bay.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto also called for state and federal laws to prevent more oil spills.

Meanwhile, Standard Oil repeated its pledge to continue the cleanup effort as long as necessary. The firm said 700 contract workers and upwards of 1,500 volunteers were toiling day and night around the Bay and along the Pacific coastline.

Yesterday, the company said it had received 200 claims for property damage from the oil, mostly to small boats. No dollar estimate of the claims was available.

OBITUARIES

Constance A. Sabella Dies At 52

Constance A. Sabella, 52, of 230 Via Lerida, Greenbrae, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a long illness.

She was a member of the Sabella family that operates restaurants in Marin County and San Francisco. Her husband, Frank J. Sabella Sr., operates restaurants at Fisherman's Wharf; her late brother-in-law, Angelo Sabella, founded the Sabella's Restaurant in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Sabella was a native of San Francisco and lived there until she and her husband moved to Marin County two years ago.

She also is survived by a daughter, Angela Peterson of Lucas Valley; two sons, Frank Jr. of Marinwood and Richard of the family home; her mother, Carmela Manoguerra; a sister, Mrs. Anthony Cordi, and brothers Anthony, Salvatore, Peter and Jack Manoguerra, all of San Francisco, and three granchildren.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Halsted and Co. Mortuary, San Francisco. Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday in Sts. Peter and Paul Church, San Francisco, followed by entombment in Holy Cross Mausoleum, Colma.

KRISTEN PERSEN

Funeral for Kristen A. Persen, a San Anselman who pursued varied and colorful careers, will be Monday at 1 p.m. in the Norwegian Seamen's Church, San Francisco.

Persen, 73, died Thursday at his home after a long illness.

A native of Norway, he came to California in 1945 and had lived in Marin County 20 years, residing at 1515 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

He was an insurance agent for 30 years, a career he began in Shanghai, China. Persen lived in China from 1917 to 1941 and was a sea captain before going into the insurance business.

When Pearl Harbor was attacked, Persen was caught in Manila and forced to live for three years under Japanese occupation. In 1944 he joined Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff as a war correspondent. He was a former member of the San Francisco Press Club.

Persen is survived by his wife, Dorothy, of San Anselmo.

Burial will be private. The family prefers contributions to the Norwegian Seamen's Church.

SARAH TALSNESS

Sarah Talsness, 99, of Novato, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Talsness was born in Storen, Norway, moving to Minnesota in 1893. She lived most of her life in Cass Lake and International Falls, Minn. Three years ago, she moved to Novato to live with her daughter, Mrs. John E. Pederson of 20 Pierce Drive.

Also surviving are two sons, Olaf Talsness and Bernhard Talsness, both of Minnesota; 14 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be tomorrow at 3 p.m. at Keaton's Chapel of Marin in Novato. Burial will follow in Cass Lake.

FREDERICK HASSFELD

Private funeral for Frederick K. Hassfeld, 63, of 1893 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, a pool service contractor, was held today.

Hassfeld, operator of Trident Pool Service for 10 years, died Thursday night at a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Chicago, Ill., he had been a resident of Marin and California for 39 years.

Surviving are a daughter, Kay Stevens of Newark, Alameda County, and five grandchildren.

Inurnment was at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

FLORENCE NELSEN

Private funeral was held yesterday in San Rafael for Florence B. Nelsen, a long-time resident of Marin who died Thursday in a local convalescent hospital after a long illness. She was 92.

Mrs. Nelsen, a native of London who lived in Marin for 30 years, was the widow of Henry N. Nelsen, a retired, self-employed plumber and carpenter, who died in 1968.

She was a one-time milliner.

Mrs. Nelsen lived at 110 Santa Cruz Avenue, San Anselmo, before entering the rest home.

Survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Melvin H. Dotson of San Rafael; four grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Sally Stanford Says Goodbye To Marsha Owen

Marsha Owen, who once asked, "Who the hell knows who Marsha Owen is?" is no more.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court yesterday granted Miss Owen's request to have her name changed legally to Sally Stanford, the name the former San Francisco night life figure had used for years.

Following the short legal procedure, Miss Stanford, now a Sausalito restaurateur, celebrated with breakfast in the Hall of Justice cafeteria with Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos.

Bond Issue Seen For Flood Plan

The Bel Aire Flood Control Zone Advisory Board has agreed that a bond issue is the best way to finance a $560,000 flood control program, and told a special bond counsel to set bond machinery in motion.

County Flood Control Engineer Charles P. Murphy said the board instructed attorney Edwin Ness of Belvedere to investigate the bond market to see if such a bond issue is feasible.

Other means of financing the program, including a pay-as-you-go plan and an assessment district, were discussed, Murphy said, but the bond issue seemed to be the most practical.

the federal bureaucracy, reducing the 12 Cabinet-level departments to eight and consolidating overlapping programs. The Departments of State, Treasury, Justice and Defense would be untouched, but the present Departments of Agriculture, Labor, Commerce, Transportation, Housing and Urban Development, and Health, Education and Welfare would be combined into four new departments —Human Resources, Community Development, Natural Resources and Economic Development.

—A renewed plea for passage of administration bills left over from the last Congress, especially the welfare reform plan intended to build a $1,600-a-year floor under the income of every family of four.

—A deficit federal budget intended to stimulate the economy and reverse a rising trend of unemployment. The President said the budget he will submit to Congress next Friday would be balanced if the economy were operating at full employment, which it now is not. He listed no figures but other sources indicated the budget would be about $230 billion with approximately $10 billion of that in red ink.

The lawmakers appeared generally cool to the President's plea to share power with the states.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., is an outspoken opponent of Nixon's revenue sharing plan. A much more limited proposal, involving first year outlays of only $500 million, died without even a hearing in Mills' committee last year.

In many ways, the speech was a sharp break with Nixon's past. It contained only one passing mention of foreign affairs —the desire to withdraw from Vietnam honorably —and it glorified deficit spending in a way not usually heard from Republicans.

But in vowing to shift power from Washington to the states, cities and towns, Nixon was was following Republcan orthodoxy.

He called for "a New American Revolution —a peaceful revolution in which power was turned back to the people —in which government at all levels was refreshed and renewed, and made truly responsive."

Nixon, who has never served a day in state or local government during his 24 years in politics, pinned his hopes on the states and cities to "close the gap between promise and performance in American government."

His revenue-sharing plan was in two parts. First, the President would provide $5 billion a year in no-strings-attached grants which the states and cities could spend as they see fit. About 52 per cent of the money would go to states and the rest to cities, counties and towns.

He also proposed $11 billion in grants tied to specific purposes but not to narrowly-defined programs. The categories were education, urban development, rural development, transportation, job training and law enforcement.

The $11 billion includes $1 billion in new money and $10 billion which will be included in the new federal budget for specific programs in case Congress balks at the revenue-sharing principle.

The money for revenue sharing will have to be borrowed. The president conceded that federal revenues —held down by the business slump —will not even cover the cost of existing programs.

use of automobiles, trucks and aircraft in the district.

2. Further restrict emissions from all existing industrial and commercial sources.

3. Develop an areawide, nonpolluting urban transport system.

4. Limit population growth by sharply restricting subdivision and residential expansion.

5. Limit commercial and industrial growth to facilities that emit no contaminants.

6. Restrict emissions from agricultural, domestic and recreational sources.

Callaghan's recommendations closely paralleled those in November by the state Air Resources Board's technical advisory committee. The committee called for similar limits, saying "drastic changes which must occur will have direct and jarring effects."

Crash Survivor Reported Better

Capt. George Burk, 29, lone survivor of the crash of an Air Force plane in the Sonoma Hills near Sears Point, May 4, 1970, has recovered from burns that covered more than 60 per cent of his body in the crash.

Thirteen persons were killed when the plane crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamilton Air Force Base, but Burk, communications officer with the Western Communications Regional Headquarters, then stationed at the base, survived.

The captain is in Texas on convalescent leave from Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Houston, Tex., according to the public information office at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Carrara Estates Before Planners

The Novato Planning Commission will consider plans for Carrara Estates Subdivision at Center Road and Sun Lane at 8 p.m. Monday at Novato Community House.

The developers are asking to construct 26 homes on 7.5 acres now zoned for limited agriculture.

The commission also will have a hearing on a revised tentative map of the Oaks, unit 2, a 79-lot subdivision in the Marin Highlands area, which has been opposed by the Marin Highlands Homeowners Association.

Sewer Additions Due Council Study

Additions to the sewage treatment plant will be considered by the Petaluma City Council in a study session Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Also on the agenda is a request from firefighters for a reduction in their work week and continued discussion of major capital outlay requests for 1971-72.

Bagshaw Heads Freeway Group

T. Fred Bagshaw of Mill Valley has been named executive director of the California Freeway Support Committee, which recently moved its office from Los Angeles to Sacramento.

Bagshaw, of 317 Hillsdale Avenue, replaces Max Gillis as executive director. Bagshaw resigned as secretary to the California Highway Commission last May to join the committee.

No newcomer to highway problems, Bagshaw served as director of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, director of the State Department of Public Works, Supervisor for Marin county and Mayor of Mill Valley.

Tomales Junior Defends Title

James Spaletta, a junior at Tomales High School, will defend his regional title in a Future Farmers of America speaking contest in Santa Rosa Feb. 25 to 26.

Spaletta, winner of regional competition last year, won the sectional championship in Santa Rosa Monday competing against speakers from Santa Rosa, Petaluma, Napa and Healdsburg. His topic was "insecticides in Our Environment."

Speakers in the regional competition will be from coastal counties from Half Moon Bay to Oregon.

Guilty Verdict In Dope Case

Peter Bruce Winston, 24, of the Diaz Ranch near Mill Valley, was found guilty yesterday by a Marin Superior Court Jury of possessing marijuana and cocaine and a misdemeanor count of possessing a device for smoking narcotics.

Judge Henry J. Broderick set sentencing for March 5.

Winston was arrested in a raid on the ranch in March 1969.

not verify how much of the oil has been scooped up and returned to the refinery in Richmond. He said the 336,000-gallong figure given yesterday to the Independent-Journal "was somebody's rough estimate. Nobody knows now how much has been picked up."

He also denied reports that a factor in the collision was that the tanker Oregon Standard had been delayed in sailing Sunday night to repair a small oil leak, thus placing the ship in the Golden Gate at the same time as the Arizona Standard tanker. The repairs — to a ruptured hose — were made earlier, while the ship was offloading its previous cargo, Griffin reported.

High-altitude photos yesterday showed large oil slicks spread along the Pacific Coast from Point Reyes to Half Moon Bay in the south. Observers at the Bolinas laboratory said beach pollution extended only as far north as Double Point, south of Point Reyes. But oil-soaked birds were coming in from Drake's Bay north of Double Point.

Standard Oil said a fleet of nine oil skimmer craft was gathering up remaining oil in San Francisco Bay and offshore of Stinson Beach and Bolinas.

Barges and small craft worked day and night along the Tiburon Peninsula and Sausalito waterfront, and at Point Richmond.

Three booms were in place at the inlet to Bolinas Lagoon, and were said to be keeping oil in the lagoon to a minimum.

Col. George White, Stinson Beach fire chief, said heavy equipment under contract to Standard was hauling away huge quantities of goo-polluted sand and straw both along Stinson Beach and at Bolinas. "The beach will be the cleanest it has been in 30 years," he said.

White rejected repeated rumors of bad relations between Standard Oil workers and the more than 1,000 volunteers along the beach. He said Standard has been "very cooperative" with the volunteers.

At the marine lab in Bolinas, volunteers agreed with White. Standard has been supplying food to a volunteer kitchen set up in the Bolinas Community Center, they reported, and has helped distribute meals to workers as far away as Muir Beach.

Jules Mayer, a Standard Oil cleanup official, in turn praised the volunteer effort as "overwhelming."

Meanwhile, Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, announced that Standard had assured her the company would replenish all wildlife killed by the oil spill.

The bird rescue operation today centered more on long-term care than on emergency cleanup. The Bolinas marine station said few birds came in during the night. All the birds cared for at the laboratory have been transferred to the San Francisco Zoo for long-term housing until their damaged feathers have replaced themselves.

The Humane Society Center today housed some 700 birds for long-term care. The Audubon headquarters said its birds and those from a temporary warehouse in Terra Linda and the Boyd Museum in San Rafael had been moved to San Francisco.

Experts were beginning today to try to assess overall damage to wildlife. James Steer, a Stinson Beach veterinarian, planned to tour the offshore areas by helicopter this afternoon to check for signs of injury to seals and other ocean mammals.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinicke toured beach cleanup and bird rescue operations in San Francisco yesterday. He praised volunteers for "your compassion" and said he favors federal regulation of tanker traffic in the Bay.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto also called for state and federal laws to prevent more oil spills.

Meanwhile, Standard Oil repeated its pledge to continue the cleanup effort as long as necessary. The firm said 700 contract workers and upwards of 1,500 volunteers were toiling day and night around the Bay and along the Pacific coastline.

Yesterday, the company said it had received 200 claims for property damage from the oil, mostly to small boats. No dollar estimate of the claims was available.

OBITUARIES

Constance A. Sabella Dies At 52

Constance A. Sabella, 52, of 230 Via Lerida, Greenbrae, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a long illness.

She was a member of the Sabella family that operates restaurants in Marin County and San Francisco. Her husband, Frank J. Sabella Sr., operates restaurants at Fisherman's Wharf; her late brother-in-law, Angelo Sabella, founded the Sabella's Restaurant in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Sabella was a native of San Francisco and lived there until she and her husband moved to Marin County two years ago.

She also is survived by a daughter, Angela Peterson of Lucas Valley; two sons, Frank Jr. of Marinwood and Richard of the family home; her mother, Carmela Manoguerra; a sister, Mrs. Anthony Cordi, and brothers Anthony, Salvatore, Peter and Jack Manoguerra, all of San Francisco, and three granchildren.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Halsted and Co. Mortuary, San Francisco. Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday in Sts. Peter and Paul Church, San Francisco, followed by entombment in Holy Cross Mausoleum, Colma.

KRISTEN PERSEN

Funeral for Kristen A. Persen, a SanAnselmanwho pursued varied and colorful careers, will be Monday at 1 p.m. in the Norwegian Seamen's Church, San Francisco.

Persen, 73, died Thursday at his home after a long illness.

A native of Norway, he came to California in 1945 and had lived in Marin County 20 years, residing at 1515 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

He was an insurance agent for 30 years, a career he began in Shanghai, China. Persen lived in China from 1917 to 1941 and was a sea captain before going into the insurance business.

When Pearl Harbor was attacked, Persen was caught in Manila and forced to live for three years under Japanese occupation. In 1944 he joined Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff as a war correspondent. He was a former member of the San Francisco Press Club.

Persen is survived by his wife, Dorothy, of San Anselmo.

Burial will be private. The family prefers contributions to the Norwegian Seamen's Church.

SARAH TALSNESS

Sarah Talsness, 99, of Novato, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Talsness was born in Storen, Norway, moving to Minnesota in 1893. She lived most of her life in Cass Lake and International Falls, Minn. Three years ago, she moved to Novato to live with her daughter, Mrs. John E. Pederson of 20 Pierce Drive.

Also surviving are two sons, Olaf Talsness and Bernhard Talsness, both of Minnesota; 14 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be tomorrow at 3 p.m. at Keaton's Chapel of Marin in Novato. Burial will follow in Cass Lake.

FREDERICK HASSFELD

Private funeral for Frederick K. Hassfeld, 63, of 1893 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, a pool service contractor, was held today.

Hassfeld, operator of Trident Pool Service for 10 years, died Thursday night at a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Chicago, Ill., he had been a resident of Marin and California for 39 years.

Surviving are a daughter, Kay Stevens of Newark, Alameda County, and five grandchildren.

Inurnment was at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

FLORENCE NELSEN

Private funeral was held yesterday in San Rafael for Florence B. Nelsen, a longtime resident of Marin who died Thursday in a local convalescent hospital after a long illness. She was 92.

Mrs. Nelsen, a native of London who lived in Marin for 30 years, was the widow of Henry N. Nelsen, a retired, self-employed plumber and carpenter, who died in 1968.

She was a one-time milliner.

Mrs. Nelsen lived at 110 Santa Cruz Avenue, San Anselmo, before entering the rest home.

Survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Melvin H. Dotson of San Rafael; four grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Bond Issue Seen For Flood Plan

The Bel Aire Flood Control Zone Advisory Board has agreed that a bond issue is the best way to finance a $560,000 flood control program, and told a special bond counsel to set bond machinery in motion.

County Flood Control Engineer Charles P. Murphy said the board instructed attorney Edwin Ness of Belvedere to investigate the bond market to see if such a bond issue is feasible.

Other means of financing the program, including a pay-as-you-go plan and an assessment district, were discussed, Murphy said, but the bond issue seemed to be the most practical.

Sally Stanford Says Goodbye To Marsha Owen

Marsha Owen, who once asked, "Who the hell knows who Marsha Owen is?" is no more.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court yesterday granted Miss Owen's request to have her name changed legally to Sally Stanford, the name the former San Francisco night life figure had used for years.

Following the short legal procedure, Miss Stanford, now a Sausalito restaurateur, celebrated with breakfast in the Hall of Justice cafeteria with Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos.

Conviction On Use Of Flag

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Robin L. Crown, 26, a Marine veteran who served in Vietnam, was convicted Thursday of desecrating the American flag by using it as a tablecoth at a flea market.

A jury deliberated for less than an hour before returning the verdict in Municipal Court. Judge Robert N. Zarick set Tuesday for sentencing.

Crown was arrested Oct. 4, 1970, at his flea market stand. He had complained to police that he was being harassed by six or seven "old guys" about the flag. And, he said, when Officer Luther L. Linebarger showed up, he was taken into custody instead of getting protection from them.

Crown told the jury that his use of the flag was no worse than its use in advertising, on bumper stickers and decals, or as a bikini swim suit as used by Raquel Welch in the movie "Myra Breckenridge."

Jury Convicts On Pot Count

James Edward Bartee, 24, a former Rancho Olompali resident, was found guilty of possessing marijuana yesterday by a Marin Superior Court jury.

Bartee was charged with having pot when arrested at the former hippie colony Jan. 14, 1969.

Judge Thomas F. Keating set sentencing for Feb. 11.

Mill Valleyan Hurt In Crash

A 45-year-old Mill Valley woman was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut knee Tuesday after her auto struck a parked car on Shoreline Highway about 5:30 p.m., the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Officers said Carol D. Cassill, of 829 Spring Drive, was northbound on Shoreline when she hit a car owned by John L. Boggs of 302 Robin Road, Mill Valley. The Boggs car was parked in front of the Fireside Motel, according to the highway patrol.

Mrs. Cassill, according to officers, said she blacked out shortly before the accident and did not know what happened.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Concentrate On Eighth Graders Now And The Older Boy Later

Dear Helen:

I was his princess and he was my prince when I was in first grade and he in third.

Now I'm in seventh grade, and he's a ninth-grader, and he hardly ever notices me. If he wasn't too old for me back then, why is he now?

But if he is, then there's a cute boy in the eighth grade, and he has a brother in the same grade and they're both in the band, which I'm in too. They look alike, except one wears braces. We all three play horns. They like me.

But my prince is on the football team.

So please, what do I do?
— LOVESICK

Dear Lovesick:

We-e-ell — two birds in the hand are better than an unnoticing football player in the bush, right? So keep the older "Prince Charming" in mind for high school (where seniors often think sophomores are mighty cute) and concentrate on the cute guys who like you. — H.

Dear Helen:

I've been going with this guy who is 15 years older than me and married. He also has a family. We've been dating for 16 months and he plans to get a divorce and marry me.

Everything was great until my folks found out. They insisted that we break up, so I've been sneaking to see him. I truly love this man and know marriage will work, even though it will be tough if he has to support four children. Could you give some suggestions on winning my parents over?
— NEEDING HELP, (18)

Dear N. H.:

You haven't even won me over yet! . . . .Because:

1. A married man may date a younger chick for 16 months, but marriage usually isn't what he has in mind.
2. He has 15 years and four kids against him. (In addition to a wife.)
3. You are too young for this kind of involvement.
4. Your parents are right.

— H.

Dear Helen:

I know a guy who is very high on anti-pollution, ecology, etc., and tootles around to every meeting in town, making big fusses about factory smog and water-poisoning.

He doesn't seem to notice his old car pours out a blanket of smoke, and the blue haze is even thicker because he uses the cheapest gasoline on the market, plus he won't do any work on his car. (Doesn't have time, what with all the campaigning.)

It's sure funny how people can walk out of a pollution meeting and throw paper cups and trash on the floor, as they rap about how terrible "those others" are.

Or homeowners can be gung-ho for clean-ups and no-smoke legislation — until it's fall leaf burning time.

When will we ever learn?
— OBSERVANT

Dear Ob:

When "the other guy" teaches us, just as we're involved right now in teaching him. It takes time to change those easy, lifelong habits, but we must for, if we don't, future generations may not survive. — H.

SEW SIMPLE

Cottons For Summer Travel

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I am planning a trip this summer and want to get started on my sewing immediately. Everywhere I go people say that I need knits and more knits for travel clothes. I had my first experience with a polyester knit dress last summer and found it to be extremelyhot to wear and wonder if the easy care is worth the uncomfortable feeling. Are there any other fabrics you would recommend for a trip to a very warm and humid country?

MRS. H.V.

DEAR MRS. H.V.,

It seems that with every asset there is always a liability. Yes, the nylons and polyesters are much warmer than cottons, however they are easy to care for.

Today, there are many cottons available that are just as satisfactory and have the same qualities as the synthetics. There are cotton knits that are washable. There are many cottons mixed with some polyester that are drip dry, and there are beautiful double woven cottons that are marvelous for travel coats and suits. You don't have to take everything that is washable, if you spray your cotton coats and suits with fabric finish spray. You will find they won't spot or soil as easily and will probably last beautifully for the entire trip. Even heavy cottons aren't hot to wear; sheer voiles, batistes, and imported cottons can take you anywhere from morning to night.

Even the linens are treated today for wrinkle resistancy, and they have become more and more popular. For many of us, there is nothing like linen for style, elegance and the feeling you get when you wear this beautiful fabric.

No matter where you travel, you will probably have soom cool days or evenings. I discovered a beautiful woven polyester that seems to have more breathing spaces and not the clinging qualities of knits. It has been made up in expensive ready-to-wear and is as light as a feather. I intend to make one of these for myself this summer because I love the qualities it has that the knits don't have. I would vary my wardrobe and take a little of everything; in this way you will always have the right garment for any weather.

MRS. GEORGE Paro, Grand Island, Neb., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her suggestion:

"I have just worked out a big problem for me with the invisible zippers. Hope it will help others when they have a cross-seam to match, such as in dresses with a waistline.

"After sewing the right side, as directed on the instructions, on the second step sew the seam from the bottom up. Start at the line you are trying to match and sew only a few inches with basting stitch and remove from the machine, zip shut to check. If it doesn't match you have only a few loose stitches to remove and try again. If it matches you have to sew again from the bottom to the top and then sew the rest of the seam downward, as directed to close the bottom from the waistline down. I love using these zippers but always had trouble when something had to match; now I've solved my problem."

DEAR EUNICE,

I have seen a new gadget on the market for sewing on velvet, It is called a "velvet foot". Since this is the most miserable material I have ever worked on I am wondering if I should stick my neck out and try it again.

MRS. R.E.L.

DEAR MRS. R.E.L.,

We have tested the "velvet foot" and have mixed emotions about it. The foot is a roller which does tend to glide more smoothly than the standard presser foot. It will sew over pins without leaving the crush marks that you get when you sew over pins with the standard presser foot. I think it is worthwhile to use any gadget that has been developed for a specific purpose but work with it on sample fabric before you begin on your garment.

We have also found the new roller type foot is helpful when sewing with vinyl; again because it tends to glide along with less pressure. Velvet will never be a fabric that is easy to work with. There are too many special techniques necessary, such as pressing. There is nothing more beautiful when done well, but you must be an experienced seamstress with lots of patience for success.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have been making my lingerie and love it. However, I am bored with making a garment out of the ordinary materials that are available in our town. Why don't they make the beautiful sheer prints available for the woman who wants to make her own lingerie so that she really has something special when she has put her time and effort into it.

MRS. S.S.

DEAR MRS. S.S.,

This lingerie craze hit the market much harder than anyone realized. Most manufacturers and fabric shops thought it would be just a whim and didn't want to get stuck with a lot of merchandise.

There are some lovely printed enkalures available. These are the fabrics that are used in lingerie found in your most expensive ready-to-wear shops. They can be made for less than half the cost of the ready-mades.

I agree with you, it would certainly be more fun to make and wear something that would be out of reach in our budgets and yet not out of reach when you make it. Keep on the lookout and I think you will find more and more of these lovely fabrics available.

For your free Fabric Conversion Chart send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

STANDARD OIL ISSUES PROCEDURE FOR CLEANING CLOTHING

The Standard Oil Co., has issued a procedure for cleaning denim jeans and other cotton clothes soiled with oil.

First scrape or wipe off the excess oil. Rinse two or three times in paint thinner. (Do not use gasoline or carbon tetrachloride.) Soak articles in a mild liquid dishwashing detergent or soap. Then put the clothes in a washing machine and use twice the normal amount of detergent or soap.

A Standard Oil spokesman said the company's research staff found the process to be successful with cottons only. Synthetics will retain a stain.

Ad Man Says Youth Have Fear 'Of Dying Unfulfilled'

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—A decade ago, they called youth the "beat generation." But that was before the deep involvement of the United States in Vietnam.

Today, youth largely as a result of that involvement is creating its own labels for its lifestyle. The young have become the "takeover generation."

The change is logical, says an advertising agency executive who is author of a new book on understanding young people's attitudes and interpreting them as consumers.

Mel Helitzer, head of the agency which bears his name, said that of course it is oversimplifying a situation to say that what some people call the "tyranny of youth" is actually youth's "fear of dying unfulfilled."

Said Helitzer, " . . . in this marshmallowiworld of affluence and Spockian permissiveness, just when today's young people got old enough to partake of a feast of freedom they were enveloped by the fear of military service and its painful consequences."

HE CONTINUED, "Since fear is rarely admitted except by heroes, the youth bury their dreads by identifying with every kind of underprivileged minority (which is not bad) and by shooting from the lip the most caustic criticism of most adult principles and established organizations this is not necessarily good). Only 10 years ago, youth were calling themselves the 'beat generation.' We were not (deeply) involved in Vietnam then.

But we are today. This fear of tomorrow underlines their 'we want it now' chants. They would like the term the 'takeover generation.'"

"And they are taking over," Helitzer continued. "In language, music, films, education-. . . new products ideas."

Helitzer, whose agency handles accounts geared only to young people, made these remarks in a speech at the Publishers Ad Club in New York this week. His talk coincided with publication of his

This lingerie craze hit the market much harder than anyone realized. Most manufacturers and fabric shops thought it would be just a whim and didn't want to get stuck with a lot of merchandise.

There are some lovely printed enkalures available. These are the fabrics that are used in lingerie found in your most expensive ready-to-wear shops. They can be made for less than half the cost of the ready-mades.

I agree with you, it would certainly be more fun to make and wear something that would be out of reach in our budgets and yet not out of reach when you make it. Keep on the lookout and I think you will find more and more of these lovely fabrics available.

For your free Fabric Conversion Chart send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

STANDARD OIL ISSUES PROCEDURE FOR CLEANING CLOTHING

The Standard Oil Co., has issued a procedure for cleaning denim jeans and other cotton clothes soiled with oil.

First scrape or wipe off the excess oil. Rinse two or three times in paint thinner. (Do not use gasoline or carbon tetrachloride.) Soak articles in a mild liquid dishwashing detergent or soap. Then put the clothes in a washing machine and use twice the normal amount of detergent or soap.

A Standard Oil spokesman said the company's research staff found the process to be successful with cottons only. Synthetics will retain a stain.

Ad Man Says Youth Have Fear 'Of Dying Unfulfilled'

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—A decade ago, they called youth the "beat generation." But that was before the deep involvement of the United States in Vietnam.

Today, youth largely as a result of that involvement is creating its own labels for its lifestyle. The young have become the "takeover generation."

The change is logical, says an advertising agency executive who is author of a new book on understanding young people's attitudes and interpreting them as consumers.

Mel Helitzer, head of the agency which bears his name, said that of course it is oversimplifying a situation to say that what some people call the "tyranny of youth" is actually youth's "fear of dying unfulfilled."

Said Helitzer, " . . . in this marshmallowiworld of affluence and Spockian permissiveness, just when today's young people got old enough to partake of a feast of freedom they were enveloped by the fear of military service and its painful consequences."

HE CONTINUED, "Since fear is rarely admitted except by heroes, the youth bury their dreads by identifying with every kind of underprivileged minority (which is not bad) and by shooting from the lip the most caustic criticism of most adult principles and established organizations this is not necessarily good). Only 10 years ago, youth were calling themselves the 'beat generation.' We were not (deeply) involved in Vietnam then.

But we are today. This fear of tomorrow underlines their 'we want it now' chants. They would like the term the 'takeover generation.'"

"And they are taking over," Helitzer continued. "In language, music, films, education- . . . new products ideas."

Helitzer, whose agency handles accounts geared only to young people, made these remarks in a speech at the Publishers Ad Club in New York this week. His talk coincided with publication of his

Mrs. Ruocco Heads Petaluma Society

MRS. JOSEPH RUOCCO

Branch 23 of the Catholic Ladies Aid Society in Petaluma has chosen Mrs. Joseph Ruocco as its president.

A member for 14 years Tillie Ruocco has held various state and local offices. Prior to her and Mr. Ruocco's retirement in Sonoma County, she was president of Branch 66 in San Francisco.

"Helping those in need is our main objective," states the new president. Rummage sales twice yearly finance the charitable deeds accomplished by the membership, which is open to all Catholic women.

Special interest of Mrs. Ruocco is the Petaluma Grandmother's Club. She and her husband are the parents of Mrs. Donald Brown, Mrs. Vernon Piccinotti and Joanne Ruocco and the grandparents of three.

Reading and researching California state history plus sewing and gardening are Mrs. Ruocco's hobbies.

Karen Cunningham To Be The Bride Of Gary Karasik

Announcement of the engagement of their daughter Karen Jean Cunningham to Gary Karasik, has been made by her parents, Mill Valley city Manager William H. Cunningham and Mrs. Cunningham. The couple will be married on April 18.

Parents of the future bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Karasik of Monticello, N.Y.

Graduated cum laude with a major in English literature from Sacramento State College, Karen will complete work on a master's degree this spring at San Francisco State College. She has a sister, Meredith, who lives with her parents, and a brother, William Cunningham Jr. of San Diego.

Gary attended schools in New York and was graduated with a B.A. degree from San Francisco State College, where he is completing work under a fellowship on a master's degree in creative writing.

He has a sister, Susan Karasik, who is attending a college in Israel, and a brother, Jeffrey Karasik of New York City.

Boot Scene

Contour boot trees shape the boot scene. They come in lightweight red plastic and keep boots standing upright, so they're not toppling over and creating a mild state of chaos in the closet. The trees—called Dunks Contour Boot trees—are contoured to keep boots fresh, well-aired and wrinkle-free when not in use.

AFTER YOU have decided which role to play at the next party you will have to decide what to wear. If you want to take center stage and make an impact the jersey trousers with an overdress, left, are suggested. The girl who wants to look pretty on the sidelines might choose the shirred evening dress with a clinging top and long flowing skirt in panne velvet, right.

Which Kind Of Party Girl Are You?

By JANE ROGERS
London Express Service

People who go to parties divide into two groups — those who take the center of the stage and those who stand around and watch. And each role needs a certain style of dressing.

The girl who is hoping to be noticed approaches her party dressing in quite a different way from the rest. She'll go all out to find something show-stopping, shocking or just plain different from everyone else, and she has the inward reassurance to carry the whole idea off. She doesn't mind people staring at her ot talking about her. That's the whole object of the exercise, and she picks her clothes accordingly.

SHE WAS the first girl to try see-through dresses, crochet knits and, surprise surprise, seamed black stockings again. Right now she's probably wearing knicker-bocker suits in black velvet or weird Indian prints, looking too good for words like a little choir-boy when everyone else is clinging to their cleavages. Her hair is almost certainly cut short on top and long and straggling at the neck and her make-up is played down except around her eyes, which will be highlighted on top and underneath with pink-eye shadow and her lips which will be outlined in a cupid's bow.

What do the watchers wear, this year? That's the problem. At one time it was all so easy — you just struggled into the most becoming dark dress that you had, pinned on your jewelry and were ready to go, but now even the girls on the sidelines must make the effort to dress up a little.

It's all a matter of style, really, deciding what type you are and sticking to it. It's amazing the way we all go mad when we have somewhere special to go to and make tremendous errors of judgment. Girls who look pretty in frilly feminine things try to go slinky and sensual; others who are strictly the tailored type go overboard for frills and end up looking rather like cart-horses dressed up for the fair.

If you are really at your happiest in shirts and skirts, stick to them — but pick your skirt in quilted Indian print or flared black velvet; make your shirt a pretty slightly see-through one, and weld the two together with a wide important belt with a big, big buckle — one belt that is currently a best-seller, though only for strictly offbeat evening clothes, is the one made from empty cartridge cases strung together, worn low over the hips cowboy style. It goes with crushed velvet pants and a satin shirt.

IF YOU just want something that will make you look pretty, think in terms of velvet, not the stiff heavy kind, but the light silky variety called pane which drapes and gathers well, makes the sort of evening dress that is kind to you and your figure and is very comfortable to wear. It comes in church window colors like ruby red, deep stained-glass window blue and turquoise, and it's surprisingly inexpensive.

Another good all-purpose evening idea for the girl who wants something with a certain amount of impact is the culotte dress — an evening dress top and a divided skirt. The bodice of the dress is usually low-cut — in some cases diving down almost to waist level, and trimmed with sequins or lace, the divided skirt left plain. Again lightweight soft fabrics are best for this. Look out for silk jersey, crushed taffeta and velvet again.

If you like to lash out with fake eyelashes for evening wear, look out for a useful wardrobe of fake lashes all in one pack. It consists of four lash strips all styled and trimmed to the new spikey look but each in a different density ranging from fine for every day to thick for full evening wear. You simply snip the strip you choose into the right width for your lids and pop them on.

The pack includes a special new, improved adhesive too.

Effects Of The Youth 'Takeover'

book, "The Youth Market" (coedited by Carl Heyel, Media Books, Inc.)—a market which Helitzer estimates is $50 billion a year.

HELITZER, 46, and a former newspaper editor, said Vietnam affected young men directly, young women indirectly as they saw the men go off to one more battlefield.

So all of youth was involved in this fear thing, he said in an interview after his talk. Girls assumed the fears too, adding on such things as pollution and the population explosion.

The fashion world felt the impact of the young takeover, said Helitzer. "Fashion no longer starts in Europe and filters down through society. Now it starts among young people in the street—yes, even in the ghetto—and percolates upward . . . the young who urge each other to do your own thing."

The youth "takeover" reflects in the auto business also, for instance. "The reason teenagers prefer high-powered cars is that it makes it easier to drive their parents up the wall."

BUT HELITZER is optimistic "as Vietnam stumbles to a halt, as the new draft law permits ymungsters with high numbers to plan ahead more optimistically, we will be aware of a lessening in student protests, although they may never disappear. Violence certainly will lessen . . . students know that campus riots are no longer just fun and games . . . ' a guy can get killed out there.'"

One problem with youth today is that it is easily led, also unfortunately easily misled, said Helitzer.

Because of this fact, Helitzer warned, all who reach out to the youth market "must be above reproach. Our products must be worthwhile and safe, our advertising copy must not misrepresent, and our promotional efforts must contain as much good taste as it does effective persuasion."

Emergency Control Of Ships Urged

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — The executive committee of the Association of Bay Area Governments has asked for emergency controls on the movement of ships carrying dangerous cargo in San Francisco Bay

In a move which came on the heels of Monday's tanker collision, the committee asked that agencies involved in control of marine activities develop regulations similar to those employed by the Federal Aviation Administration at airports.

"While ABAG has no authority in the field of marine regulations, the committee felt emergency controls should be instituted at once," a statement said.

In other action Thursday night, the committee approved an application by the City of Tiburon for $70,600 in federal funds to help provide a two-mile bicycle and pedestrian path. The grant would cover half the city's cost of buying property from the Northwestern Pacific Railroad and converting it into a path.

A fiscal 1971-72 budget of $1,182,000 was approved, down $209,511 from the current fiscal year. Annual dues paid by participating agencies were hiked by 6 per cent, however Marin's dues will go from $5,363 to $5,659 and Sonoma's from $5,804 to $6,360.

The committee also decided to develop an enforceable plan for Pacific coastline conservation and development. A guide toward preservation of the shoreline was presented last year.

20,000 Lose Their Vote Rights

About 20,000 Marin residents lost their voting eligibility by failing to cast ballots in last November's election, but about 2,000 of them have since reregistered, Peter C. Meyer, county elections supervisor, reported today.

Meyer called attention to the fact that registration for voting in school board elections throughout the county and in the San Rafael city election will close Feb. 25. Those who did not vote in November need to reregister to be eligible for those elections, he noted.

Marin County registration rolls showed 102,003 eligible to vote in November. Purge of the rolls following that election reduced the number to 82,434 as of Jan. 1. About 2,000 have registered since the first of the year, Meyer said.

The Marin decline of approximately 19 per cent was less than the 23 per cent drop in voter registration for California as a whole.

Republicans had the smallest percentage loss in Marin, 16.9 per cent. Democrats went down by 19.3 per cent, American Independent Party by 46.3 per cent, and Peace and Freedom Party by 46.3 per cent.

As of Jan. 1, the GOP had 39,751 registered in Marin. There were 37,610 registered Democrats, 594 Peace and Freedom, 132 American Independent, 19 other parties, and 4,328 who refused to designate a party

Help On Housing Survey Being Sought

Marin County is trying to get city cooperation on another "housing condition survey" as a follow-up to the countywide housing survey and 178-page report completed last year

Albert Solnit, chief of advance planning in the county planning department, said the new survey is needed to meet state requirements The previous one was to satisfy federal requirements

He said San Rafael and Novato want to conduct their own surveys, Ross is not interested, and Corte Madera has given no definite answer. But the other cities are willing to go along.

The new survey will start about the first of March to identify housing areas that have a higher rate of substandard housing than the community at large.

A state law enacted by the 1968 Legislature requires that local general plans have "a housing element consisting of standards and plans for the improvement of housing and for provision of adequate sites for housing."

"We didn't dream this up," said Solnit. "Last year, when the county parks and recreation department applied for state money to buy Mc Nears Beach, we got a letter saying we're in violation of state requirements because we don't have this housing element." He said Marin got the funds for Mc Nears Beach by assuring the state we would make this survey.

The state will supply an experienced building inspector to train the surveyors. After training, the surveyors will walk through areas in cities and the unincorporated areas where housing deterioration appears greatest

They will not look for technical code violations such as fire walls or plumbing. They will check exterior appearances such as lack of paint, sagging foundations and porches, broken or boarded windows, and other conditions of general deterioration.

"This information will then help the county and cities recognize where we've got areas that probably need help in rehabilitation," said Solnit. "The state says we've got to amend general plans and show where housing needs to be improved."

Solnit said Novato and San Rafael will assign their own men to conduct surveys in their cities. The county planning department will assign one man and hire another man temporarily for the six-week survey in March and April. The cost of temporary employees will come from the $11,000 budgeted for housing in the city-county planning council budget.

Solnit said the information gathered in the survey will be confidential, and no individual building will be pinpointed as needing improvement

Defense Rejects Proxmire's Figure

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Pentagon has denied charges by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., that it spent $7 billion last fiscal year for military aid to foreign countries. It said the figure was about $2.9 billion.

Proxmire charged earlier this month the Defense Department did not really know how much it was spending for military assistance overseas.

Taxed Sales Rise 2.5%: Inflation

Although sales of taxable items rose about 2.5 per cent in Marin County during the third quarter of 1970 as compared with the same period in 1969, the rise was apparently due to inflation.

In fact, inflation rose 5 per cent in Sept. 1970 over the previous September, according to State Board of Equalization officials.

Marinites, like residents in the rest of the state, continued to pay more for less, according to William M. Bennett of Kentfield, member of the state board.

Total sales in Marin of taxable items for the third quarter of 1970 were $88,155,000. The total for the same three months in 1970 was $85,957,000.

Total sales for the large Marin cities and Petaluma for the third quarter of 1970 were:

Corte Madera, $500,000; Novato, $368,000; Petaluma, $507,000; San Rafael, $36,390,000. Comparative figures for 1969 were not given.

Smog Controllers Agree To Challenge Exemptions

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials yesterday firmly rejected appeals from Sonoma, Napa and Solano counties for special treatment when the three come under their jurisdiction.

The six-county Bay Area Air Pollution Control District last year won a 15-year battle to annex the three northern counties, effective next July 1.

The 1970 law, however, provided a partial escape by allowing each of the three new counties to ask the state air resources board to exempt portions of their territory from the district. Solano and Sonoma supervisors already have asked to exempt the northeastern half of their territory, which falls in the Sacramento valley area.

District directors unanimously agreed yesterday to challenge the exemption moves before the Air Resources Board, each citing federal, state and district data showing the Bay Area's air pollution comes from sources throughout the nine counties

Even in northeastern Solano, the district's staff reported, winds blow contaminants into the Bay Area 22 per cent of the time, largely in winter when agricultural burning is at its height.

Solano County Administrator David Balmer assured district directors that the exemption move was "not an attempt to escape the consequences of air pollution regulation" He acknowledged, however, that the county hoped its northeastern half would fall into an air pollution control district with "different" regulations

Napa Supervisor Joseph G Peatman said his county did not intend to seek an exemption of territory.

Surgeons Jailed

ROME (UPI) —A court sentenced three Rome hospital surgeons to three months in jail Friday for leaving a pair of pincers in the abdomen of an 80-year-old woman on whom they operated. A later operation to remove the pincers was held by the prosecution to be a contributing cause of the woman's death in 1964.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

The Business Of Drinking

Besides possible death, injury, jail, or loss of a driver's license, the drunk driver faces many other consequences. Take Ron Rummy, a successful business man, for instance: After a business meeting and after too many drinks, Ron died when his car crashed into the center road divider. Right afterwards, another motorist was badly hurt when he crashed into Ron's wrecked car.

Ron's widow Molly, inherited Ron's problems: (1) the motorist sued Ron's estate and collected a big judgment, and (2) Ron's life insurance company would not pay Molly on his policies.

Why? The life policy said that the company would pay no claim if Ron was killed "while committing a felony." Molly had to sue.

What was the problem? In driving while drunk Ron had injured another person. Had he lived the court would have tried and found him guilty of a felony. But the court ruled that since Ron died before the other driver came along, he could not have committed a felony since a dead man cannot be found guilty of anything.

Hence Molly got the insurance money.

Another company's policy said that it shall "not be liable for any loss to which a contributing cause was the insured's commission of a felony." A head-on crash killed the intoxicated insured driver while he drove on the wrong side of the road. The crash killed the other driver also.

The court ruled the company didn't have to pay on the policy since the insured was the "contributing cause" to the commission of a felony. There need not be a showing that the insured was in fact guilty of a felony, only that he contributed to its commission.

Other policies may stop payment if a "violation of law" caused the death.

Another policy said it would pay for any "accidental injury." But what is accidental? The insured's drinking has caused his stomach disorder. He choked to death while eating something to calm his stomach. Was the death accidental, that is, forseeable and not voluntary? No, said a court, and the insurance company had to pay. Had the insured suffered this way before, and could have expected the choking, if he still had drunk too much, the death would not have been an accident. (Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.)

Ankle Is Sprained In Cycle Accident

Reese A. Velarde, 16, of 27 Rowland Avenue, San Anselmo, has been treated at Marin General Hospital for a sprained right ankle sustained in a San Anselmo motorcycle accident.

Officers said today Velarde was eastbound on Red Hill Avenue near the hub intersection at 3:10 p.m. Thursday when an auto ahead of him stopped for a hitchhiker forcing young Velarde to roll his motorcycle to avoid striking the car. The auto was driven by Laurie Boyd, 17, of San Francisco.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Kidney, Hemophiliacs Can Be Treated At Home, Saving Time

Many medical procedures could be done at home if the equipment is available and a relative knows how to use it. An artificial kidney (dialysis) for home use enables the victim to lead a more normal life. Because the machine is run all night while he is sleeping, it may save him two days a week.

Doctors S. Frederick Rabiner and Margaret C. Telfer of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center (Chicago) recently reported their experiences in training families of hemophiliacs to do home transfusions. This is a step in the right direction because "bleeders" have unique problems that stem from unpredictable and serious hemorrhages demanding immediate treatment.

HOME INFUSIONS free them from frequent hospital, clinic and emergency room visits with unscheduled trips, delays in care, changing personnel, blood tests and other diagnostic procedures. When a joint is involved, bleeding may produce a deformity, but hemorrhage in the gastrointestinal tract or brain could be fatal.

Home transfusions are possible because of advances in blood plasma concentrates. Those with hemophilia A lack factor VIII. When they bleed, the antihemophilic factor (AHF) can be increased by a transfusion of cryoprecipitate or other AHF concentrates. Sixteen families volunteered for the Reese program. All reported great savings in time, particularly at night when emergency room waits had been the longest. Less expense also was involved.

WHEN BLEEDING occurred, the hospital was called and the dosage discussed with the physician. (The family reports on the patient's status the following day.) If a more serious hemorrhage exists, hospitalization is indicated.

Before home transfusions, many of the younger boys were reluctant to report hemorrhages because they did not want to be hospitalized. The program has been in effect for 18 months, but the physicians are still cautious. Many blood specialists believe that hemophiliacs should learn to give themselves home infusions.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

NORMAL LIMITS

L. T. writes: What does it mean when an electrocardiogram is "within limitations?" Does this mean my heart is normal?

REPLY

I assume your physician meant "within normal limitations." He will have to answer your question because the electrocardiogram is only part of a heart examination. Many persons with valvular defects, for example, have a normal electrocardiogram. In such instances, the cardiac abnormality is detected with the stethoscope.

LAUGH LINES

Miss Z writes: Deep laugh lines have developed at the corners of my mouth because I smile a lot. But my friends who are also gregarious don't have these lines. This is not a trifling matter, as I'm in the market for a husband. Can you tell me how to get rid of these furrows?

REPLY

As you said, this is no laughing matter. I assume your teeth are not responsible and that you are otherwise attractive and interesting. If these furrows are deep, or if this is a family characteristic, plastic surgery is your only hope. Keep smiling, however, because a face 'like 10 days rain' never got a girl to the altar.

Today's Health Hint — Fatigue and irritability often go hand in hand.

Police Appeal For $15,000 A Year

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy said Friday night policemen should get $15,000 a year.

Murphy spoke before the Council of New York Law Associations and said the police are "the front line against crime" and should be paid more than other uniformed employes—firemen and sanitationmen. Negotiations for all three groups, which have been without contracts since Dec. 31, are now going on.

Two Water Plan Bills Introduced

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Legislation to authorize two Northern California water projects has been introduced by Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif.

One bill would authorize construction of the $175 million Cosumnes River Project, including Nashville Dam and two smaller reservoirs.

The other measure would authorize the $50 million Allen camp unit of the central valley project. The project, to be located on the Pit River, would irrigate 22,000 acres in Big Valley in northwestern Lassen County and southwestern Modoc County.

Guitar Classes At Marinwood

Folk guitar classes for young people and adults will be sponsored by the Marinwood Community Service District and Terra Linda Park and Recreation District.

Young people's intermediate classes will be at 4:30 p.m. starting next Wednesday at Marinwood Community Center at 775 Miller Creek Road. A beginning class will be held at 5:20 p.m. there the same day.

A beginning class for adults will be held at 7 p.m. the same day at the Terra Linda Recreation Center at 670 Del Ganado Avenue.

Bill Steele is the instructor for all classes.

Missing Woman Hunt Called Off

Ross police have called off an extensive search for 73-year-old Evelyn H. Jones, missing since Jan. 14.

"We just have run out of ideas," Chief John F. Harris said after a week-long search that extended from Ross to Bon Tempe Lake.

Searching ended Wednesday as skindivers from the Orcas Underwater Group and the Marin Skindivers Club searched Bon Tempe lake for the body of Mrs. Jones of 22 Bridge Road, the chief said.

The sheriff's Mounted Posse and Ross police also looked Wednesday for the woman, who disappeared during an afternoon walk.

Surgeons Jailed

ROME (UPI) —A court sentenced three Rome hospital surgeons to three months in jail Friday for leaving a pair of pincers in the abdomen of an 80-year-old woman on whom they operated. A later operation to remove the pincers was held by the prosecution to be a contributing cause of the woman's death in 1964.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

The Business Of Drinking

Besides possible death, injury, jail, or loss of a driver's license, the drunk driver faces many other consequences. Take Ron Rummy, a successful business man, for instance: After a business meeting and after too many drinks, Ron died when his car crashed into the center road divider. Right afterwards, another motorist was badly hurt when he crashed into Ron's wrecked car.

Ron's widow Molly, inherited Ron's problems: (1) the motorist sued Ron's estate and collected a big judgment, and (2) Ron's life insurance company would not pay Molly on his policies.

Why? The life policy said that the company would pay no claim if Ron was killed "while committing a felony." Molly had to sue.

What was the problem? In driving while drunk Ron had injured another person. Had he lived the court would have tried and found him guilty of a felony. But the court ruled that since Ron died before the other driver came along, he could not have committed a felony since a dead man cannot be found guilty of anything.

Hence Molly got the insurance money.

Another company's policy said that it shall "not be liable for any loss to which a contributing cause was the insured's commission of a felony." A head-on crash killed the intoxicated insured driver while he drove on the wrong side of the road. The crash killed the other driver also.

The court ruled the company didn't have to pay on the policy since the insured was the "contributing cause" to the commission of a felony. There need not be a showing that the insured was in fact guilty of a felony, only that he contributed to its commission.

Other policies may stop payment if a "violation of law" caused the death.

Another policy said it would pay for any "accidental injury." But what is accidental? The insured's drinking has caused his stomach disorder. He choked to death while eating something to calm his stomach. Was the death accidental, that is, forseeable and not voluntary? No, said a court, and the insurance company had to pay. Had the insured suffered this way before, and could have expected the choking, if he still had drunk too much, the death would not have been an accident. (Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.)

Ankle Is Sprained In Cycle Accident

Reese A. Velarde, 16, of 27 Rowland Avenue, San Anselmo, has been treated at Marin General Hospital for a sprained right ankle sustained in a San Anselmo motorcycle accident.

Officers said today Velarde was eastbound on Red Hill Avenue near the hub intersection at 3:10 p.m. Thursday when an auto ahead of him stopped for a hitchhiker forcing young Velarde to roll his motorcycle to avoid striking the car. The auto was driven by Laurie Boyd, 17, of San Francisco.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Kidney, Hemophiliacs Can Be Treated At Home, Saving Time

Many medical procedures could be done at home if the equipment is available and a relative knows how to use it. An artificial kidney (dialysis) for home use enables the victim to lead a more normal life. Because the machine is run all night while he is sleeping, it may save him two days a week.

Doctors S. Frederick Rabiner and Margaret C. Telfer of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center (Chicago) recently reported their experiences in training families of hemophiliacs to do home transfusions. This is a step in the right direction because "bleeders" have unique problems that stem from unpredictable and serious hemorrhages demanding immediate treatment.

HOME INFUSIONS free them from frequent hospital, clinic and emergency room visits with unscheduled trips, delays in care, changing personnel, blood tests and other diagnostic procedures. When a joint is involved, bleeding may produce a deformity, but hemorrhage in the gastrointestinal tract or brain could be fatal.

Home transfusions are possible because of advances in blood plasma concentrates. Those with hemophilia A lack factor VIII. When they bleed, the antihemophilic factor (AHF) can be increased by a transfusion of cryoprecipitate or other AHF concentrates. Sixteen families volunteered for the Reese program. All reported great savings in time, particularly at night when emergency room waits had been the longest. Less expense also was involved.

WHEN BLEEDING occurred, the hospital was called and the dosage discussed with the physician. (The family reports on the patient's status the following day.) If a more serious hemorrhage exists, hospitalization is indicated.

Before home transfusions, many of the younger boys were reluctant to report hemorrhages because they did not want to be hospitalized. The program has been in effect for 18 months, but the physicians are still cautious. Many blood specialists believe that hemophiliacs should learn to give themselves home infusions.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

NORMAL LIMITS

L. T. writes: What does it mean when an electrocardiogram is "within limitations?" Does this mean my heart is normal?

REPLY

I assume your physician meant "within normal limitations." He will have to answer your question because the electrocardiogram is only part of a heart examination. Many persons with valvular defects, for example, have a normal electrocardiogram. In such instances, the cardiac abnormality is detected with the stethoscope.

LAUGH LINES

Miss Z writes: Deep laugh lines have developed at the corners of my mouth because I smile a lot. But my friends who are also gregarious don't have these lines. This is not a trifling matter, as I'm in the market for a husband. Can you tell me how to get rid of these furrows?

REPLY

As you said, this is no laughing matter. I assume your teeth are not responsible and that you are otherwise attractive and interesting. If these furrows are deep, or if this is a family characteristic, plastic surgery is your only hope. Keep smiling, however, because a face 'like 10 days rain' never got a girl to the altar.

Today's Health Hint — Fatigue and irritability often go hand in hand.

Police Appeal For $15,000 A Year

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy said Friday night policemen should get $15,000 a year.

Murphy spoke before the Council of New York Law Associations and said the police are "the front line against crime" and should be paid more than other uniformed employes—firemen and sanitationmen. Negotiations for all three groups, which have been without contracts since Dec. 31, are now going on.

Two Water Plan Bills Introduced

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Legislation to authorize two Northern California water projects has been introduced by Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif.

One bill would authorize construction of the $175 million Cosumnes River Project, including Nashville Dam and two smaller reservoirs.

The other measure would authorize the $50 million Allen camp unit of the central valley project. The project, to be located on the Pit River, would irrigate 22,000 acres in Big Valley in northwestern Lassen County and southwestern Modoc County.

Guitar Classes At Marinwood

Folk guitar classes for young people and adults will be sponsored by the Marinwood Community Service District and Terra Linda Park and Recreation District.

Young people's intermediate classes will be at 4:30 p.m. starting next Wednesday at Marinwood Community Center at 775 Miller Creek Road. A beginning class will be held at 5:20 p.m. there the same day.

A beginning class for adults will be held at 7 p.m. the same day at the Terra Linda Recreation Center at 670 Del Ganado Avenue.

Bill Steele is the instructor for all classes.

Missing Woman Hunt Called Off

Ross police have called off an extensive search for 73-year-old Evelyn H. Jones, missing since Jan. 14.

"We just have run out of ideas," Chief John F. Harris said after a week-long search that extended from Ross to Bon Tempe Lake.

Searching ended Wednesday as skindivers from the Orcas Underwater Group and the Marin Skindivers Club searched Bon Tempe lake for the body of Mrs. Jones of 22 Bridge Road, the chief said.

The sheriff's Mounted Posse and Ross police also looked Wednesday for the woman, who disappeared during an afternoon walk.

CONTEMPORARY STYLE 'SKIERS ONLY' SERVICE

Pray on Thursday and ski on Sunday?

Not a bad idea, said some slope enthusiasts, so Rev. J. Dale Nystrom of Lucas Valley Community Church is offering a "skiers only" contemporary folk music worship service on Thursdays at 7:30 p.m.

Features of the mid-week services, according to Nystrom, who is a skier himself, include a brief worship service in the chapel followed by a coffee hour with ski films or talks by Bay Area ski leaders.

Assisting in services next month will be Yohann Anderson, a skier who is also a music composer, guitarist and director of the inter-denominational Marin chapter of Young Life.

A SQUARE'S BLESSING

An Amen! To A Rock Album

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

The enthusiastic approval of a middle-aged square is probably the last thing desired by the composers of a rock opera.

So I hope Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice will forgive me for saying that I think their new record album, "Jesus Christ Superstar" (Decca), is a great contribution to the task of making the Christian gospel meaningful to today's young people.

Some guardians of orthodoxy may take offense at the driving rhythms of the music and the breezy language of the libretto put together by these talented young Englishmen. Others will protest the opera's omission of any explicit affirmation of Christ's divinity or any reference to his resurrection.

They should remember that this opera was not written for people who are already secure in a traditional faith. It is aimed at —and is being warmly received by —millions of young people who are turned off by the Church, baffled by the metaphysics of the ancient creeds, suspicious of all ideas which the Establishment tries too hard to sell.

The Jesus who speaks or sings in this opera does not use the Elizabethan English of the King James Bible. But neither did the real Jesus. He addressed the people of his time in their own language — the everyday Aramaic of the Jerusalem streets. In "Jesus Christ Superstar" he addresses the young people of our time in their language.

Thus we hear him pleading with God in the Garden of Gethesemane shortly before his arrest:

"Why should I die?

"Can you show me now that I would not be killed in vain?

"Show me there's a reason for your wanting me to die.

"You're far too keen on where and how, and not so hot on why!"

And then, in the next breath:

"Alright I'll die! Just watch me die! See how I die!"

The words are different, but they convey the same impression as the gospels. Jesus is gripped by a very human agony of apprehension which he finally overcomes by a magnificent act of obedience-unto-death.

As the title indicates, "Jesus Christ Superstar" depicts Jesus as a popular hero who was "at the top of the poll" until the Establishment decided he was a dangerous rabble rouser who had to be put down. Judas emerges not as the conventional deep-dyed villain but as a more subtle and complex character —a social liberal who betrays Jesus because Jesus won't do things the "right way." The most moving character in the opera, perhaps, is Mary Magdalene, as a reformed prostitute who loves Jesus with a holy awe that is far more passionate in its intensity than any of the carnal loves of her past.

Although Webber and Rice (wisely in my opinion) never try to cram Christian dogman down the listener's throat, the libretto makes clear, in a far more effective way, the impact which Jesus had on people and their lives. This is precisely the method employed by the gospel writers to show that Jesus was no ordinary man.

The four-side album ends with Jesus' last cry from the cross:

"Father, into your hands I commend my spirit."

I do not see how anyone whose emotions have been engaged by the opera can reach this point without feeling in his heart that God did vindicate Jesus' faith. And that is, of course, the point of the resurrection story.

If your teen-agers balk at going to Sunday School or reading the New Testament, buy them this album.

It is more likely to draw them to Christ than a thousand conventional services.

Interesting Survey On Pastor Pay

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women are more liberal than men when it comes to demanding their clergymen should get involved in controversial issues of the day, but not as liberal as men in the matter of pastors' salaries, according to a nationwide survey of Episcopal laymen.

The findings were disclosed by the Episcopal Church Foundation, which sent questionnaires to Episcopal men and women throughout the country to learn what kind of clergymen they believe will best serve their parishes in the future.

The issues on which both sexes endorsed clergy participation the most was urban problems. Working with minorities and joining the war on poverty were other areas of participation in which the women favored more direct action than the men.

In the two-part question of what a rector's annual salary will be and should be in 1975 women replied "will be $12,582, should be $15,171" while the men estimated $13,581 and $16,331. These totals varied with the size of the parish.

The foundation is an organization of laymen that supports work of the church.

Lutherans Plan Session In Tokyo

GENEVA (LWF) — A special study consultation on "The Mission of the Church in an Ecumenical Context" will be held in Tokyo, April 29-May 4, 1971, immediately prior to a week-long meeting of the Lutheran World Federation's new Commission on Church Cooperation.

Church Cooperation is one of the LWF's three commissions formed in a restructuring of the international organization approved in December 1969 by the federation Executive Committee.

Also formed in the consolidation of seven former commissions and various related offices were Commissions on Studies and World Service. The studies commission also held its first sessions here early in November.

According to Church Cooperation Department Director Carl-Johan Hellberg, the Japan consultation will carry forward some of the traditions of former enlarged meetings of the previous Commission on World Mission (CWM).

Asian and African churches requested the Far East meeting on the specified theme at the last CWM session in July 1970, the director said.

He also pointed out that in addition to representatives of African and Asian churches, the consultation would provide a forum for missionary societies and supporting agencies and include participation by members of Latin American and Eastern European Lutheran churches.

In this connection, Dr. Hellberg pointed out that Latin American Lutheran churches are planning a Fifth Latin American Lutheran Conference, probably in Argentina in July 1971, which the LWF commission will support and that it also is anticipated that the federation will continue its sponsorship of conferences of Eastern European Lutheran minority bodies.

Preparation of the consultation, the director added, will be in cooperation with the federation's Department of Studies.

Parish Meeting Is Scheduled Tomorrow

The sixth annual parish meeting of St. Francis of Assisi Episcopal Church in Novato will be helf following tomorrow's 10 a.m. service.

The business meeting is scheduled to start at 11:15 a.m. with election of vestrymen as well as delegates and alternates to annual diocesan convention and deanery convocation.

Series Of Sermons To Start Wednesday

A series of sermons will be presented at the Church of Christ in Novato, Wednesday through next Sunday. Guest speaker will be Warren R. Cheatham, of the Miller Avenue Church of Christ in San Jose.

The nightly meetings will be at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday at 9:45 and 10:45 a.m. and at 6 p.m.

World Missions Week To Open Tuesday At Golden Gate Seminary

Director of the Audience Response Division of the Southern Baptist Convention Radio and Television Commission will join with three other top Baptist missions personalities as speakers during World Missions week — Tuesday through Friday — at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, at Strawberry.

J. P. Allen, of Fort Worth, Tex., will speak on the missions week theme of "Freedom Now," at 9:40 a.m., Tuesday in John A. Broadus Hall Chapel.

PAST CHAIRMAN

Dr. John Claypool, past chairman of the SBC's Christian Life Commission, will be the key speaker, Wednesday. Claypool, a Lousiville, Ky., pastor and president of the Kentucky Baptist Convention, will speak at 9:50 a.m. in the chapel, with dialogue to follow in Room 210, Academic Building.

Speaker for Thursday will be Bob Tremaine, director of the Greater Worcester, Mass. Baptist Ministries, an inner-city evangelistic missions work. Tremaine's talk will begin at 9:40 a.m. in the chapel.

Ed Seabough and W. L. (Wimpy) Smith, associate secretaries for missionary personnel for the SBC Home Mission and Foreign Mission boards, respectively, will lead in a "Missions Commitment Day," at 9:40 a.m., Friday, January 29, in the chapel. The public is invited to attend the four-day series of chapel talks.

STUDENT CONFERENCE

The series will precede the Golden Gate Mission Conference, to be held on the campus, Friday through Sunday. The conference is expected to draw 300 college and seminary-age young people from 10 western states.

Speakers for the conference will include Claypool, Seabough, Smith, Tremaine, Milton Hughes, consultant on campus evangelism, Student Department, Southern Baptist Conference as well as Claypool, Seabough, Smith, and Tremaine.

The conference will stress opportunities for missions efforts on the home and foreign fields, in the inner-city, the college and university campuses, the mass media and other areas of service open to Christian young adults.

Special music will be provided by the Trouveres, a group of 30 singers from the California Baptist College in Riverside.

Second Woman Is Ordained Minister

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The 2,560,000-member American Lutheran Church has ordained its first woman minister. She is Miss Barbara Andrews, 35, a victim of cerebral palsy who works from a wheelchair.

Miss Andrews is the second woman in North America to be ordained into the Lutheran ministry.

The first was ordained in November in Baltimore by the nation's largest Lutheran body, the Lutheran Church in America.

Self-Help Sessions At Church

Recovery, Inc., a systematic method of self-help after-care is being sponsored by Lucas Valley Community Church on Mondays at 8 p.m. on a non-fee basis.

Rev. J. Dale Nystrom, pastor, said the sessions are a realization of five years in searching to find a qualified organization to offer such a program.

"The need for therapeutic attention is everywhere around us, but the cost of group therapy sessions is frequently prohibitive for those who may suffer the most. Even in Marin County cost is a decided factor for many in refusal for help."

Recovery, Inc., was founded in 1937 in Chicago by Dr. Abraham Low, a psychiatrist. Its purpose is to prevent relapses in former mental patients and to forestall chronicity in nervous patients.

Methods and techniques are presented by trained leaders, drawn from group membership, who serve on a voluntary basis, Nystrom said.

Two New Ones

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Paramount Studios began production on two new television pilot projects, "Escape," a 90-minute adventure drama starring Chris George, and "Funny Face" starring Sandy Duncan.

Flying Missionary Will Speak

A flying missionary who has experienced first hand the terrors of revolution and insurrection in the Congo, will speak at a potluck dinner meeting at the United Methodist Church of Mill Valley, Camino Alto at Sycamore, on Feb. 2.

Rev. Kenneth D. Enright, a United Methodist missionary who has worked in the Congo since 1950, is presently home on furlough from work as an evangelistic missionary there.

When civil war broke out after the Congo received its independence, Enright piloted a small plane belonging to the mission. For mission personnel in some of the remote areas, the plane was the only means of escape to the cities when fighting neared their mission stations.

For the past five years Enright has been assigned to the Kafekumba District of the Congo where mission work includes schools, churches, evangelistic work, hospitals and medical dispensaries. Leadership in the work, particularly the schools and churches, is now predominantly in the hands of the Congolese.

Bank Of Marin's Income Up 14 Pct.

Bank of Marin 1970 consolidated income has been reported at $393,364, equivalent to $3.39 per share, up 14 per cent from 1969.

Total consolidated resources as of Dec. 31 were $55,868,364, an increase of 22 per cent over the previous year. Dividends of $1 per share and 25 cents per share were paid in January and October of last year. Directors have announced their intention of going on a 25 cents per quarter dividend basis.

Tabernacle Called An Engineering Feat

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The world-famous Mormon Tabernacle was built in 1863 and is today considered a remarkable work of engineering.

Its most distinctive feature is the self-supporting wooden roof which rests upon pillars of red sandstone spaced 12 feet apart. The pillars support wooden arches which are 10 feet thick and span 150 feet.

Not a bad idea, said some slope enthusiasts, so Rev. J. Dale Nystrom of Lucas Valley Community Church is offering a "skiers only" contemporary folk music worship service on Thursdays at 7:30 p.m.

Features of the mid-week services, according to Nystrom, who is a skier himself, include a brief worship service in the chapel followed by a coffee hour with ski films or talks by Bay Area ski leaders.

Assisting in services next month will be Yohann Anderson, a skier who is also a music composer, guitarist and director of the inter-denominational Marin chapter of Young Life.

A SQUARE'S BLESSING

An Amen! To A Rock Album

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

The enthusiastic approval of a middle-aged square is probably the last thing desired by the composers of a rock opera.

So I hope Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice will forgive me for saying that I think their new record album, "Jesus Christ Superstar" (Decca), is a great contribution to the task of making the Christian gospel meaningful to today's young people.

Some guardians of orthodoxy may take offense at the driving rhythms of the music and the breezy language of the libretto put together by these talented young Englishmen. Others will protest the opera's omission of any explicit affirmation of Christ's divinity or any reference to his resurrection.

They should remember that this opera was not written for people who are already secure in a traditional faith. It is aimed at —and is being warmly received by —millions of young people who are turned off by the Church, baffled by the metaphysics of the ancient creeds, suspicious of all ideas which the Establishment tries too hard to sell.

The Jesus who speaks or sings in this opera does not use the Elizabethan English of the King James Bible. But neither did the real Jesus. He addressed the people of his time in their own language — the everyday Aramaic of the Jerusalem streets. In "Jesus Christ Superstar" he addresses the young people of our time in their language.

Thus we hear him pleading with God in the Garden of Gethesemane shortly before his arrest:

"Why should I die?

"Can you show me now that I would not be killed in vain?

"Show me there's a reason for your wanting me to die.

"You're far too keen on where and how, and not so hot on why!"

And then, in the next breath:

"Alright I'll die! Just watch me die! See how I die!"

The words are different, but they convey the same impression as the gospels. Jesus is gripped by a very human agony of apprehension which he finally overcomes by a magnificent act of obedience-unto-death.

As the title indicates, "Jesus Christ Superstar" depicts Jesus as a popular hero who was "at the top of the poll" until the Establishment decided he was a dangerous rabble rouser who had to be put down. Judas emerges not as the conventional deep-dyed villain but as a more subtle and complex character —a social liberal who betrays Jesus because Jesus won't do things the "right way." The most moving character in the opera, perhaps, is Mary Magdalene, as a reformed prostitute who loves Jesus with a holy awe that is far more passionate in its intensity than any of the carnal loves of her past.

Although Webber and Rice (wisely in my opinion) never try to cram Christian dogman down the listener's throat, the libretto makes clear, in a far more effective way, the impact which Jesus had on people and their lives. This is precisely the method employed by the gospel writers to show that Jesus was no ordinary man.

The four-side album ends with Jesus' last cry from the cross:

"Father, into your hands I commend my spirit."

I do not see how anyone whose emotions have been engaged by the opera can reach this point without feeling in his heart that God did vindicate Jesus' faith. And that is, of course, the point of the resurrection story.

If your teen-agers balk at going to Sunday School or reading the New Testament, buy them this album.

It is more likely to draw them to Christ than a thousand conventional services.

Interesting Survey On Pastor Pay

NEW YORK (UPI)—Women are more liberal than men when it comes to demanding their clergymen should get involved in controversial issues of the day, but not as liberal as men in the matter of pastors' salaries, according to a nationwide survey of Episcopal laymen.

The findings were disclosed by the Episcopal Church Foundation, which sent questionnaires to Episcopal men and women throughout the country to learn what kind of clergymen they believe will best serve their parishes in the future.

The issues on which both sexes endorsed clergy participation the most was urban problems. Working with minorities and joining the war on poverty were other areas of participation in which the women favored more direct action than the men.

In the two-part question of what a rector's annual salary will be and should be in 1975 women replied "will be $12,582, should be $15,171" while the men estimated $13,581 and $16,331. These totals varied with the size of the parish.

The foundation is an organization of laymen that supports work of the church.

Lutherans Plan Session In Tokyo

GENEVA (LWF) — A special study consultation on "The Mission of the Church in an Ecumenical Context" will be held in Tokyo, April 29-May 4, 1971, immediately prior to a week-long meeting of the Lutheran World Federation's new Commission on Church Cooperation.

Church Cooperation is one of the LWF's three commissions formed in a restructuring of the international organization approved in December 1969 by the federation Executive Committee.

Also formed in the consolidation of seven former commissions and various related offices were Commissions on Studies and World Service. The studies commission also held its first sessions here early in November.

According to Church Cooperation Department Director Carl-Johan Hellberg, the Japan consultation will carry forward some of the traditions of former enlarged meetings of the previous Commission on World Mission (CWM).

Asian and African churches requested the Far East meeting on the specified theme at the last CWM session in July 1970, the director said.

He also pointed out that in addition to representatives of African and Asian churches, the consultation would provide a forum for missionary societies and supporting agencies and include participation by members of Latin American and Eastern European Lutheran churches.

In this connection, Dr. Hellberg pointed out that Latin American Lutheran churches are planning a Fifth Latin American Lutheran Conference, probably in Argentina in July 1971, which the LWF commission will support and that it also is anticipated that the federation will continue its sponsorship of conferences of Eastern European Lutheran minority bodies.

Preparation of the consultation, the director added, will be in cooperation with the federation's Department of Studies.

Parish Meeting Is Scheduled Tomorrow

The sixth annual parish meeting of St. Francis of Assisi Episcopal Church in Novato will be helf following tomorrow's 10 a.m. service.

The business meeting is scheduled to start at 11:15 a.m. with election of vestrymen as well as delegates and alternates to annual diocesan convention and deanery convocation.

Series Of Sermons To Start Wednesday

A series of sermons will be presented at the Church of Christ in Novato, Wednesday through next Sunday. Guest speaker will be Warren R. Cheatham, of the Miller Avenue Church of Christ in San Jose.

The nightly meetings will be at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday at 9:45 and 10:45 a.m. and at 6 p.m.

World Missions Week To Open Tuesday At Golden Gate Seminary

Director of the Audience Response Division of the Southern Baptist Convention Radio and Television Commission will join with three other top Baptist missions personalities as speakers during World Missions week — Tuesday through Friday — at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, at Strawberry.

J. P. Allen, of Fort Worth, Tex., will speak on the missions week theme of "Freedom Now," at 9:40 a.m., Tuesday in John A. Broadus Hall Chapel.

PAST CHAIRMAN

Dr. John Claypool, past chairman of the SBC's Christian Life Commission, will be the key speaker, Wednesday. Claypool, a Lousiville, Ky., pastor and president of the Kentucky Baptist Convention, will speak at 9:50 a.m. in the chapel, with dialogue to follow in Room 210, Academic Building.

Speaker for Thursday will be Bob Tremaine, director of the Greater Worcester, Mass. Baptist Ministries, an inner-city evangelistic missions work. Tremaine's talk will begin at 9:40 a.m. in the chapel.

Ed Seabough and W. L. (Wimpy) Smith, associate secretaries for missionary personnel for the SBC Home Mission and Foreign Mission boards, respectively, will lead in a "Missions Commitment Day," at 9:40 a.m., Friday, January 29, in the chapel. The public is invited to attend the four-day series of chapel talks.

STUDENT CONFERENCE

The series will precede the Golden Gate Mission Conference, to be held on the campus, Friday through Sunday. The conference is expected to draw 300 college and seminary-age young people from 10 western states.

Speakers for the conference will include Claypool, Seabough, Smith, Tremaine, Milton Hughes, consultant on campus evangelism, Student Department, Southern Baptist Conference as well as Claypool, Seabough, Smith, and Tremaine.

The conference will stress opportunities for missions efforts on the home and foreign fields, in the inner-city, the college and university campuses, the mass media and other areas of service open to Christian young adults.

Special music will be provided by the Trouveres, a group of 30 singers from the California Baptist College in Riverside.

Second Woman Is Ordained Minister

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The 2,560,000-member American Lutheran Church has ordained its first woman minister. She is Miss Barbara Andrews, 35, a victim of cerebral palsy who works from a wheelchair.

Miss Andrews is the second woman in North America to be ordained into the Lutheran ministry.

The first was ordained in November in Baltimore by the nation's largest Lutheran body, the Lutheran Church in America.

Self-Help Sessions At Church

Recovery, Inc., a systematic method of self-help after-care is being sponsored by Lucas Valley Community Church on Mondays at 8 p.m. on a non-fee basis.

Rev. J. Dale Nystrom, pastor, said the sessions are a realization of five years in searching to find a qualified organization to offer such a program.

"The need for therapeutic attention is everywhere around us, but the cost of group therapy sessions is frequently prohibitive for those who may suffer the most. Even in Marin County cost is a decided factor for many in refusal for help."

Recovery, Inc., was founded in 1937 in Chicago by Dr. Abraham Low, a psychiatrist. Its purpose is to prevent relapses in former mental patients and to forestall chronicity in nervous patients.

Methods and techniques are presented by trained leaders, drawn from group membership, who serve on a voluntary basis, Nystrom said.

Two New Ones

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Paramount Studios began production on two new television pilot projects, "Escape," a 90-minute adventure drama starring Chris George, and "Funny Face" starring Sandy Duncan.

Flying Missionary Will Speak

A flying missionary who has experienced first hand the terrors of revolution and insurrection in the Congo, will speak at a potluck dinner meeting at the United Methodist Church of Mill Valley, Camino Alto at Sycamore, on Feb. 2.

Rev. Kenneth D. Enright, a United Methodist missionary who has worked in the Congo since 1950, is presently home on furlough from work as an evangelistic missionary there.

When civil war broke out after the Congo received its independence, Enright piloted a small plane belonging to the mission. For mission personnel in some of the remote areas, the plane was the only means of escape to the cities when fighting neared their mission stations.

For the past five years Enright has been assigned to the Kafekumba District of the Congo where mission work includes schools, churches, evangelistic work, hospitals and medical dispensaries. Leadership in the work, particularly the schools and churches, is now predominantly in the hands of the Congolese.

Bank Of Marin's Income Up 14 Pct.

Bank of Marin 1970 consolidated income has been reported at $393,364, equivalent to $3.39 per share, up 14 per cent from 1969.

Total consolidated resources as of Dec. 31 were $55,868,364, an increase of 22 per cent over the previous year. Dividends of $1 per share and 25 cents per share were paid in January and October of last year. Directors have announced their intention of going on a 25 cents per quarter dividend basis.

Tabernacle Called An Engineering Feat

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The world-famous Mormon Tabernacle was built in 1863 and is today considered a remarkable work of engineering.

Its most distinctive feature is the self-supporting wooden roof which rests upon pillars of red sandstone spaced 12 feet apart. The pillars support wooden arches which are 10 feet thick and span 150 feet.

"Do I have to have a reason."

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Jan. 23, the 23rd day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Venus. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American Patriot John Hancock was born Jan. 23, 1737.

On this day in history:

In 1845 Congress ruled that all national elections shall take place on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November.

In 1937 it was announced that 17 communists confessed they had conspired with Leon Trotsky to undermine the regime of Josef Stalin.

In 1969 a tornado killed 29 persons and left hundreds injured at Hazlehurst, Miss. A thought for today: American author James Fields said, "How sweet and gracious, even in common speech, is that fine sense which men call courtesy."

Innocent Plea To Pot Charge

Jerry R. Wade, 20, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of posessing marijuana. Preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 9.

Wade was arrested Jan. 3 after a Marin City resident told San Rafael police that he had hit her. Police said they found what appeared to be a marijuana cigarette in Wade's jacket.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

An Unusual Discard May Stop Bid Of Six Spades

Everybody knows that an ace is higher than a deuce. If you have to discard on an opponent's trump, you would normally throw the duece rather than an ace. After this beginning, you know that you're about to look at a case in which you should prefer to throw the ace.

WEST SWITCHES

West led the king of diamonds, winning the first trick. West switched to the ace of clubs, and South ruffed. South then proceeded to lead out all of his trumps. When South led his last trump, East had the ace of diamonds and four hearts and had to choose one more discard.

Since East was an inexperienced player, he discarded the deuce of hearts. South thereupon led out three top hearts and won the last trick with the ten of hearts. East's unwillingness to discard the ace of diamonds cost him 1,530 points.

TWO MISTAKES

Since West had opened the king of diamonds, it was clear that West also had the queen of diamonds. It was therefore unnecessary for East to hold the ace of diamonds; West still had the queen and could guard the suit. Only East could guard the hearts.

It's easy to see East's mistake, but he would not have been in this position if South hadn't made a mistake first.

After ruffing the ace of clubs, South should draw one round of trumps. Then he should lead out top hearts. If the jack drops, South can draw the last trump. If the jack doesn't drop, South must hope that the defender with the last trump also has the jack of hearts.

THREE TOP HEARTS

If so, South can get by with three top hearts and then ruff the ten of hearts with dummy's remaining trump.

As the cards lie, this plan would work. South would make the slam by his own efforts instead of with the help of the enemy.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- 8 6
♥- J 9 7 2
♦- A 10 9 3
♣- K J 5.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 3-no-trump. The jump is necessary, since a response of 2-no-trump would be negative, showing a very weak hand. The positive response promises about 1½ quick tricks, or about an ace and a king as a minimum.

Warrant Issued

A bench warrant has been issued for Thomas Keith Flynn, 38, of Mill Valley, who is charged with stealing a car in Mill Valley Dec. 5.

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Jan. 23, the 23rd day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Venus. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American Patriot John Hancock was born Jan. 23, 1737.

On this day in history:

In 1845 Congress ruled that all national elections shall take place on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November.

In 1937 it was announced that 17 communists confessed they had conspired with Leon Trotsky to undermine the regime of Josef Stalin.

In 1969 a tornado killed 29 persons and left hundreds injured at Hazlehurst, Miss. A thought for today: American author James Fields said, "How sweet and gracious, even in common speech, is that fine sense which men call courtesy."

Innocent Plea To Pot Charge

Jerry R. Wade, 20, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of posessing marijuana. Preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 9.

Wade was arrested Jan. 3 after a Marin City resident told San Rafael police that he had hit her. Police said they found what appeared to be a marijuana cigarette in Wade's jacket.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

An Unusual Discard May Stop Bid Of Six Spades

Everybody knows that an ace is higher than a deuce. If you have to discard on an opponent's trump, you would normally throw the duece rather than an ace. After this beginning, you know that you're about to look at a case in which you should prefer to throw the ace.

Opening lead — ◇ K

WEST SWITCHES

West led the king of diamonds, winning the first trick. West switched to the ace of clubs, and South ruffed. South then proceeded to lead out all of his trumps. When South led his last trump, East had the ace of diamonds and four hearts and had to choose one more discard.

Since East was an inexperienced player, he discarded the deuce of hearts. South thereupon led out three top hearts and won the last trick with the ten of hearts. East's unwillingness to discard the ace of diamonds cost him 1,530 points.

TWO MISTAKES

Since West had opened the king of diamonds, it was clear that West also had the queen of diamonds. It was therefore unnecessary for East to hold the ace of diamonds; West still had the queen and could guard the suit. Only East could guard the hearts.

It's easy to see East's mistake, but he would not have been in this position if South hadn't made a mistake first.

After ruffing the ace of clubs, South should draw one round of trumps. Then he should lead out top hearts. If the jack drops, South can draw the last trump. If the jack doesn't drop, South must hope that the defender with the last trump also has the jack of hearts.

THREE TOP HEARTS

If so, South can get by with three top hearts and then ruff the ten of hearts with dummy's remaining trump.

As the cards lie, this plan would work. South would make the slam by his own efforts instead of with the help of the enemy.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠- 8 6
♥- J 9 7 2
♦- A 10 9 3
♣- K J 5.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 3-no-trump. The jump is necessary, since a response of 2-no-trump would be negative, showing a very weak hand. The positive response promises about 1½ quick tricks, or about an ace and a king as a minimum.

THE EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

What Was Environment Like A Century Ago?

TODAY'S INTENSE INTEREST in our physical environment leads us to reflect on how things used to be.

While 1971 is still new, some of us are moved to wonder how it was 100 years ago.

Let us turn back the pages of history and take a look.

IN 1871, the population of San Rafael was only 876 souls. Of this total, scarcely more than 600 were considered regular, old-line residents. About 200 were Johnnie-come-latelys still regarded more as transients than permanent residents.

There were no electric lights and no telephones. Pipelines were installed and the first gas service was begun in that year of 1871.

There was a railroad to Point San Quentin, where the ferry boats arrived and departed. But the railroad was sometimes closed in winter due to high water. There were complaints about the high fares; a quarter for the train ride and a half-dollar for the ferry.

There was a rugged and circuitous wagon road to Sausalito. It had been built a few years earlier by the Sausalito Land and Ferry Co.

Although San Rafael was to be without telephone service for another decade, there was a telegraph line to San Francisco, via cable from Lime Point and Fort Point. Occasionally, the cable parted and service was disrupted for extended periods.

San Rafael's Hook and Ladder Co. was formed just 100 years ago to provide the first organized community fire protection.

THE NEED FOR a new county courthouse was evident. The old adobe structure which housed county offices in 1871 had been built for other purposes 36 years earlier.

Forward-looking Marinites voted a $60,000 bond issue for a new courthouse. Actually, when a contract was let the following year, it wound up costing only $51,000 to build. It still stands in Courthouse Square, abandoned and for sale with no takers.

San Rafael was still three years away from its incorporation as Marin's first city in 1874.

J. A. Richardson founded San Rafael's first public library in 1871. It cost $1 to join and 50 cents per month dues to qualify for using the library facilities.

Messrs. Harding and Nelson were building wagons as well as shoeing horses at their blacksmith shop.

The county agricultural commissioner recommended to the board of supervisors that a county road engineer be employed.

California's population was set at 560,000. The state had only 150,000 registered voters.

San Quentin held all 816 of the state's convicts.

The San Rafael School Board received a report from a citizen committee that "the present school building is totally inadequate for the purpose" and recommending that a new one be built at a probable cost of $3,000 to $3,500. The school board responded by placing a bond issue on the ballot — for $2,500.

A new Methodist Church was dedicated and the new Tamalpais Hotel was opened to accommodate guests.

Dairy farming was acknowledged as the chief industry of the county.

IN 1871 the Marin County Journal observed the 10th anniversary of its founding. Jerome A. Barney, the newspaper's founder, was still its editor and publisher. TheJournal, he wrote on that 10th anniversary, "now ranks as a permanent fixture in the County."

In 1971, it would seem he turned out to be right.

Of San Rafael, he wrote:

"Like a beautiful maiden sitting at the foot of her betrothed, and with wistful eyes looking into the face of him she loves; or like a devotee of knowledge gazing up the steep acclivity of the hill of science, longing for the time when he shall overcome the difficulties in his path of knowledge, or shall gain the goal of his aspirations, so nestles our beautiful San Rafael at the foot of Tamalpais — so coy and demure that a lover of the beautiful in gazing upon the scene, cannot help but admire the picture, and he is not surprised that the dwellers therein are proud of their village and its surroundings."

That's the way things were here a hundred years ago.

Jack Craemer

Those Resolutions

In the age when many young people are rebelling against the forms and rituals and alleged phoniness of contemporary society, it should not be surprising that the old institution of the New Year's resolution is fading away. Considering the noise generated by all the breaking resolutions the first few days of the new year, it is hard to imagine anyone took them seriously. If one wants to improve his character or rid himself of some bad habit, the time is now — whether it be January or July.

Since the only resolutions worthy of the name are self-generated, they do not depend upon the calendar or season. They depend upon one's realization of the need for change and improvement. It is summed up in that old-fashioned word, willpower.

Having said this, let us add one more bit of wisdom. Keep in mind that we are all heirs of Adam and Eve. It is great to dream the impossible dream, but better to make the possible resolution — whatever the time.

Those Hardy Gardeners

We see them laboring in their gardens these frosty Marin mornings. Mufflered, jacketed, gloved, seemingly oblivious to the cold, these hardy fellows are carved from the same tub of freeze-proof flesh as the members of San Francisco's famed Polar Bear Club. The latter prove their manhood with year-around daily dips in the chilling surf. The mere thought of either act is enough to make us cry out mentally for blankets and a hot toddy.

Yet, we envy them their fortitude and constitutions. This is the Spartan disposition which made America great. We think it worked by killing off us weaklings.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS — big ones, in great bunches —to the many people who dropped whatever they were doing to rush to Marin's shores during this week and assist in rescuing waterfowl trapped in the disastrous oil spill. Such wonderful people deserve to be named and praised individually, but there were far too many of them for that to be possible.

BRICKBAT to the San Rafael City Council for proposing to meet behind closed doors to discuss new salary schedules for elected officials — a plan which was cancelled when City Atty. Frederick C. Robbins advised it would be illegal.

BRICKBAT to the Air Force for its seeming intransigence regarding annoying lights shining from its Mount Tamalpais radar station. Repeatedly, residents complain of the lights, the Air Force says they will be modified to eliminate the annoyance. Yet a few months later, they are shining as before, and the complaints of residents are renewed. This is, to a degree, pollution of the environment. The Air Force should not be guilty of it.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Baddies At Top Do Most Harm

In all the complaints about the inflation crunch, why is all the anger particularly directed against the budgets on health, education and welfare? True, the welfare system is certainly lacking, and there are, no doubt, a lot of rotters on the rolls, but the amounts in which they cheat the taxpayers are peanuts compared to the various ways in which business, labor and government combine to get their money.

The costs of the Vietnam war, the space program, and the defense buildup are the top money drainers, and the HEW cost for the whole nation, local to federal, nothing compared to those budgets — we've lost more in expensive hardware by dropping it in the ocean or leaving it on the moon than we've probably spent on HEW in the last 10 years. But no one seems to complain much about that. . .

Industry takes the tax cut and goes merrily on its way reaping profits — how does steel respond to Nixon's request for help in the inflationary cycle? How many industries and government agencies are volunteering to clean up their pollution — they have to be forced to it, fighting all the way, and who still ends up paying?. . .

I have heard a business executive complain about the welfare louses, and in the next breath brag about how he uses the company expense account to pay for personal expenses, and how he sneaks off to play golf. What's the difference?. . .

One could go on and on about the stupid things the taxpayers' money goes for, but the point is that while there are baddies in the welfare system, and the system itself is rotten (the guaranteed annual income would be less expensive to the taxpayer in terms of administration, would be more logical in view of the trend of the economy, and would free social workers to really try to help people instead of doing mountains of paper work), there are also a lot of baddies in top places, and the baddies at the top do a lot more harm than the baddies at the bottom. They're just harder to see. . .

Gals Gung Ho For Cartridge Belts — Is It Part Of Women's Lib?

WASHINGTON — It could be the war or all the talk about revolution, but the latest fashion craze in the country is a cartridge belt for women.

I discovered this the other day when I went into a store to buy a present for my wife.

The salesgirl took me over to a rack where there were belts of bullets in all sizes.

"This is the latest thing in accessories," the girl said. "Your wife would love one."

"I WAS HOPING for something more in a hand grenade," I said.

"Believe me," she added, "women are just crazy about these bullets. They can wear them around their chests or around their hips or let them hang loose like this."

"You don't have anything in tear gas, do you?" I asked her.

"Now, you're not being serious," she said.

"I don't know how to tell you this," I said, "But my wife is a dove."

"ALL THE MORE reason for buying her a bullet belt," she replied. "It's better to wear bullets than to shoot them."

"But I was in the service, and I don't know anyone who wore a belt or cartridges who didn't eventually want to shoot them."

"These are dummy bullets," she said, "and all the powder's been taken out of the casings."

"But what's to prevent another store from selling powder to go with the belts?"

"NOTHING," she said, rather irritated. "But even if a store sold powder for the bullets, you would still need a machine-gun to fire them."

"What would prevent a handbag manufacturer from making a bag that could turn into a machine gun?"

"It's ridiculous," she replied. "If a handbag turned into a machine gun, all the contents in the bag would fall out."

"I never thought of that. What are you featuring in flame throwers this year?"

SHE WAS DETERMINED to sell me a cartridge belt. "Why don't you try one on and see how nice it feels?"

She threw the cartridge belt over my shoulder. "There," she said. "If you were wearing black silk pajamas, you'd look beautiful."

"Let me ask you something," I said. "Why do you think women have gone ape over cartridge belts?"

"What do you know what it's like to be a woman?" she asked bitterly.

"I didn't mean . . ."

"Do you think it's fun to be treated as a second-class citizen, to have to cook and sew and scrub and give birth to children?"

"No, I guess it isn't, but . . ."

"WE'RE PEOPLE, too," she said angrily. "And we're getting sick and tired of being sex objects."

"Please, lady!" I begged.

"We've had it up to here living in a masculine society with a masculine power structure grinding us into robots. And even when we want to wear something as simple as a belt of bullets, men laugh and make fun of us."

"OK, I'll buy it. I'll buy it," I cried. "Please give me one in size 22."

AFTER THE SALE was made, I happened to say to the floor manager, "Boy, that's a pretty uptight salesgirl you have over there."

He just smiled and said, "That's possible, but she sells more cartridge belts than anyone else in the store."

Unemployment Figure Merely Hints At Economy's Sad State

WASHINGTON — A date ringed on every official calendar in Washington is Feb. 5. On that day the Bureau of Labor Statistics is due to announce the unemployment figure for the first month of the new year.

As the figures for January are assembled, they will be as closely guarded as a top-secret military operation. So much turns on the trend in 1971. But whether the percentage of the labor force out of work is six, the level for December, or higher, as many now expect it will be, is academic. The number of persons out of work and seeking employment will be large even though under the "seasonally adjusted" formula the percentage may not reflect it.

The economy is seriously out of joint, and the approach of the Nixon administration thus far is to deal only with the shadows cast by the deep-seated causes of the dislocation.

WHEN HE announced in his "conversation" with the television interlocutors that he would ask for no new taxes, the President shut the door on remedies for inflation on the one hand and the plight of the bankrupt states and cities on the other. A tentative trial balloon was sent up for a value-added tax on manufactured goods; in effect, a sales tax. It would have taken courage to propose such a tax and real grit to try to push it through a balky Congress with Democratic majorities conditioned against such a tax or, for that matter, any new tax.

The shadow play is nowhere more transparent than in the airy talk about inflation tapering off. Inflation is still a powerful force, with new evidence each day that it can grow worse rather than better.

The striking policemen in New York, the teachers in Chicago, Pittsburgh and elsewhere all attest to the pinch of rising prices and the desperate efforts of the middle class to hold their own. The Chicago teachers' strike was settled with a pledge of salary increases adding up to $60 million. That additional money is nowhere in sight in the budget of either the city or the state.

THIS IS TO confront another Nixon pledge —revenue sharing with the states. Given the squeeze on the federal budget, with rising defense costs, it is most unlikely that Mr. Nixon can share out anything like the amounts urged by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and other state executives contemplating empty treasuries and diminishing tax returns.

Getting Big Steel to cut the price increase proposed by Bethlehem in half may have been a famous victory. But the shadow of this puppet play, which has had two previous performances during the '60s, means a lot more than the substance.

Nothing could better illustrate the recourse of monopoly industry in a declining economy. Steel is operating at an average level of around 77 per cent and profits are falling. The answer of the industry is to jack up prices by seven per cent. This is an Alice-in-Wonderland contradiction of the law of supply and demand out of classical economics.

WITHOUT STERN and courageous leadership from Washington the crazy-quilt structure of community, state and federal taxes will continue to be self-defeating. The bricks of urgently needed social reform — the family subsistence plan, the desperate state of medical costs and medical care — cannot be made without the straw of new tax revenues. A deficit cannot be shared out, since the big-city states are already only too familiar with the deficit side of the ledger.

Given the worst of all political worlds under the American system —the executive being of one party and the Congress controlled by the opposition — the intangible called leadership, whatever the volume and the caliber, may be in vain. But, no matter how tough the going, the record in 1972 should not show defeat by default.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Negotiations In Tehran Will Affect Oil Price

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Aside from the air man breaths and the food he must consume to live, probably no single commodity is as important to modern, industrialized society as oil.

Negotiations centering on Tehran, Iran, are then of more than passing interest because their outcome will go far toward determining the price world consumers will pay for this major source of energy as it flows from the gasoline pump into your automobile or from the pipeline into the family furnace.

Aligned on the one side are the world's major oil companies — notably Esso, Royal Dutch-Shell, Britsh Petroleum, Gulf, Mobil, Standard of California, Texaco and Compagnie Francaise des Petroles—and on the other the non-Communist world's oil-producing countries, operating behind a united front called the Organization of Oil Producing Countries. Primarily these are the Middle East and African nations plus Venezuela and Indonesia.

FROM THIS confrontation will come a final decision on what already is agreed will be increased taxes and royalties paid by the companies to the exporting countries.

In return the companies are demanding a five-year agreement to insure a measure of stability and guaranties against demands for retroactive payments and obligatory reinvestment of funds in the producer country.

It is a quirk of fate that this search for stability should center upon an area noted for its instability, namely, the Middle East.

But it also is noteworthy that this instability has affected least of all the oil agreements, mostly because the Arab countries do not need the oil but they do needmoney. It also is noteworthy that even though U.S. foreign policy in support of Israel has led to Arab threats, it has caused no real action against American oil firms.

ACCOMPANYING the confrontation between the oil producing countries and the companies have been two other major developments.

One is that for the first time the United States, Britain, France and the Netherlands are lending diplomatic support to efforts to keep the prices as low as possible.

Another is that France, at crisis point in its own negotiations with Algeria over exploitation and use of Sahara desert oil, has abandoned the policy of noncooperation with what the late President Charles de Gaulle regarded as an Anglo-Saxon monopoly and has joined The Hague, London and Washington in a united front.

In 1971, it would seem he turned out to be right.

Of San Rafael, he wrote:

"Like a beautiful maiden sitting at the foot of her betrothed, and with wistful eyes looking into the face of him she loves; or like a devotee of knowledge gazing up the steep acclivity of the hill of science, longing for the time when he shall overcome the difficulties in his path of knowledge, or shall gain the goal of his aspirations, so nestles our beautiful San Rafael at the foot of Tamalpais — so coy and demure that a lover of the beautiful in gazing upon the scene, cannot help but admire the picture, and he is not surprised that the dwellers there in are proud of their village and its surroundings."

That's the way things were here a hundred years ago.

Those Resolutions

In the age when many young people are rebelling against the forms and rituals and alleged phoniness of contemporary society, it should not be surprising that the old institution of the New Year's resolution is fading away. Considering the noise generated by all the breaking resolutions the first few days of the new year, it is hard to imagine anyone took them seriously. If one wants to improve his character or rid himself of some bad habit, the time is now — whether it be January or July.

Since the only resolutions worthy of the name are self-generated, they do not depend upon the calendar or season. They depend upon one's realization of the need for change and improvement. It is summed up in that old-fashioned word, willpower.

Having said this, let us add one more bit of wisdom. Keep in mind that we are all heirs of Adam and Eve. It is great to dream the impossible dream, but better to make the possible resolution — whatever the time.

Those Hardy Gardeners

We see them laboring in their gardens these frosty Marin mornings. Mufflered, jacketed, gloved, seemingly oblivious to the cold, these hardy fellows are carved from the same tub of freeze-proof flesh as the members of San Francisco's famed Polar Bear Club. The latter prove their manhood with year-around daily dips in the chilling surf. The mere thought of either act is enough to make us cry out mentally for blankets and a hot toddy.

Yet, we envy them their fortitude and constitutions. This is the Spartan disposition which made America great. We think it worked by killing off us weaklings.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS — big ones, in great bunches —to the many people who dropped whatever they were doing to rush to Marin's shores during this week and assist in rescuing waterfowl trapped in the disastrous oil spill. Such wonderful people deserve to be named and praised individually, but there were far too many of them for that to be possible.

BRICKBAT to the San Rafael City Council for proposing to meet behind closed doors to discuss new salary schedules for elected officials — a plan which was cancelled when City Atty. Frederick C. Robbins advised it would be illegal.

BRICKBAT to the Air Force for its seeming intransigence regarding annoying lights shining from its Mount Tamalpais radar station. Repeatedly, residents complain of the lights, the Air Force says they will be modified to eliminate the annoyance. Yet a few months later, they are shining as before, and the complaints of residents are renewed. This is, to a degree, pollution of the environment. The Air Force should not be guilty of it.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Baddies At Top Do Most Harm

In all the complaints about the inflation crunch, why is all the anger particularly directed against the budgets on health, education and welfare? True, the welfare system is certainly lacking, and there are, no doubt, a lot of rotters on the rolls, but the amounts in which they cheat the taxpayers are peanuts compared to the various ways in which business, labor and government combine to get their money.

The costs of the Vietnam war, the space program, and the defense buildup are the top money drainers, and the HEW cost for the whole nation, local to federal, nothing compared to those budgets — we've lost more in expensive hardware by dropping it in the ocean or leaving it on the moon than we've probably spent on HEW in the last 10 years. But no one seems to complain much about that. . .

Industry takes the tax cut and goes merrily on its way reaping profits — how does steel respond to Nixon's request for help in the inflationary cycle? How many industries and government agencies are volunteering to clean up their pollution — they have to be forced to it, fighting all the way, and who still ends up paying?. . .

I have heard a business executive complain about the welfare louses, and in the next breath brag about how he uses the company expense account to pay for personal expenses, and how he sneaks off to play golf. What's the difference?. . .

One could go on and on about the stupid things the taxpayers' money goes for, but the point is that while there are baddies in the welfare system, and the system itself is rotten (the guaranteed annual income would be less expensive to the taxpayer in terms of administration, would be more logical in view of the trend of the economy, and would free social workers to really try to help people instead of doing mountains of paper work), there are also a lot of baddies in top places, and the baddies at the top do a lot more harm than the baddies at the bottom. They're just harder to see. . .

Gals Gung Ho For Cartridge Belts — Is It Part Of Women's Lib?

WASHINGTON — It could be the war or all the talk about revolution, but the latest fashion craze in the country is a cartridge belt for women.

I discovered this the other day when I went into a store to buy a present for my wife.

The salesgirl took me over to a rack where there were belts of bullets in all sizes.

"This is the latest thing in accessories," the girl said. "Your wife would love one."

"I WAS HOPING for something more in a hand grenade," I said.

"Believe me," she added, "women are just crazy about these bullets. They can wear them around their chests or around their hips or let them hang loose like this."

"You don't have anything in tear gas, do you?" I asked her.

"Now, you're not being serious," she said.

"I don't know how to tell you this," I said, "But my wife is a dove."

"ALL THE MORE reason for buying her a bullet belt," she replied. "It's better to wear bullets than to shoot them."

"But I was in the service, and I don't know anyone who wore a belt or cartridges who didn't eventually want to shoot them."

"These are dummy bullets," she said, "and all the powder's been taken out of the casings."

"But what's to prevent another store from selling powder to go with the belts?"

"NOTHING," she said, rather irritated. "But even if a store sold powder for the bullets, you would still need a machine-gun to fire them."

"What would prevent a handbag manufacturer from making a bag that could turn into a machine gun?"

"It's ridiculous," she replied. "If a handbag turned into a machine gun, all the contents in the bag would fall out."

"I never thought of that. What are you featuring in flame throwers this year?"

SHE WAS DETERMINED to sell me a cartridge belt. "Why don't you try one on and see how nice it feels?"

She threw the cartridge belt over my shoulder. "There," she said. "If you were wearing black silk pajamas, you'd look beautiful."

"Let me ask you something," I said. "Why do you think women have gone ape over cartridge belts?"

"What do you know what it's like to be a woman?" she asked bitterly.

"I didn't mean . . ."

"Do you think it's fun to be treated as a second-class citizen, to have to cook and sew and scrub and give birth to children?"

"No, I guess it isn't, but . . ."

"WE'RE PEOPLE, too," she said angrily. "And we're getting sick and tired of being sex objects."

"Please, lady!" I begged.

"We've had it up to here living in a masculine society with a masculine power structure grinding us into robots. And even when we want to wear something as simple as a belt of bullets, men laugh and make fun of us."

"OK, I'll buy it. I'll buy it," I cried. "Please give me one in size 22."

AFTER THE SALE was made, I happened to say to the floor manager, "Boy, that's a pretty uptight salesgirl you have over there."

He just smiled and said, "That's possible, but she sells more cartridge belts than anyone else in the store."

Unemployment Figure Merely Hints At Economy's Sad State

WASHINGTON — A date ringed on every official calendar in Washington is Feb. 5. On that day the Bureau of Labor Statistics is due to announce the unemployment figure for the first month of the new year.

As the figures for January are assembled, they will be as closely guarded as a top-secret military operation. So much turns on the trend in 1971. But whether the percentage of the labor force out of work is six, the level for December, or higher, as many now expect it will be, is academic. The number of persons out of work and seeking employment will be large even though under the "seasonally adjusted" formula the percentage may not reflect it.

The economy is seriously out of joint, and the approach of the Nixon administration thus far is to deal only with the shadows cast by the deep-seated causes of the dislocation.

WHEN HE announced in his "conversation" with the television interlocutors that he would ask for no new taxes, the President shut the door on remedies for inflation on the one hand and the plight of the bankrupt states and cities on the other. A tentative trial balloon was sent up for a value-added tax on manufactured goods; in effect, a sales tax. It would have taken courage to propose such a tax and real grit to try to push it through a balky Congress with Democratic majorities conditioned against such a tax or, for that matter, any new tax.

The shadow play is nowhere more transparent than in the airy talk about inflation tapering off. Inflation is still a powerful force, with new evidence each day that it can grow worse rather than better.

The striking policemen in New York, the teachers in Chicago, Pittsburgh and elsewhere all attest to the pinch of rising prices and the desperate efforts of the middle class to hold their own. The Chicago teachers' strike was settled with a pledge of salary increases adding up to $60 million. That additional money is nowhere in sight in the budget of either the city or the state.

THIS IS TO confront another Nixon pledge —revenue sharing with the states. Given the squeeze on the federal budget, with rising defense costs, it is most unlikely that Mr. Nixon can share out anything like the amounts urged by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and other state executives contemplating empty treasuries and diminishing tax returns.

Getting Big Steel to cut the price increase proposed by Bethlehem in half may have been a famous victory. But the shadow of this puppet play, which has had two previous performances during the '60s, means a lot more than the substance.

Nothing could better illustrate the recourse of monopoly industry in a declining economy. Steel is operating at an average level of around 77 per cent and profits are falling. The answer of the industry is to jack up prices by seven per cent. This is an Alice-in-Wonderland contradiction of the law of supply and demand out of classical economics.

WITHOUT STERN and courageous leadership from Washington the crazy-quilt structure of community, state and federal taxes will continue to be self-defeating. The bricks of urgently needed social reform — the family subsistence plan, the desperate state of medical costs and medical care — cannot be made without the straw of new tax revenues. A deficit cannot be shared out, since the big-city states are already only too familiar with the deficit side of the ledger.

Given the worst of all political worlds under the American system —the executive being of one party and the Congress controlled by the opposition — the intangible called leadership, whatever the volume and the caliber, may be in vain. But, no matter how tough the going, the record in 1972 should not show defeat by default.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Negotiations In Tehran Will Affect Oil Price

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Aside from the air man breaths and the food he must consume to live, probably no single commodity is as important to modern, industrialized society as oil.

Negotiations centering on Tehran, Iran, are then of more than passing interest because their outcome will go far toward determining the price world consumers will pay for this major source of energy as it flows from the gasoline pump into your automobile or from the pipeline into the family furnace.

Aligned on the one side are the world's major oil companies — notably Esso, Royal Dutch-Shell, Britsh Petroleum, Gulf, Mobil, Standard of California, Texaco and Compagnie Francaise des Petroles—and on the other the non-Communist world's oil-producing countries, operating behind a united front called the Organization of Oil Producing Countries. Primarily these are the Middle East and African nations plus Venezuela and Indonesia.

FROM THIS confrontation will come a final decision on what already is agreed will be increased taxes and royalties paid by the companies to the exporting countries.

In return the companies are demanding a five-year agreement to insure a measure of stability and guaranties against demands for retroactive payments and obligatory reinvestment of funds in the producer country.

It is a quirk of fate that this search for stability should center upon an area noted for its instability, namely, the Middle East.

But it also is noteworthy that this instability has affected least of all the oil agreements, mostly because the Arab countries do not need the oil but they do need money. It also is noteworthy that even though U.S. foreign policy in support of Israel has led to Arab threats, it has caused no real action against American oil firms.

ACCOMPANYING the confrontation between the oil producing countries and the companies have been two other major developments.

One is that for the first time the United States, Britain, France and the Netherlands are lending diplomatic support to efforts to keep the prices as low as possible.

Another is that France, at crisis point in its own negotiations with Algeria over exploitation and use of Sahara desert oil, has abandoned the policy of noncooperation with what the late President Charles de Gaulle regarded as an Anglo-Saxon monopoly and has joined The Hague, London and Washington in a united front.

Too Busy For Marriage, Teacher Adopts A Son

By GEORGE NEVIN

A baby shower for a bachelor?

It happened the other day in a classroom at Marin Terrace School in Mill Valley, where Raymond F. Jurasin's students threw a party to celebrate the adoption of a 2-year-old boy by their unmarried teacher.

Surrounded by his cavorting pupils and holding his son, David Rhodes Jurasin, in his lap, the 34-year-old teacher brushed confetti from his hair and told how he waited three years to adopt a child.

He was registered with the San Francisco Department of Social Services, he said, "But they weren't able to find anyone for me."

He's just been too wrapped up in teaching to get married, Jurasin said, explaining why he didn't raise a family in the usual manner. "But, I've wanted a child for a long time."

Jurasin's break came three weeks ago when a friend called to say a child was available in Southern California. The teacher drove down Friday and met David, spent the weekend with him, signed the necessary papers Monday and drove back with his new son.

Barring the unforseen, the adoption will be final one year from now.

Although single persons have been allowed to adopt children since 1965, adoptions by men have been rare. Only two such cases have been reported in San Francisco, andmne other in Marin. They're more common in Southern California, however.

As Jurasin talked, David played happily with a stuffed toy dog, seemingly oblivious to the noisy children who were putting on a skit for his benefit.

Entertainment over, the students crowded around and gave David a large gift-wrapped package. "Open it," they urged, but the boy only looked around.

"That's all right," said Jurasin, opening the box himself. "I gave him a toy jet when I met him Friday and he looked at it two hours before he touched it."

Inside the box was a miniature farm, complete with animals, a barn and a tractor. David looked at it in silence, and then, in a delighted voice, said "Fractor!" The students gleefully repeated the word.

Jurasin said a babysitter, the mother of one of his students, would care for David during school hours and he will pick David up each afternoon and take him home to 20 East Circle Drive in Tiburon.

The teacher said his students are thrilled by his instant parenthood. "As you can see, they're very high," he said, waving his hand at the frolicking youngsters. "There were a few bad days last week when they knew I was going south, but that's all over now."

According to his new father, David is "as happy as a lark" in his new surroundings, but Jurasin has a complaint familiar to most parents.

"David," he said, "just has too much energy. I can't get him to take a nap. I hope he'll be worn out after all this excitement."

Though they've known each other for less than a week, Jurasin has proof that he and David are indeed father and son. "Why," he said, "he already calls me daddy."

Bizarre Twist In Metzger's Case

The possibility that a man arrested aboard a gun-laden sub-chaser last July may be the alleged "victim" of a 1968 Southern California murder is the latest twist in the already-bizarre case surrounding Sausalito attorney Michael Henry Metzger.

A pretrial hearing continued yesterday in Marin Superior Court where Metzger is accused of felony counts of possessing LSD, marijuana, cocaine and a tear gas weapon, stemming from a Dec. 6 raid on his Sausalito home.

The case became bizarre enough when it was learned that it was Gerald N. McDonald — the captain of the sub-chaser raided in Tiburon Harbor — who tipped off county drug abuse officers to the illegal drug stash in Metzger's home.

Yet another dimension was added yesterday when Metzger's attorneys — William O. Weissich and Patrick Hallinan — charged that George William Lawson, who was first mate aboard the sub-chaser, may well be Warren Hudson, said to be a naroctics smuggler who was allegedly murdered in Riverside County in October 1968.

A man identified as Lawrence A. Fassler, said by authorities to be the leader of the smuggling ring in which Hudson was involved, is now on trial in Riverside Superior Court for the murder of Hudson, whose body was never found.

The prosecution has contended that Fassler, currently serving a 15-year sentence in Arizona State Prison for narcotics smuggling, hired a man to kidnap and kill Hudson because Hudson had double-crossed the rest of the five-man ring by keeping $80,000 to himself.

Over the objections yesterday of Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas, Judge Joseph G. Wilson ordered mugshots and fingerprints taken of Lawson be made available to Metzger's attorneys in order to check the theory that Lawson is indeed the "dead" Hudson.

Thomas said the issue was irrelevant.

Yesterday's hearing also heard Alfred Teixeira, a Marin County drug agent, recount his relationship with the mysterious McDonald.

Teixeira said he paid McDonald $25 for the "Metzger job" and said that McDonald was "wired for sound" when he entered Metzger's home last Dec. 6.

Metzger's attorneys claimed that McDonald came to the suspect's home to interest him in using the sub-chaser to rescue five hashish-smuggling Northern Californians, including a Marinite, from jail in Crete. Metzger and his law partner, Daniel Weinstein, had earlier represented some of the jailed Americans.

Teixeira also testified that after the July raid on the sub-chaser in which McDonald was arrested, his boss, Lt. James C. Schwedheim of the Marin Drug Abuse Bureau, told him that McDonald was working for the U.S. Custom's service.

Charges against McDonald stemming from the sub-chaser raid were dropped four days after the raid on Metzger's home.

McDonald was scheduled to appear at yesterday's hearing but failed to do so.

Hallinan charged that the raid on the sub-chaser home was ". . .a fix and a sham" used to set up the raid on his client's home.

Judge Wilson recessed the hearing until next Friday and ordered the district attorney's office to explain McDonald's absence from the hearing.

Novatan Faces Plea On Assault

Brian Lee Gilbert, 20, of Novato, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a felony charge of attempted rape and a misdemeanor count of indecent exposure.

He will plead to the charges Monday.

Gilbert, arrested Thursday on a traffic warrant, is accused of the attempted rape of a 20-year-old Novato woman Dec. 27 at the Nave Shopping Center.

Huge Suit Alleges Sex Bias

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A Sacramento widower is seeking $700 million in damages in a suit charging sex discrimination by three public utility companies.

The superior court action filed by Ned E. Ubben is the largest damage suit in Sacramento County history. It stems from the accidental death of his wife, who last April was crushed between a garage door and her car when the door opened by itself.

Ubben charges the pension and death benefit plans of the defendants, Pacific Telephone Co., American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and Western Electric violate federal sex discrimination laws and the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

His attorney said Pacific Telephone, who employed Mrs. Ubben for 17 years, pays one year's salary to the wife of a deceased employe but nothing to the husband of a deceased employe.

Ubben asks that the $700 million be put into a trust fund to take care of other husbands of the firms' women employes who die.

For himself, he asks $15,000, which represents one year of his wife's salary, and $25,000 in punitive damages. Mrs. Ubben, 43, was a senior engineer at Pacific Telephone.

Four Arraigned On Possession

Four men have been arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing marijuana.

William Cody Smith, 19, of 90 Princess Street, Sausalito; James Kardis Jr., 21, of 124 Beattie Road, Novato, and John Anthony Canales and Carl Glen Pickens, both 18 and from San Francisco, will return to court to enter pleas next Wednesday.

They were arrested last Sunday by sheriff's deputies who were investigating a reported burglary at Kardis's residence.

Muskie Calls For Wage-Price Board

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Sen. Edmund S. Muskie said today there were "signs of change" in President Nixon's State of the Union address but he warned Nixon must "lift the economy off the flat of its back" or a Democratic President will.

Muskie, on the first California campaign swing of his unannounced bid for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, said Nixon should declare "an economic ceasefire" and appoint a high-level wage and price advisory board.

The Maine senator, keynoting the biennial state Democratic convention, charged in remarks prepared for delivery that Nixon's game plan for improving the economy and halting inflation had "failed."

Muskie watched Nixon's State of the Union address on television with Democratic state legislative leaders in a private room at an expensive restaurant. Afterward, the man who hopes to run against Nixon in 1972 issued this statement:

"There were signs of change in the President's message, and although they fell short of the advance billings, I hope the President's proposals and congressional initiatives will lead to corrections in our economic policies and improved operations in the executive branch.

In his speech today to the 940 Democratic State Central Committee members, Muskie urged Nixon "to go beyond jawboning" and establish a wage-price panel "to restore what has so often been missing from key wage and price decisions—a sense of public responsibility."

Muskie was on a five-day campaign tour in a state where the unemployment rate consistenly has been above the national average. Currently it is 7 per cent, a full point above the nationwide rate.

"The Democratic Party does not need, and it does not want, unemployment as a political issue," Muskie said. "But this administration has made it an issue."

The senator said unemployment should be dealt with by guaranteeing "a job opportunity to every American who is willing and able to work."

Reagan Proposes Overhaul Of School System

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A Reagan administration task force has recommended a complete overhaul of the state's education system including proposals to make the state Board of Education more political and to impose a statewide property tax.

The governor's Commission on Educational Reform Friday also called for abolishing teacher tenure, permitting a simple majority for voter passage of school bonds, authorizing merit pay for quality teachers, requiring students to work to pay for their scholarships, eliminating county superintendents of schools and county boards of education, and rewriting the education code.

In a 70-page report submitted to Gov. Ronald Reagan, the commission proposed that the governor, Assembly speaker and president pro tempore of the Senate be made members of the Board of Education.

FATHER AND SON — Surrounded by children from his classes at Marin Terrace School, Raymond F. Jurasin and his new son, David Rhodes, are the center of attention. The students threw the baby a shower Wednesday in honor of David's adoption by their 34-year-old teacher.

Too Busy For Marriage, Teacher Adopts A Son

By GEORGE NEVIN

A baby shower for a bachelor?

It happened the other day in a classroom at Marin Terrace School in Mill Valley, where Raymond F. Jurasin's students threw a party to celebrate the adoption of a 2-year-old boy by their unmarried teacher.

Surrounded by his cavorting pupils and holding his son, David Rhodes Jurasin, in his lap, the 34-year-old teacher brushed confetti from his hair and told how he waited three years to adopt a child.

He was registered with the San Francisco Department of Social Services, he said, "But they weren't able to find anyone for me."

He's just been too wrapped up in teaching to get married, Jurasin said, explaining why he didn't raise a family in the usual manner. "But, I've wanted a child for a long time."

Jurasin's break came three weeks ago when a friend called to say a child was available in Southern California. The teacher drove down Friday and met David, spent the weekend with him, signed the necessary papers Monday and drove back with his new son.

Barring the unforseen, the adoption will be final one year from now.

Although single persons have been allowed to adopt children since 1965, adoptions by men have been rare. Only two such cases have been reported in San Francisco, andmne other in Marin. They're more common in Southern California, however.

As Jurasin talked, David played happily with a stuffed toy dog, seemingly oblivious to the noisy children who were putting on a skit for his benefit.

Entertainment over, the students crowded around and gave David a large gift-wrapped package. "Open it," they urged, but the boy only looked around.

"That's all right," said Jurasin, opening the box himself. "I gave him a toy jet when I met him Friday and he looked at it two hours before he touched it."

Inside the box was a miniature farm, complete with animals, a barn and a tractor. David looked at it in silence, and then, in a delighted voice, said "Fractor!" The students gleefully repeated the word.

Jurasin said a babysitter, the mother of one of his students, would care for David during school hours and he will pick David up each afternoon and take him home to 20 East Circle Drive in Tiburon.

The teacher said his students are thrilled by his instant parenthood. "As you can see, they're very high," he said, waving his hand at the frolicking youngsters. "There were a few bad days last week when they knew I was going south, but that's all over now."

According to his new father, David is "as happy as a lark" in his new surroundings, but Jurasin has a complaint familiar to most parents.

"David," he said, "just has too much energy. I can't get him to take a nap. I hope he'll be worn out after all this excitement."

Though they've known each other for less than a week, Jurasin has proof that he and David are indeed father and son. "Why," he said, "he already calls me daddy."

Bizarre Twist In Metzger's Case

The possibility that a man arrested aboard a gun-laden sub-chaser last July may be the alleged "victim" of a 1968 Southern California murder is the latest twist in the already-bizarre case surrounding Sausalito attorney Michael Henry Metzger.

A pretrial hearing continued yesterday in Marin Superior Court where Metzger is accused of felony counts of possessing LSD, marijuana, cocaine and a tear gas weapon, stemming from a Dec. 6 raid on his Sausalito home.

The case became bizarre enough when it was learned that it was Gerald N. McDonald — the captain of the sub-chaser raided in Tiburon Harbor — who tipped off county drug abuse officers to the illegal drug stash in Metzger's home.

Yet another dimension was added yesterday when Metzger's attorneys — William O. Weissich and Patrick Hallinan — charged that George William Lawson, who was first mate aboard the sub-chaser, may well be Warren Hudson, said to be a naroctics smuggler who was allegedly murdered in Riverside County in October 1968.

A man identified as Lawrence A. Fassler, said by authorities to be the leader of the smuggling ring in which Hudson was involved, is now on trial in Riverside Superior Court for the murder of Hudson, whose body was never found.

The prosecution has contended that Fassler, currently serving a 15-year sentence in Arizona State Prison for narcotics smuggling, hired a man to kidnap and kill Hudson because Hudson had double-crossed the rest of the five-man ring by keeping $80,000 to himself.

Over the objections yesterday of Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas, Judge Joseph G. Wilson ordered mugshots and fingerprints taken of Lawson be made available to Metzger's attorneys in order to check the theory that Lawson is indeed the "dead" Hudson.

Thomas said the issue was irrelevant.

Yesterday's hearing also heard Alfred Teixeira, a Marin County drug agent, recount his relationship with the mysterious McDonald.

Teixeira said he paid McDonald $25 for the "Metzger job" and said that McDonald was "wired for sound" when he entered Metzger's home last Dec. 6.

Metzger's attorneys claimed that McDonald came to the suspect's home to interest him in using the sub-chaser to rescue five hashish-smuggling Northern Californians, including a Marinite, from jail in Crete. Metzger and his law partner, Daniel Weinstein, had earlier represented some of the jailed Americans.

Teixeira also testified that after the July raid on the sub-chaser in which McDonald was arrested, his boss, Lt. James C. Schwedheim of the Marin Drug Abuse Bureau, told him that McDonald was working for the U.S. Custom's service.

Charges against McDonald stemming from the sub-chaser raid were dropped four days after the raid on Metzger's home.

McDonald was scheduled to appear at yesterday's hearing but failed to do so.

Hallinan charged that the raid on the sub-chaser home was ". . .a fix and a sham" used to set up the raid on his client's home.

Judge Wilson recessed the hearing until next Friday and ordered the district attorney's office to explain McDonald's absence from the hearing.

Novatan Faces Plea On Assault

Brian Lee Gilbert, 20, of Novato, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a felony charge of attempted rape and a misdemeanor count of indecent exposure.

He will plead to the charges Monday.

Gilbert, arrested Thursday on a traffic warrant, is accused of the attempted rape of a 20-year-old Novato woman Dec. 27 at the Nave Shopping Center.

Huge Suit Alleges Sex Bias

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A Sacramento widower is seeking $700 million in damages in a suit charging sex discrimination by three public utility companies.

The superior court action filed by Ned E. Ubben is the largest damage suit in Sacramento County history. It stems from the accidental death of his wife, who last April was crushed between a garage door and her car when the door opened by itself.

Ubben charges the pension and death benefit plans of the defendants, Pacific Telephone Co., American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and Western Electric violate federal sex discrimination laws and the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

His attorney said Pacific Telephone, who employed Mrs. Ubben for 17 years, pays one year's salary to the wife of a deceased employe but nothing to the husband of a deceased employe.

Ubben asks that the $700 million be put into a trust fund to take care of other husbands of the firms' women employes who die.

For himself, he asks $15,000, which represents one year of his wife's salary, and $25,000 in punitive damages. Mrs. Ubben, 43, was a senior engineer at Pacific Telephone.

Four Arraigned On Possession

Four men have been arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing marijuana.

William Cody Smith, 19, of 90 Princess Street, Sausalito; James Kardis Jr., 21, of 124 Beattie Road, Novato, and John Anthony Canales and Carl Glen Pickens, both 18 and from San Francisco, will return to court to enter pleas next Wednesday.

They were arrested last Sunday by sheriff's deputies who were investigating a reported burglary at Kardis's residence.

Muskie Calls For Wage-Price Board

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Sen. Edmund S. Muskie said today there were "signs of change" in President Nixon's State of the Union address but he warned Nixon must "lift the economy off the flat of its back" or a Democratic President will.

Muskie, on the first California campaign swing of his unannounced bid for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, said Nixon should declare "an economic ceasefire" and appoint a high-level wage and price advisory board.

The Maine senator, keynoting the biennial state Democratic convention, charged in remarks prepared for delivery that Nixon's game plan for improving the economy and halting inflation had "failed."

Muskie watched Nixon's State of the Union address on television with Democratic state legislative leaders in a private room at an expensive restaurant. Afterward, the man who hopes to run against Nixon in 1972 issued this statement:

"There were signs of change in the President's message, and although they fell short of the advance billings, I hope the President's proposals and congressional initiatives will lead to corrections in our economic policies and improved operations in the executive branch.

In his speech today to the 940 Democratic State Central Committee members, Muskie urged Nixon "to go beyond jawboning" and establish a wage-price panel "to restore what has so often been missing from key wage and price decisions—a sense of public responsibility."

Muskie was on a five-day campaign tour in a state where the unemployment rate consistenly has been above the national average. Currently it is 7 per cent, a full point above the nationwide rate.

"The Democratic Party does not need, and it does not want, unemployment as a political issue," Muskie said. "But this administration has made it an issue."

The senator said unemployment should be dealt with by guaranteeing "a job opportunity to every American who is willing and able to work."

Reagan Proposes Overhaul Of School System

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A Reagan administration task force has recommended a complete overhaul of the state's education system including proposals to make the state Board of Education more political and to impose a statewide property tax.

The governor's Commission on Educational Reform Friday also called for abolishing teacher tenure, permitting a simple majority for voter passage of school bonds, authorizing merit pay for quality teachers, requiring students to work to pay for their scholarships, eliminating county superintendents of schools and county boards of education, and rewriting the education code.

In a 70-page report submitted to Gov. Ronald Reagan, the commission proposed that the governor, Assembly speaker and president pro tempore of the Senate be made members of the Board of Education.

THE ELUSIVE BASKETBALL — If these pictures are any indication, the ball was a rather elusive object during last night's Marin County Athletic League game between Terra Linda and San Marin. At the left, Mike Kassenbrock (hands raised) and Jim Thompson of San Marin watch helplessly as the ball flies by, while Terra Linda's Joe Casteel looks the other way. At the right, Kassenbrock, teammate Dana LaFerriere (55), Terra Linda's Gordon Walker (10), and others scramble for the ball, but where is it? (I-J Photo)

'Giant Killer' Seals Win Again

OAKLAND (UPI) -The 1970-71 California Golden Seals are nowhere near making a run on the leaders in the National Hockey League but they're making it an interesting season.

In the role of a "giant-killer," the Seals, last in the NHL's Western Division, stopped another contender Friday night. With Gary Jarrett and Don O'Donoghue each knocking in two goals, the Seals dominated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-2.

Going into the game, fourth-place Toronto had compiled an impressive 15-3-2 over the last 20 games. The loss left the Leafs four points behind Montreal in the Eastern Division.

For the Seals, it was the second time in five games, including one tie, they have beaten the Leafs. The victory lifted California's record to 14-29-3, three points shy of sixth-place Los Angeles.

O'Donoghue, playing in only his 18th game since being summoned from the American Hockey League, opened and closed the scoring for the Seals. Jarrett scored the go-ahead goal on a breakaway in the first period and added the first insurance market in the third stanza.

The other California goal went to Ernie Hicke.

Warriors Host Bulls After Loss To L.A.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The San Francisco Warriors went to Los Angeles with a four-game winning streak and a chance to pull within percentage points of the Pacific Division-leading Lakers.

They came back with 130-110 loss and another battle facing them tonight in the Civic Auditorium against the Chicago Bulls.

San Francisco was never ahead Friday after hitting the opening basket of the game. Keith Erickson, who wasn't supposed to play because of an injured thumb, drilled in 22 points in the first three periods, then the Lakers coasted to victory.

Jerry West played as he usually does—leading all scorers with 28 points.

Nate Thurmond was tops for the Warriors with 20 points. Jeff Mullins added 17 and Jerry Lucas followed with 16.

The Bulls come into tonight's contest in third place in the NBA Midwest Division with a 29-20 mark. San Francisco has a 27-24 record and leads third-place Seattle by five games.

Conference Pride Is Pro Bowl Theme

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The 80 best football players in the National Football League, 40 from the American and 40 from the National Conferences, put their pride at stake Sunday in the 21st annual Pro Bowl football game here.

The All-Stars were selected by vote of the 26 coaches in the NFL but no coach was permitted to cast a vote for a player on his own team and could name only players in his conference.

This is the first year that the merger of the rival leagues into one huge league made it possible to revise the format of the game to pit the stars of one conference against the other.

Dick Nolan of the San Francisco Forty Niners coaches the Nationals while John Madden of the Oakland Raiders coaches the Americans and they have their own team quarterbacks starting the game.

For the NFC team, John Brodie, who led all pro passers, will hurl his bullet-like aerial thrusts against a defense dominated by the Kansas City Chiefs who placed five men on the starting defensive unit.

Brodie's starting running backs are MacArthur Lane of St. Louis and Larry Brown of Washington while his wide receivers are the two Gene Washingtons, one from San Francisco and the other from Minnesota.

The American Conference quarterback, Daryle Lamonica of Oakland, is flanked by running backs Leroy Kelly of Cleveland and Hewritt Dixon of the Raiders. The wide receivers are Warren Wells of Oakland and Gary Garrison of San Diego.

The other men among the six placed by Oakland on the starting offensive team for the Americans are center Jim Otto, tackle Harry Schuh and tight end Ray Chester.

The game is sponsored by the Los Angeles Metropolitan Newspapers in cooperation with the National Football League.

Pros Continue To Rip Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI —The Phoenix Open is setting some golf records,

Gene Littler, the quiet 40-year-old La Jolla, Calif., pro, shot the lowest 18-hole score of the 1971 pro tour Friday. He had a 63, eight under par at the Arizona country club and one shot shy of his own course and tournament record.

The 63 plus a first round 66 gave Littler a 129 total, lowest 36-hole score of the year in three tournaments to date. Yet that was not good enough for an undisputed lead. A couple of other vets, Paul Harney and Miller Barber, 40, tied Littler. Both had 65-64—129.

The field was cut as is customary to the low 70 pros and ties at the end of two rounds. The score required to remain in contention for the last two rounds Saturday and Sunday was 137—lowest in the history of the Professional Golfers Association. The previous low cut was 140. That was the qualifying mark in last year's Memphis Classic but it was par for that course.

Seventy-one pros made it here with scores that had to be better than five under par.

Among those who didn't make it were Ray Floyd who had a pair of 69s for 138, four under; defending champion Dale Douglass with 67-73—140; and Tom Shaw, winner of last weekend's Crosby Clambake who said farewell with 72-68—140.

Arnold Palmer made it with 68-67—135 but he admitted he was worried.

Big Bob Lunn who won the Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open, first event of the year, was all alone at 130, a shot back of the leading triumvirate. He had 64-66.

"I made the cut," he grinned.

Five pros were grouped at 131 — Hale Irwin, Dave Hill, Bruce Crampton, Don Massengale and Howie Johnson.

Frank Beard made it with a pair of 66s for 132 in a bracket with Fred Marti, Ted Hayes, Rod Curl, Bill Garrett, George Archer and Richard Crawford.

Record Crowd Sees Historic Shot Put

By RON SUPINSKI

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—He eats a lot of protein powder, loves to lift weights and has burst upon the international track and field scene like an undimming comet.

That's long-haired, mustachioed Al Feuerbach, who was reared on a farm in eastern Iowa, graduated from Emporia State (Kan.) and today holds the world indoor shot put record of 68 feet, 11 inches after stunning rugged Randy Matson in the greatest shot put duel in history at the All-American Games.

A record Northern California track crowd of 13,815 at the Cow Palace watched in awe Friday night as the unheralded Feuerbach unleashed the third greatest shot put throw in history to eclipse the old indoor mark of 67-10 shared by Oregon's Neal Steinhauer and Matson. Only Matson has exceeded that distance, both times outdoors, topped by a 71-5 1-2 heave.

Feuerbach, a 23-year-old muscle-bound athlete whose weight shot from 190 to 246 pounds after leaving college, tossed the 16-pound shot 65 feet, 7 inches on his first try Friday night.

"On my next throw, I knew it was a good one just as soon as I felt the snap of my wrist," he said. "But I really didn't know how far it was until the officials told me.

"That first throw was merely to set my mark. Then I really went all out."

The second toss arced 68 feet, 11 inches to establish the 6-foot-1 Feuerbach as one of the world's top shot putters and a shining light for the United States in the 1972 Olympics.

For Matson of the Texas Striders, it was his first defeat since 1969. When asked if he gave any tips to Feuerbach, Matson replied: "He certainly doesn't need any from me."

Another athlete who brought the capacity crowd to its feet was Jim Ryun, one of the world's greatest middle-distance runners, who clocked in 4:04.4 while winning the mile against hardly any opposition. It was the first time the former Kansas flash has run competitively in 19 months to launch a comeback aimed at the upcoming Olympics.

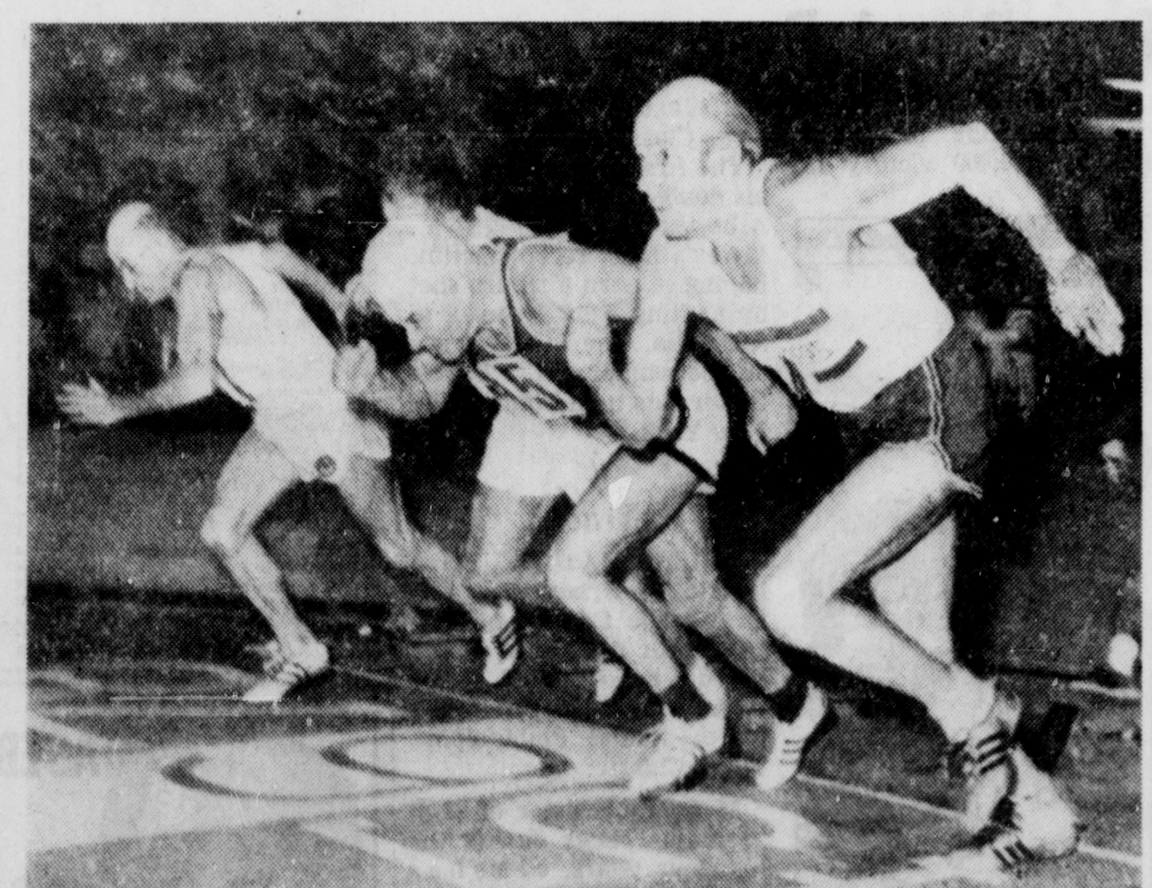
"I was very pleased with my performance, although 4:04.4 is not a mar I will stand much longer," said the 23-year-old newspaper photographer who plans to move soon from Topeka, Kan., to Eugene, Ore., to train under University of Oregon coach Bill Bowerman.

"I knew I had to set the pace out there and time passed quickly. There were about 4 1-2 laps to go before I made a move, but I'm satisfied with going that fast this early in the season."

Other outstanding performances at the eighth annual indoor meet sponsored by the San Francisco Examiner were turned in by Reynaldo Brown, who won the high jump in 7-2, Milan Tiff of the California Track Club, who set a Cow Palace and meet record with a 52-7 3-4 triple jump, and Australia's Kerry Pearce, who broke his own meet record with an 8:38.2 clocking in the two-mile.

George Young, world's co-record holder in the two-mile with Pearce at 8:27.2, did not compete because of a groin muscle pull.

Olympic champ Bob Seagren pulled up lame in a workout and was unable to compete in the pole vault won by Sam Caruthers with a 16-6 clearance.



SENIORS' 60 — Alan Cranston (right), democratic senator from California, was in a race last night, but it wasn't political. TERRA LINDA WINS

Overtime Rally Tops San Marin

Bill Berry's 20-foot shot at the final buzzer, and Larry Kerr's seven points in the ensuing overtime last night brought the Terra Linda High School Trojans a 62-60 win over San Marin in a Marin County Athletic League basketball game at Terra Linda.

The game, the first in the MCAL this season to be decided in overtime, gave the Trojans a 4-1 league record and kept them in second place with Tamalpais, behind undefeated Redwood. The loss was the third in five games for the Mustangs of Novato.

Kerr, who finished with 21 points, hit two layups and three free throws as Terra Linda took charge right away in the extra period. Berry had tied the game with his desperation shot after the Trojans inbounded the ball in the backcourt with five seconds on the clock. The contest was marked by controversy, which included a double technical foul called on San Marin for stuffing the ball during warmups.

Dana LaFerriere, San Marin's 6-foot-8 center, led all scorers with 23 points, and Hoza Wright, a sophomore, backed him up with 17. For Terra Linda, Joe Casteel, despite fouling out in the fourth quarter, came in behind Kerr with 14.

Terra Linda — Casteel, 6-2-14; Berry, 2-5-9; LaHaye, 2-1-5; Walker, 1-3-5; Kerr, 7-7-21; Buckley, 0-2-2; Young, 3-0-6; Totals — 21-20-62.

Novato Upsets Marin Catholic

Marty Moroski scored 21 points and provided some much needed consistency for the Novato High School Hornets as they pulled a mild upset by defeating Marin Catholic last night, 61-52 in Novato.

The game, a sloppy affair played to some 500 fans, gave both teams 2-3 records in Marin County Athletic League play. It was Novato's second straight win after they lost their first three games.

Moroski, a junior forward, gave his best performance of the season, and it came at the right time, because teammate Joe DeMaestri, the league's leading scorer and the Nornets' principle weapon, succumbed to foul trouble and the adept coverage of Steve Hurley, and collected only nine points.

Marin Catholic had only Hurley's defense and a 20-point effort by Bill Donellan to highlight a dismal evening. Having beaten San Marin on Tuesday, after that team whitewashed Novato last week, the Wildcats of Kentfield were favored to win this game. But they just didn't come to play. Novato ran up a five point lead at halftime, and was never threatened thereafter.

Marin Catholic 15 7 12 18-52

Redwood Tops Drake; Fifth Straight Win

The Redwood High School Giants won as expected last night to remain undefeated in the Marin County Athletic League basketball race, but their opponents, the Drake Pirates, put up an impressive struggle.

The defending MCAL champion Giants prevailed, 46-34 on their home court in Larkspur, for their fifth straight league win this year. But they led by only five at halftime as the Pirates of San Anselmo, winners of only one game against four losses, put on a strong defensive show.

It took the combined efforts of big Scott Trobbe, and equally-as-big Steve McGee to insure the victory. The 6-foot-6 stars scored 14 and 12 points respectively, and succeeded in wearing Drake down in the third quarter; Redwood outscored Drake in that period, 9-2.

Bob Gregg was high for Drake with 11, and Sam Farb of Redwood scored that many also.

Tamalpais Coasts To Win Over San Rafael

San Rafael High School put up the good fight against Tamalpais last night, but the Indians of Mill Valley pulled steadily away after the first quarter and defeated the Bulldogs, 65-49 at San Rafael.

For Tam the victory was the fourth in five Marin County Athletic League games, but San Rafael, still winless, forced Indian coach Bernie Schneider to go with his frontliners most of the way.

Will Garner and John Earl Huff, Tam's mainstays, played until the fourth quarter, and scored 19 and 15 points respectively to guide the win.

Jim Thorne led the Bulldogs with 16 points, followed by Wayne Lechner with 11.

'Giant Killer' Seals Win Again

OAKLAND (UPI) -The 1970-71 California Golden Seals are nowhere near making a run on the leaders in the National Hockey League but they're making it an interesting season.

In the role of a "giant-killer," the Seals, last in the NHL's Western Division, stopped another contender Friday night. With Gary Jarrett and Don O'Donoghue each knocking in two goals, the Seals dominated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-2.

Going into the game, fourth-place Toronto had compiled an impressive 15-3-2 over the last 20 games. The loss left the Leafs four points behind Montreal in the Eastern Division.

For the Seals, it was the second time in five games, including one tie, they have beaten the Leafs. The victory lifted California's record to 14-29-3, three points shy of sixth-place Los Angeles.

O'Donoghue, playing in only his 18th game since being summoned from the American Hockey League, opened and closed the scoring for the Seals. Jarrett scored the go-ahead goal on a breakaway in the first period and added the first insurance market in the third stanza.

The other California goal went to Ernie Hicke.

Warriors Host Bulls After Loss To L.A.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Warriors went to Los Angeles with a four-game winning streak and a chance to pull within percentage points of the Pacific Division-leading Lakers.

They came back with 130-110 loss and another battle facing them tonight in the Civic Auditorium against the Chicago Bulls.

San Francisco was never ahead Friday after hitting the opening basket of the game. Keith Erickson, who wasn't supposed to play because of an injured thumb, drilled in 22 points in the first three periods, then the Lakers coasted to victory.

Jerry West played as he usually does—leading all scorers with 28 points.

Nate Thurmond was tops for the Warriors with 20 points. Jeff Mullins added 17 and Jerry Lucas followed with 16.

The Bulls come into tonight's contest in third place in the NBA Midwest Division with a 29-20 mark. San Francisco has a 27-24 record and leads third-place Seattle by five games.

Conference Pride Is Pro Bowl Theme

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The 80 best football players in the National Football League, 40 from the American and 40 from the National Conferences, put their pride at stake Sunday in the 21st annual Pro Bowl football game here.

The All-Stars were selected by vote of the 26 coaches in the NFL but no coach was permitted to cast a vote for a player on his own team and could name only players in his conference.

This is the first year that the merger of the rival leagues into one huge league made it possible to revise the format of the game to pit the stars of one conference against the other.

Dick Nolan of the San Francisco Forty Niners coaches the Nationals while John Madden of the Oakland Raiders coaches the Americans and they have their own team quarterbacks starting the game.

For the NFC team, John Brodie, who led all pro passers, will hurl his bullet-like aerial thrusts against a defense dominated by the Kansas City Chiefs who placed five men on the starting defensive unit.

Brodie's starting running backs are MacArthur Lane of St. Louis and Larry Brown of Washington while his wide receivers are the two Gene Washingtons, one from San Francisco and the other from Minnesota.

The American Conference quarterback, Daryle Lamonica of Oakland, is flanked by running backs Leroy Kelly of Cleveland and Hewritt Dixon of the Raiders. The wide receivers are Warren Wells of Oakland and Gary Garrison of San Diego.

The other men among the six placed by Oakland on the starting offensive team for the Americans are center Jim Otto, tackle Harry Schuh and tight end Ray Chester.

The game is sponsored by the Los Angeles Metropolitan Newspapers in cooperation with the National Football League.

Pros Continue To Rip Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI —The Phoenix Open is setting some golf records,

Gene Littler, the quiet 40-year-old La Jolla, Calif., pro, shot the lowest 18-hole score of the 1971 pro tour Friday. He had a 63, eight under par at the Arizona country club and one shot shy of his own course and tournament record.

The 63 plus a first round 66 gave Littler a 129 total, lowest 36-hole score of the year in three tournaments to date. Yet that was not good enough for an undisputed lead. A couple of other vets, Paul Harney and Miller Barber, 40, tied Littler. Both had 65-64—129.

The field was cut as is customary to the low 70 pros and ties at the end of two rounds. The score required to remain in contention for the last two rounds Saturday and Sunday was 137—lowest in the history of the Professional Golfers Association. The previous low cut was 140. That was the qualifying mark in last year's Memphis Classic but it was par for that course.

Seventy-one pros made it here with scores that had to be better than five under par.

Among those who didn't make it were Ray Floyd who had a pair of 69s for 138, four under; defending champion Dale Douglass with 67-73—140; and Tom Shaw, winner of last weekend's Crosby Clambake who said farewell with 72-68—140.

Arnold Palmer made it with 68-67—135 but he admitted he was worried.

Big Bob Lunn who won the Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open, first event of the year, was all alone at 130, a shot back of the leading triumvirate. He had 64-66.

"I made the cut," he grinned.

Five pros were grouped at 131 — Hale Irwin, Dave Hill, Bruce Crampton, Don Massengale and Howie Johnson.

Frank Beard made it with a pair of 66s for 132 in a bracket with Fred Marti, Ted Hayes, Rod Curl, Bill Garrett, George Archer and Richard Crawford.

Record Crowd Sees Historic Shot Put

By RON SUPINSKI

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—He eats a lot of protein powder, loves to lift weights and has burst upon the international track and field scene like an undimming comet.

That's long-haired, mustachioed Al Feuerbach, who was reared on a farm in eastern Iowa, graduated from Emporia State (Kan.) and today holds the world indoor shot put record of 68 feet, 11 inches after stunning rugged Randy Matson in the greatest shot put duel in history at the All-American Games.

A record Northern California track crowd of 13,815 at the Cow Palace watched in awe Friday night as the unheralded Feuerbach unleashed the third greatest shot put throw in history to eclipse the old indoor mark of 67-10 shared by Oregon's Neal Steinhauer and Matson. Only Matson has exceeded that distance, both times outdoors, topped by a 71-5 1-2 heave.

Feuerbach, a 23-year-old muscle-bound athlete whose weight shot from 190 to 246 pounds after leaving college, tossed the 16-pound shot 65 feet, 7 inches on his first try Friday night.

"On my next throw, I knew it was a good one just as soon as I felt the snap of my wrist," he said. "But I really didn't know how far it was until the officials told me.

"That first throw was merely to set my mark. Then I really went all out."

The second toss arced 68 feet, 11 inches to establish the 6-foot-1 Feuerbach as one of the world's top shot putters and a shining light for the United States in the 1972 Olympics.

For Matson of the Texas Striders, it was his first defeat since 1969. When asked if he gave any tips to Feuerbach, Matson replied: "He certainly doesn't need any from me."

Another athlete who brought the capacity crowd to its feet was Jim Ryun, one of the world's greatest middle-distance runners, who clocked in 4:04.4 while winning the mile against hardly any opposition. It was the first time the former Kansas flash has run competitively in 19 months to launch a comeback aimed at the upcoming Olympics.

"I was very pleased with my performance, although 4:04.4 is not a mar I will stand much longer," said the 23-year-old newspaper photographer who plans to move soon from Topeka, Kan., to Eugene, Ore., to train under University of Oregon coach Bill Bowerman.

"I knew I had to set the pace out there and time passed quickly. There were about 4 1-2 laps to go before I made a move, but I'm satisfied with going that fast this early in the season."

Other outstanding performances at the eighth annual indoor meet sponsored by the San Francisco Examiner were turned in by Reynaldo Brown, who won the high jump in 7-2, Milan Tiff of the California Track Club, who set a Cow Palace and meet record with a 52-7 3-4 triple jump, and Australia's Kerry Pearce, who broke his own meet record with an 8:38.2 clocking in the two-mile.

George Young, world's co-record holder in the two-mile with Pearce at 8:27.2, did not compete because of a groin muscle pull.

Olympic champ Bob Seagren pulled up lame in a workout and was unable to compete in the pole vault won by Sam Caruthers with a 16-6 clearance.

ABA Drafts Cautiously; Wicks, Carr Fail To Go In First Round

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI)— First round draft picks of the American Basketball Association Friday failed to include some of the nation's premier college players, giving indication the owners felt they would be unable to sign them in a bidding war with the NBA.

Although said to have been selected in the second round, the first round picks do not include UCLA's Sidney Wicks, Austin Carr of Notre Dame and Rich Yunkus of Georgia Tech.

The draft, held on the eve of the league's fourth All-Star game, was kicked off by the Utah Stars' selection of Jim McDaniel of Western Kentucky, a 7-footer sought to back up veteran Zelmo Beaty.

The Caroline Cougars also went after a 7-footer — Elmore Smith of Kentucky State — in the second selection of the "secret draft."

Information on the selections came from sources around the league.

Artis Gilmore, Jacksonville's towering center, went to the Kentucky Colonels amid speculation he is already committed to sign with the ABA. He was the ninth player selected during the first round, giving credence to further reports the 7-2 star's talents went to the highest bidder.

Carolina and Utah were reported to be the other clubs who made bids for Gilmore during the meeting.

The first and second round selections show the ABA owners were looking to strengthen their front courts. The smallest player of the 21 chosen was 6-1 Charlie Davis of Wake Forest, whowas picked by the New York Jets as one of their three second-round choices. The remaining players chosen were all 6-7 or taller.

Trades and other types of deals gave some teams more than one selection in the first and second round of the draft. The third round is to come this morning.

Other first round choices were: Pittsburgh, Howard Porter of Villanova; Denver, Cliff Melly of Colorado; Denver, Ralph Simpson of Michigan State; Virginia, Ken Durrett of LaSalle; Memphis, Randy Denton of Duke; Virginia, Willie Sojourner of Weber State; Texas, Stann Love of Oregon and Virginia, Dan Lewis of Tulsa.

In the second round Texas took Roger Brown of Kansas and Wicks; Denver, Marv Roberts of Utah State; Carolina, Yunkas; New York, Charlie Davis of Wake Forest; the Floridians, Willie Long of New Mexico; and Darnell Roberts, a graduate of San Jose State who has spent the last three years in the Army, went to Indiana.

League officials announced a lineup change for the West in today's All-Star game.

Larry Cannon of Denver was unable to play, officials said, because he was required to attend a National Guard training session in Miami. His Denver teammate, Julius Keye, will take Cnnon's place if he's able to make travel connections.

The game, scheduled for 2 p.m., will be televised by CBS.

ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph told newsmen Friday they would continue efforts to regain the services of Spencer Haywood now playing with the NBA Seattle Supersonics.

"We are concerned about the implications of any player in any sport not honoring a proper contract," Dolph said.

Haywood jumped from the Denver Rockets to Seattle last year.

NBA ROUNDUP

Pistol Pete Takes Care Of Milwaukee

By United Press International

The Milwaukee Bucks and their 10-game winning streak were "pistol-whipped" Friday night.

Pistol Pete Maravich scored three baskets in the last two minutes to rally the Atlanta Hawks to a 117-110 victory over the Bucks. Milwaukee had taken a 108-105 lead with 2:07 remaining when Maravich connected on three baskets and Bill Bridges hit one to boost Atlanta ahead.

An aggressive Hawk defense held Milwaukee's Lew Alcindor to just 16 points, one of his lowest totals of the season, in handing the Bucks their eighth loss against 39 victories, best mark in the National Basketball Association.

Walt Bellamy led the Hawks with 25 points and Maravich had 22. Bobby Dandridge was high man for Milwaukee with 22.

In other NBA action Friday night, Baltimore bombed Boston 136-117, Philadelphia nipped Phoenix 117-116, Los Angeles ripped San Francisco 130-110, Seattle edged Cincinnati 132-131 in overtime, Portland stunned Detroit 123-112 and Buffalo clipped San Diego 101-94.

Earl Monroe had 26 points and Gus Johnson 25 to lead Baltimore past the Celtics. Monroe had 19 points in the first half as the Bullets built a 72-51 lead.

Bailey Howell's basket with 19 seconds left gave the 76ers a victory over Phoenix. Howell scored after Archie Clark stole the Suns' inbounds pass at mid-court. Billy Cunningham had 31 points and Hal Greer 30 to lead Philadelphia while Dick Van Arsdale was tops for Phoenix with 23.

Spencer Haywood scored 30 points and Tom Meschery's two foul shots put Seattle ahead to stay in overtime as the Sonics beat Cincinnati. The Royals led 13-119 with five seconds left in regulation time when steals and baskets by Lee Winfield and Don Smith tied the game.

Geoff Petrie's 28 point performance helped offset a 36-point effort by Dave Bing as Portland beat the Pistons and Don May connected for 29 points including a pair of crucial baskets in the fourth period, to help Buffalo send the Rockets to their ninth straight loss.

Rally Off To Foggy Beginning

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI)—With the 40th Monte Carlo Rally only hours old, the weather today made its mark by focing officials to relax one of the rigid time-limits on the first stage of the seven-day event.

Fog in Morocco, coupled with exceptionally rough roads outside Marrakesh, prompted rally organizers to drop the required average speed to some 50 mph for the 40 competitors on the African route.

The remaining 190 crews from nine European cities faced better conditions as they started out on the 2,200-mile trek toward Monte Carlo.

One curios exception, however, was Monte Carlo itself, where the 32 starters immediately headed into deep snow-filled passes in the Southern French Alps. All cars will have to tackle this section but the crews starting here it proved a double handicap.

The 25 cars which started Friday morning from Oslo, meanwhile, all were reported on time as they drove through Poland.

No troubles were reported on Friday's stage through Sweden, and drivers arriving Friday night at Ystad for the ferry crossing to Swinoujscie, Poland, said roads were dry south of Gothenburg and it was "pure Sunday driving."

Alpine Renault, with eight factory-backed cars all setting out from Marrakesh, emerged firm favorites to win the event for the first time. Porsche, its main rival, not only has switched to an untested car—the 914-6 model—but also was forced to change its drivers' line-up in Warsaw at the last moment.

Other works teams battling it out as the crews sped through the first of three days of non-stop driving across Europe were Lancia and Fiat of Italy, West Germany'S BMW, and Nissan Datsun of Japan.

The Plot Thickens In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Developments in the grand jury investigation into Erie County's proposed domed stadium continued Friday as it was learned the project engineer for the facility has already testified before a federal grand jury.

J. Lloyd Walker, project engineer for the architectural firm which was hired to design the stadium, was subpoenaed to testify before a county grand jury which is also probing the project.

Walker and Dome stadium atty. Victor T. Fuzak were recipients of "John Doe" subpoenaes issued Jan. 9 by Dist. Atty. Michael F. Dillon.

It was learned that Walker appeared before the federal panel Monday after being granted immunity from prosecution. He originally appeared before the Grand Jury last December.

Fuzak indicated Wednesday that Dome Stadium Inc. initially asked the U.S. Department of Justice to investigate the project last September. Fuzak said he made the request in Washington.

The federal panel is investigating alleged bribery, conspiracy and extortion in connection with the $50 million stadium project.

In other stadium developments Friday:

—County executive B. John Tutuska said the state's Urban Development Corp. (UDC) would "not back out" of talks despite the federal and county investigation. The county executive met with representatives of the UDC to determine what part it may be able to play in construction of a stadium in the county.

—The county legislature's 11-member Republican majority advised the FBI it had no knowledge of any wrongdoing in connection with the stadium project. They said they were "anxious to provide whatever cooperation and assistance you might desire."

World Bobsled Races At Killer Blue Lake

CERVINIA, Italy (UPI)—Bobsledders from 13 nations today attacked the killer Blue Lake slope in the shadow of the Matterhorn for the world two-man bobsled championships.

Warming weather threatening to soften the slope which took the life of the Spanish team captain, Luis Lopez, on Thursday forced officials to move the starting time up an hour to 8 a.m.(2 a.m. EST) to take better advantage of the early morning cold.

First down the track was the Italian No. 2 team of Enzo Vicario and Corrado Dal Fabbro, one of the favorites after another accident eliminated the defending world champion team of Horst Floth and Peppi Bader of West Germany in a trial run.

More than half a dozen accidents marred the trials for the two-man championships,

UCLA Prepares For Notre Dame With 87-62 Romp Over Loyola

UCLA is ready for its big test with Notre Dame this afternoon.

The Bruins flattened Loyola of Illinois 87-62 Friday night as part of a Chicago double bill. Sidney Wicks and Steve Patterson combined for 47 of the winners' points.

The nationally top-rated and unbeaten Bruins met rugged Notre Dame today before a national television audience.

On the Coast Friday, USF had to go all out to edge crosstown rival San Francisco State 64-61 with Johnny Burks tallying 16 for the Dons, now 5-9 after a disastrous start.

Pepperdine snapped a four-game losing streak by breezing past Chico State, 78-62. Steve Sims had 19 for the Waves in that one.

UC Santa Barbara flattened Cal Poly Pomona by a school record 123-68 count as Doug Rex hit 23 points and the Guachos ran their record to a flashy 12-3.

San Diego State hit 19 of 32 second-half shots to down nationally second-rated small school Louisiana Tech 88-78.

At the All-Cal tournament in San Diego, UC Riverside took UC Irvine 71-66 behind Mike Washington's 22 markers to move into tonight's finals against host UC San Diego, which downed UC Davis 72-60.

Tough Lewis and Clark called on Hawaii, where the Rainbows are hoping for national recognition. It was Hawaii 91, Lewis and Clark 76, as the winners emerged 13-2 and the losers 10-3.

Commission Proposes A Radical System

SEATTLE (UPI) —The time may come when college football players grade their coaches. In gist, that was what a special University of Washington human rights commission has recommended.

The proposal of a "systematic means of gathering players' evaluation of coaches' performance" was included in a 29-page report compiled by the commission and released Friday.

The commission, which earlier recommended the dismissal of football coach Jin Owens and director of sports Joe Kearney, was appointed to look into new charges of racism in the university's athletic department.

In the report, the 27-member multi-racial commission took no action regarding Owens and Kearney, saying, "The group placed emphasis not on the finding of fault in individuals but on the search for changes in the situation which would diminish the chances for racial frictions in the future.

ABA Drafts Cautiously; Wicks, Carr Fail To Go In First Round

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI)— First round draft picks of the American Basketball Association Friday failed to include some of the nation's premier college players, giving indication the owners felt they would be unable to sign them in a bidding war with the NBA.

Although said to have been selected in the second round, the first round picks do not include UCLA's Sidney Wicks, Austin Carr of Notre Dame and Rich Yunkus of Georgia Tech.

The draft, held on the eve of the league's fourth All-Star game, was kicked off by the Utah Stars' selection of Jim McDaniel of Western Kentucky, a 7-footer sought to back up veteran Zelmo Beaty.

The Caroline Cougars also went after a 7-footer — Elmore Smith of Kentucky State — in the second selection of the "secret draft."

Information on the selections came from sources around the league.

Artis Gilmore, Jacksonville's towering center, went to the Kentucky Colonels amid speculation he is already committed to sign with the ABA. He was the ninth player selected during the first round, giving credence to further reports the 7-2 star's talents went to the highest bidder.

Carolina and Utah were reported to be the other clubs who made bids for Gilmore during the meeting.

The first and second round selections show the ABA owners were looking to strengthen their front courts. The smallest player of the 21 chosen was 6-1 Charlie Davis of Wake Forest, whowas picked by the New York Jets as one of their three second-round choices. The remaining players chosen were all 6-7 or taller.

Trades and other types of deals gave some teams more than one selection in the first and second round of the draft. The third round is to come this morning.

Other first round choices were: Pittsburgh, Howard Porter of Villanova; Denver, Cliff Melly of Colorado; Denver, Ralph Simpson of Michigan State; Virginia, Ken Durrett of LaSalle; Memphis, Randy Denton of Duke; Virginia, Willie Sojourner of Weber State; Texas, Stann Love of Oregon and Virginia, Dan Lewis of Tulsa.

In the second round Texas took Roger Brown of Kansas and Wicks; Denver, Marv Roberts of Utah State; Carolina, Yunkas; New York, Charlie Davis of Wake Forest; the Floridians, Willie Long of New Mexico; and Darnell Roberts, a graduate of San Jose State who has spent the last three years in the Army, went to Indiana.

League officials announced a lineup change for the West in today's All-Star game.

Larry Cannon of Denver was unable to play, officials said, because he was required to attend a National Guard training session in Miami. His Denver teammate, Julius Keye, will take Cnnon's place if he's able to make travel connections.

The game, scheduled for 2 p.m., will be televised by CBS.

ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph told newsmen Friday they would continue efforts to regain the services of Spencer Haywood now playing with the NBA Seattle Supersonics.

"We are concerned about the implications of any player in any sport not honoring a proper contract," Dolph said.

Haywood jumped from the Denver Rockets to Seattle last year.

Pistol Pete Takes Care Of Milwaukee

By United Press International

The Milwaukee Bucks and their 10-game winning streak were "pistol-whipped" Friday night.

Pistol Pete Maravich scored three baskets in the last two minutes to rally the Atlanta Hawks to a 117-110 victory over the Bucks. Milwaukee had taken a 108-105 lead with 2:07 remaining when Maravich connected on three baskets and Bill Bridges hit one to boost Atlanta ahead.

An aggressive Hawk defense held Milwaukee's Lew Alcindor to just 16 points, one of his lowest totals of the season, in handing the Bucks their eighth loss against 39 victories, best mark in the National Basketball Association.

Walt Bellamy led the Hawks with 25 points and Maravich had 22. Bobby Dandridge was high man for Milwaukee with 22.

In other NBA action Friday night, Baltimore bombed Boston 136-117, Philadelphia nipped Phoenix 117-116, Los Angeles ripped San Francisco 130-110, Seattle edged Cincinnati 132-131 in overtime, Portland stunned Detroit 123-112 and Buffalo clipped San Diego 101-94.

Earl Monroe had 26 points and Gus Johnson 25 to lead Baltimore past the Celtics. Monroe had 19 points in the first half as the Bullets built a 72-51 lead.

Bailey Howell's basket with 19 seconds left gave the 76ers a victory over Phoenix. Howell scored after Archie Clark stole the Suns' inbounds pass at midcourt. Billy Cunningham had 31 points and Hal Greer 30 to lead Philadelphia while Dick Van Arsdale was tops for Phoenix with 23.

Spencer Haywood scored 30 points and Tom Meschery's two foul shots put Seattle ahead to stay in overtime as the Sonics beat Cincinnati. The Royals led 13-119 with five seconds left in regulation time when steals and baskets by Lee Winfield and Don Smith tied the game.

Geoff Petrie's 28 point performance helped offset a 36-point effort by Dave Bing as Portland beat the Pistons and Don May connected for 29 points including a pair of crucial baskets in the fourth period, to help Buffalo send the Rockets to their ninth straight loss.

TOWERING FIGURE — Curtis Rowe of UCLA, one of the nation's most outstanding college basketball players, is one of the big reasons why the Bruins are favored to win the NCAA title again this year. Last night he helped the Southern California school to an 87-62 win over Loyola of Chicago. Here he soars over Loyola's Bill Moody for a tip-in.

UCLA Prepares For Notre Dame With 87-62 Romp Over Loyola

UCLA is ready for its big test with Notre Dame this afternoon.

The Bruins flattened Loyola of Illinois 87-62 Friday night as part of a Chicago double bill. Sidney Wicks and Steve Patterson combined for 47 of the winners' points.

The nationally top-rated and unbeaten Bruins met rugged Notre Dame today before a national television audience.

On the Coast Friday, USF had to go all out to edge crosstown rival San Francisco State 64-61 with Johnny Burks tallying 16 for the Dons, now 5-9 after a disastrous start.

Pepperdine snapped a four-game losing streak by breezing past Chico State, 78-62. Steve Sims had 19 for the Waves in that one.

UC Santa Barbara flattened Cal Poly Pomona by a school record 123-68 count as Doug Rex hit 23 points and the Guachos ran their record to a flashy 12-3.

San Diego State hit 19 of 32 second-half shots to down nationally second-rated small school Louisiana Tech 88-78.

At the All-Cal tournament in San Diego, UC Riverside took UC Irvine 71-66 behind Mike Washington's 22 markers to move into tonight's finals against host UC San Diego, which downed UC Davis 72-60.

Tough Lewis and Clark called on Hawaii, where the Rainbows are hoping for national recognition. It was Hawaii 91, Lewis and Clark 76, as the winners emerged 13-2 and the losers 10-3.

Other scores: Pasadena 85, LaVerne 81; Los Angeles State 112, Valley State 78; Hayward State 98, St. Martin's 88; Presidio 107, Humboldt State 77; Fresno State 90, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo 73; Eastern Washington 86, Oregon Tech 68; Central Washington 76, Western Washington 69; Whitworth 64, Southern Oregon 62; Azusa 103, Cal Lutheran 92.

Commission Proposes A Radical System

SEATTLE (UPI) —The time may come when college football players grade their coaches. In gist, that was what a special University of Washington human rights commission has recommended.

The proposal of a "systematic means of gathering players' evaluation of coaches' performance" was included in a 29-page report compiled by the commission and released Friday.

The commission, which earlier recommended the dismissal of football coach Jin Owens and director of sports Joe Kearney, was appointed to look into new charges of racism in the university's athletic department.

In the report, the 27-member multi-racial commission took no action regarding Owens and Kearney, saying, "The group placed emphasis not on the finding of fault in individuals but on the search for changes in the situation which would diminish the chances for racial frictions in the future.

Biletnikoff Added To Pro Bowl Roster

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Fred Biletnikoff, veteran receiver for the Oakland Raiders, has been added to the American Football Conference All-Star squad for Sunday's pro bowl with the National Football Conference.

The AFC was given permission to add Biletnikoff after San Diego Chargers' receiver Gary Garrison suffered a bruised leg muscle in practice. Garrison may not play.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charlie Winner, ex-head coach of the St. Louis football Cardinals, was signed Friday as an assistant coach with the Washington Redskins.

Winner, who headed the Cardinals for five seasons, is the seventh assistant hired by new Washington Coach George Allen.

Basketball

OLEAN, N.Y. (UPI) — St. Bonaventure University and UCLA will meet for the first time on a basketball court in the 1972-73 season.

A St. Bonaventure spokesman said Friday the Bonnies will face UCLA during a western swing.

Tennis

DETROIT (UPI) — Holland's Tom Okker plays Rod Laver tonight with the Australian seeking his sixth straight $10,000 victory in the $210,000 Tennis Champions Classic.

The first match of the tennis doubleheader has Arthur Ashe, of Gum Spring, Va., Laver's most recent victim, hoping to earn a return shot by beating Ken Rosewall of Australia. The winner takes on the winner of the Laver-Okker sets next Thursday in New York.

Track

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Martin McGrady and Lee Evans, the fastest men alive over 600 yards of the boards, head a field of 800 athletes tongith in the fourth annual Philadelphia Track Classic.

McGrady, winner of 27 of 29 major races during the last four years, clashes head-on with Evans, the speedster from the H. Lundberg School, on one of the classic's feature events.

Between them, Evans and McGrady have run six of the seven fastest times over 600 yards.

Hallinan Sees Angela 'Lynching'

Supporters of Angela Y. Davis, accused in connection with the Hall of Justice shoot-out, were told last night that "unless people are made aware of the truth" the 26-year-old black revolutionary will be "lynched."

Addressing a sparse audience at the College of Marin, Attorney Terence Hallinan charged that "Marin County is out to get the woman."

"Let's have no illusions," he said. "Unless the people of Marin County and the state stand up and stop this lynching, they are going to get her."

Hallinan, who has visited with Miss Davis in Marin County Jail, was one of four speakers who addressed the rally called by the Bay Area Angela Davis Defense Committee and the college's Black Students Union.

Miss Davis is charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy as a result of the Aug. 7 fray. Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley and three of his abductors were killed in an abortive attempt to free three San Quentin convicts.

Hallinan claimed last night the judge was shot twice during the escape attempt. One shot, he said, was the widely reported shotgun blast in the face. The other was a bullet through the heart which the attorney said was fired from outside the van.

Meanwhile, in San Francisco, supporters of Angela Davis have announced formation of a "national committee of the arts" to aid her defense.

Screen stars Jane Fonda, Elliot Gould, Don Sutherland and Carrie Snodgrass are among the members.

The National Committee of the Arts to Free Angela Davis was formed with offices in Los Angeles. It said it had more than 50 well-known painters, sculptors, writers, actors, musicians and poets as members.

Five Hurt In Two-Car Smash-Up

Five persons were injured last night in a two-car collision on Highway 101 near the Alto overpass when the motorists were unable to stop for commute traffic which had abruptly slowed.

The California Highway Patrol reported that a northbound vehicle driven by Gerald Fogel, 23, Daly City, was unable to stop so the driver suddenly changed lanes, causing the car to roll over. A second car, driven by Lea Anderson, 35, of San Francisco, then rammed Fogel's vehicle, the officers said.

The accident occurred at 6:45 p.m.

Fogel was treated at Marin General Hospital for possible rib injuries and a passenger in his car, Maria Maselli, 28, Daly City, was listed in good condition today at the Hospital with a possible back sprain and head injuries.

Miss Anderson was listed in fair condition today at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael with cuts. Two passengers in Miss Anderson's car — Gale Vandersluis, 18, San Francisco, and Jeremiah E. Fitzgerald, 23, San Francisco — were treated for minor cuts at Marin General.

Final Rubella Clinics Slated

The final two make-up clinics for rubella (german measles) vaccinations will be held next week in San Rafael.

Children aged 1 through 11, who have not yet received the shots, may get their vaccinations Monday or Tuesday at the County Health Department Clinic, 920 Grand Avenue.

The clinic hours are 1:30 to 4 p.m. on Monday and 4 to 7 p.m. on Tuesday.

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, said the make-up clinics are an extension of the school vaccination program held in November and December. The mass vaccination program is aimed at preventing an epidemic of rubella, which can maim and sometimes kill unborn infants.

Rights Group 'Dismal', Says Resigning Member

Bella H. Aaron of the Marin County Human Rights Commission, criticized by colleagues for being too independent, announced her resignation yesterday with a parting blast at the group.

Mrs. Aaron, a Sausalito attorney, charged the commission with committing the very type of discrimination it is supposed to fight. In her letter of resignation to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, Mrs. Aaron described the commission's record as dismal and ineffective.

Mrs. Aaron has been on the commission for four years. She will continue to serve as administrator of the Police-Community Relations Program. It was her work in police community relations that led to friction with other commissioners, who charged that she was acting independently without consulting other members. Last week, the commission severed relations with Mrs. Aaron's program.

Mrs. Aaron said she was asked to resign by James Quiett, commission chairman, but that this had not forced her resignation.

She said, rather, that she is convinced the present commission will never be effective in dealing with problems of discrimination in Marin.

"A commission supposedly dedicated to resolving the problems of discrimination has evolved into an organization which is responsible for committing those very practices of discriminatory behavior which it was created to ameliorate," she said.

"The commission's record in the field of housing, education and employment has been dismal enough by itself; it really begins to generate into pure folly when the commission discriminates against one of its own members because she has tried to be effective on the job.

"Their main criticism of my work is that it has been too 'independent'. I did not join the commission for rest and recuperation but to carry on the mandate given to me by the board of supervisors."

County supervisors will begin looking for a successor to Mrs. Aaron Tuesday.

Burdon's Burden

LONDON (UPI) —Emi records announced Friday it has refused to distribute "Black Man's Burden," a new album by rock singer Eric Burdon, because it contains lyrics considered offensive to Queen Elizabeth.

Jones Wins Novato's 'Man Of '70'

David Price Jones, 35-year-old Novato attorney, has been named Novato's "Outstanding Young Man of 1970" at the distinguished service award dinner of the Novato Jaycees.

Jones, a partner in the firm of Carrow and Jones, was nominated by the Novato Lions Club and the Novato Civic Foundation. The award was made Thursday night.

Jones played a key role last year in development of Pioneer Memorial Park, serving as president of the civic foundation during the period when $30,000 in volunteer labor and material was secured for the park project.

He also served last year as chairman of the Citizens committee Promoting Passage of City Park Bonds.

He is president of the foundation and a director of the Lions Club.

Jones, his wife, Kay, and son, Gared, live at 2 Jackson Court.

Unusual Mishap

PORTSMOUTH, England (UPI) — Beer wagon driver Rowland Barnes, 45, was killed Friday when a high-pressure beer barrel he was loading in the cellar of the naval navigational school blew up, police said. The 80-gallon tank was being filled from Barnes' beer truck outside.

Goodrich Co. Sees European Expansion

AKRON (UPI) — B.F. Goodrich Co. expects to spend an increasing share of its capital outlays for expansion in Europe in the 1970s in view of the vigorously expanding European economy, according to Ward Keener, chairman.

John Ong, president of the company's International B.F. Goodrich Division, added that his division, through tires alone, by 1980 could be contributing operating income equal to current operating income for the entire corporation. In 1969 the company reported operating income of more than $100 million.

Sweepstakes Lure New Kind Of Fan

PARIS (UPI)—For the men who market Virginia Slims ("You've come a long way, baby") cigarettes, Jan. 2 wasn't as black a day as it might have been.

True, the commercials that helped them reach sales of 5 billion cigarettes a year in little more than two years—and incense Women's Lib—were now banned from U.S. television along with all other cigarette ads. But, indicative of new trends in cigarette promotion, the Virginia Slims people were just winding up a "New Year's Eve in Paris" sweepstakes. It was part of a promotional effort to compensate for the lost television exposure that includes sponsorship of the Powder Puff Derby for women pilots, an invitational tournament series for women tennis players and an annual American Women's Opinion Poll. All are designed to appeal to women smokers, 40 per cent of the U.S. market.

"I wanted a travel sweepstakes because travel is the most exciting kind of reward. It fits the brand image—chic, sophisticated, upsale, fun," brand manager Steve S. Korson said.

Starting last August, Virginia Slims advertised the sweepstakes. At the end of October the French consul in New York put on a blindfold, reached into a drum and drew the names of winners from among almost 400,000 entries.

The 25 couples who arrived in New York City the day after Christmas to collect their trip came from 15 states. They included an unemployed machinist from Maine with his waitress wife and a California management consultant whose wife wears mink. There was a black heating engineer from New York City and a Puerto Rican nurse from Ohio, a meatcutter, a pipefitter, a tirebuilder, a golf ball packer, an air traffic controller, a truck dricer, a cocktail waitress and a professor of French literature. One winner's husband had been murdered earlier in the year. Another advanced her wedding date so she could make the trip her honeymoon.

After a night on the town in New York they flew to Paris.

In the days that followed the group toured Paris, Versailles and Fontainebleau. They ate on the Eiffel Tower. The women visited the salon of Nina Ricci and met designer Gerard Pipart. The men were outfitted with rented tuxedos for New Year's Eve and the women given free hairdos. A fleet of chauffeured limousines drove them to the Lido for a New Year's Even show.

For income tax purposes all this was valued at $3,000 a couple. Korson said this was "on the low side" but refused to specify total cost because of the "competitive situation" in the cigarette industry. He put it at 10 to 20 per cent of Virginia Slims' seven-figure promotion budget for 1970.

The immediate benefit was the gratitude of the winners. Korson also claims gains in two other areas.

—The ads for the sweepstakes stimulated new trial. Thirty per cent of the smokers who entered the contest tried Virginia Slims for the first time and a "significant percentage" switched to the brand.

—Retail outlets increased their inventory.

"These drops in the bucket add up," Korson said. "You have to remember that cigarettes probably have the highest brand loyalty of any product. You know when you get a client you're going to have him for a long time."

State To Change Traffic Signs

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Motorists may have to look twice to recognize speed limit signs along California streets and highways during the next few years.

The state Public Works Department announced Monday that the signs, which historically have white numerals on a black background, will be gradually replaced during the next four years with ones having black numerals on a white background.

The department said the move is designed to meet national traffic safety standards. Public Works Director James A. Moe said the black-on-white signs would be more visible to motorists than the current signs.

Radiation Shaft Drilled

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Nevada Test Site scientists have drilled into a shaft in the desert floor to retrieve samples of radiation from a nuclear test which leaked radioactive dust into the atmosphere Dec. 18.

Radiation from the 20 kiloton blast was detected in 13 western states and as far as the Canadian border. Six hundred atomic workers were evacuated from the rest area near Yucca Flat following the leakage.

The Atomic Energy Commission said samples recovered from the shaft might give clues to what caused the leak. Underground nuclear testing has been suspended pending the outcome of the investigation.

Sweepstakes Lure New Kind Of Fan

PARIS (UPI)—For the men who market Virginia Slims ("You've come a long way, baby") cigarettes, Jan. 2 wasn't as black a day as it might have been.

True, the commercials that helped them reach sales of 5 billion cigarettes a year in little more than two years—and incense Women's Lib—were now banned from U.S. television along with all other cigarette ads. But, indicative of new trends in cigarette promotion, the Virginia Slims people were just winding up a "New Year's Eve in Paris" sweepstakes. It was part of a promotional effort to compensate for the lost television exposure that includes sponsorship of the Powder Puff Derby for women pilots, an invitational tournament series for women tennis players and an annual American Women's Opinion Poll. All are designed to appeal to women smokers, 40 per cent of the U.S. market.

"I wanted a travel sweepstakes because travel is the most exciting kind of reward. It fits the brand image—chic, sophisticated, upsale, fun," brand manager Steve S. Korson said.

Starting last August, Virginia Slims advertised the sweepstakes. At the end of October the French consul in New York put on a blindfold, reached into a drum and drew the names of winners from among almost 400,000 entries.

The 25 couples who arrived in New York City the day after Christmas to collect their trip came from 15 states. They included an unemployed machinist from Maine with his waitress wife and a California management consultant whose wife wears mink. There was a black heating engineer from New York City and a Puerto Rican nurse from Ohio, a meatcutter, a pipefitter, a tirebuilder, a golf ball packer, an air traffic controller, a truck dricer, a cocktail waitress and a professor of French literature. One winner's husband had been murdered earlier in the year. Another advanced her wedding date so she could make the trip her honeymoon.

After a night on the town in New York they flew to Paris. In the days that followed the group toured Paris, Versailles and Fontainebleau. They ate on the Eiffel Tower. The women visited the salon of Nina Ricci and met designer Gerard Pipart. The men were outfitted with rented tuxedos for New Year's Eve and the women given free hairdos. A fleet of chauffeured limousines drove them to the Lido for a New Year's Even show.

For income tax purposes all this was valued at $3,000 a couple. Korson said this was "on the low side" but refused to specify total cost because of the "competitive situation" in the cigarette industry. He put it at 10 to 20 per cent of Virginia Slims' seven-figure promotion budget for 1970.

The immediate benefit was the gratitude of the winners. Korson also claims gains in two other areas.

—The ads for the sweepstakes stimulated new trial. Thirty per cent of the smokers who entered the contest tried Virginia Slims for the first time and a "significant percentage" switched to the brand.

—Retail outlets increased their inventory.

"These drops in the bucket add up," Korson said. "You have to remember that cigarettes probably have the highest brand loyalty of any product. You know when you get a client you're going to have him for a long time."

State To Change Traffic Signs

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Motorists may have to look twice to recognize speed limit signs along California streets and highways during the next few years.

The state Public Works Department announced Monday that the signs, which historically have white numerals on a black background, will be gradually replaced during the next four years with ones having black numerals on a white background.

The department said the move is designed to meet national traffic safety standards. Public Works Director James A. Moe said the black-on-white signs would be more visible to motorists than the current signs.

Radiation Shaft Drilled

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Nevada Test Site scientists have drilled into a shaft in the desert floor to retrieve samples of radiation from a nuclear test which leaked radioactive dust into the atmosphere Dec. 18.

Radiation from the 20 kiloton blast was detected in 13 western states and as far as the Canadian border. Six hundred atomic workers were evacuated from the rest area near Yucca Flat following the leakage.

The Atomic Energy Commission said samples recovered from the shaft might give clues to what caused the leak. Underground nuclear testing has been suspended pending the outcome of the investigation.

Chief Joe Brusatori Has Seen Changes –

SAN RAFAEL Chief of Police Joe Brusatori tells one of his patrolmen, Ronald Averiette, that he, too, once rode a motorcycle in the performance of his duty. Brusatori, who joined the San Rafael force in 1939, has seen it grow from 12 members to 54 officers and 18 civilians, and has risen from school crossing guard and patrolman to "head hog" as a plaque presented by the department's pistol team jokingly proclaims him.

Profile Of A Marinite

By C. P. McCARTHY

Things have changed considerably since San Rafael Police Chief Joseph J. Brusatori joined the force in 1939.

For one, Brusatori would not be eligible to join the department today. He stands an inch under the five-foot-nine-inch height requirement.

Brusatori, 58, is a native of San Rafael. He joined the police force in 1939 when then Chief Barney Ruschetti asked him if he wanted a job.

TODAY, A MAN seeking to be a San Rafael officer must compete with other applicants as well as pass a written exam, physical agility test, oral interview, lie detector test, psychological tests, physical exam and a background check.

Police communications have changed too, Brusatori said in an interview the other day.

In 1940, he said, police headquarters would signal officers in the city's three patrol cars by switching on red lights on top of hills or buildings in the city. The patrolmen, seeing the light, would then call headquarters from a street call box.

IN THE EVENT of an emergency, Brusatori said, San Rafael headquarters would telephone the message to the San Anselmo Police Department which would radio it to Berkeley police who would radio it to receivers in San Rafael's patrol cars.

The long distance relay was necessary because of San Rafael's somewhat-less-than-sophisticated radio equipment.

In addition to the three patrol cars, the force in 1940 had two motorcycles. Brustori, still rookie of the 12-man force, volunteered to take one of the motorcycles in 1942 — despite the fact he had no idea how to ride one.

AFTER HE HAD volunteered, he went to a San Rafael garage where he was told it would take him a week to learn how to ride one of the two-wheelers. Brusatori didn't have a week, and after one night's practice was good enough to escort a funeral the next day.

After serving as a school crossing guard, desk man, and patrolman, Brusatori was appointed juvenile officer in 1955, deputy chief in 1959 and chief in 1969 to succeed retiring Charles J. Chiesa.

Voters last November approved a city charter amendment making the position of police chief appointive instead of elective. The move had twice before been defeated by voters.

ONE OF THE differences in the proposal last year was that it had the endorsement of Brusatori. His predecessor had opposed the measure.

Brusatori said he hopes to be reappointed when his present term expires in April.

Brusatori's father came to San Rafael from Italy in 1904, and worked as a foreman in Sausalito with the Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

THE CHIEF HAS two sisters, Rose Crader of San Rafael and Mary Skillicorn of San Francisco, and a brother, Robert Brusatori of San Rafael. Another brother, former Marin Superior Court Judge N. Charles Brusatori, died in 1966.

The chief attended Short School, San Rafael Grammar School, San Rafael High School and San Francisco Law School for a year and a half.

He worked at Albert's Department Store and was a partner in the Garatti Grocery in San Rafael before joining the police department.

BRUSATORI HAS a son, John Joseph Brusatori of San Rafael; two daughters, one in Daly City and one in Oregon, and — he is quick to add — two grandsons and two granddaughters.

He and wife, Dorothy, live in the Glenwood area of San Rafael.

Over his years as a policeman, Brusatori has watched San Rafael and the police department progress.

"You used to go down the street and know 99 out of 100 people. Now you might know nine out of a hundred," he said.

THE DEPARTMENT has grown to 54 officers and 18 civilian employees since Brusatori joined the 12-man force.

Thirty years ago, he said, the biggest police problem was the family disturbance. Today the department deals with murder, rape, narcotics offenses and burglaries.

Years ago, the chief said, there were two definitions: a police officer was the man who arrested the person you wanted arrested, and a cop was the man who arrested you.

In keeping with the times, a gold-plated pig sits on a pedestal on Brusatori's desk. A plaque attached to it announces it was presented by the police department's crack pistol team to the "head hog."

FOR THE LARGE residence and grounds of Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Ramsey of San Rafael, landscape architects Sidney M. Lewin and Associates designed five separate gardens. Above is the front garden with a large expanse of lawn and a foundation planting of evergreen shrubs. At left is the entry court which features a six-foot diameter explosed aggregate fountain, set on river-washed stones which in turn are set in concrete. And below, in this side yard arrangement, the Lewin landscapers have used natural stone walls to adjust the grades around the existing trees. Slatted wood seats are cantilevered from the stone planter walls. And just the right kind of ratio between sunshine and shade has been attained to make for easy relaxation for the occupants.

NINE OF MARIN'S pioneer doctors organized the Marin County Medical Society in 1898 "to fight quackery and to uphold the high standards of the medical profession." Members are pictured here at a gathering to hear scientific papers read at Pastori's shortly after the 1906 earthquake. Dr. John H. Kuser, the society's first secretary and long-time county health officer, is fourth from left in the center row. Dr. W. F. Jones, who as San Rafael city health officer worked with Dr. Kuser in directing the fight against the 1918 influenza epidemic, is second from left in the same row. Dr. W. J. Wickham, first president of the medical society, is second from the right. The photo, copied from an original print in the collection of Farrington Jones, was presented to the Marin County Historical Society Museum in San Rafael's Boyd Park by the San Rafael General Hospital in 1959.

Marin County's Heroic Country Doctor

John H. Kuser Led The Fight Against 1918 Influenza Epidemic

(Editor's Note: This is another of the several manuscripts completed for the Marin Magazine by the late florence Donnelly, long-time Independent-Journal staff member and historian, telling of early-day events and personalities in Marin County.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

There was a time when everyone in Marin walked the streets in masks and fear, and not even the four walls of their home could give them a feeling of security.

And there was a man — a country doctor — who played the hero's role to prevent what could have been a major catastrophe in his county.

He was Dr. John Henry Kuser, physician and surgeon.

DR. KUSER WAS a man to whom patients and public reacted differently. Those who did not know him well were sometimes offended by his brusque manner, and disconcerted by his thundering in his heavy accent.

But if they listened, he was railing against stupidity and poor sanitation.

Those who knew him were aware of his efficiency, and of the kindliness that was in his heart. They respected his edicts. And they were amused by his manner.

HE WAS BORN in Zurich, Switzerland, in 1863, and was a graduate of the University of Munich in Germany, the country offering the finest in medical education at the time.

Maj. Newell Vanderbilt wrote of Dr. Kuser in a chapter for Ira B. Cross' book, "Banking in California: Financing and Empire."

According to Major Vanderbilt, himself a prominent Marinite, Dr. Kuser had traveled and studied further in Europe and Africa before coming to the United States in 1895.

UPON ARRIVAL in the U.S., he came immediately to Marin County and opened an office in Novato. Then, according to Major Vanderbilt, he took an active part in the organization of the Marin County Medical Society, completed Dec. 11, 1897, and served as its first secretary. Dr. W. J. Wickman was the president.

Dr. Kuser also proceeded to establish a hospital in Novato that was a boon to the community.

STILL ACCORDING to Major Vanderbilt, it was Dr. Kuser who had set up an emergency center to treat the 14 persons injured when riots between Chinese and Japanese workers broke out in 1897 in Novato's orchards.

In 1907, Dr. Kuser was appointed county physician, and in 1908 he coped successfully with his first crisis in that capacity, a smallpox epidemic.

In 1910 he was named division surgeon of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad. In this position he was summoned to accident scenes to minister to the injured.

BUT IT WAS during the dark days of World War I that Dr. Kuser, and many other dedicated doctors like him, were to be confronted by their most menacing challenge.

United States forces were fighting on foreign soil, and many of its young sons did not return to their native land, or did so maimed for life. And the grief caused by the war casualties was sharpened at home by the scourge of Spanish influenza that swept over the country like wildfire.

At first Marin was complacent. The Marin Journal of Oct. 17, 1918, reported: "San Rafael has been singularly free from the epidemic of Spanish influenza that is sweeping the country."

BUT DR. KUSER and his fellows in the medical profession were not complacent. They were preparing for the worst — or better yet, to stave off the worst.

Reported the Journal:

"A meeting of the county health officer, John H. Kuser, and city health officer, Dr. W. F. Jones, with representatives of the supervisors and city council was held Tuesday afternoon and precautionary measures ordered to prevent further spread of influenza.

"THE LOCAL theaters are to receive notice that until further notice no shows are to be given. A committee was appointed for the purpose of renting a building which may be used for an isolation hospital, where patients will be received. A special request has been made that the lodges and fraternal orde refrain from holding ope meetings until permit given."

On Oct. 24, 1918, the newspaper carried this article:

"Precautions of every character are being taken by the city and county health authorities to prevent the spreading of the influenza epidemic. The schools and theaters have been closed; all public meetings of churches and lodges have been forbidden.

"ONLY TWO deaths have been reported, but the number of light attacks is considerable. All the available rooms in the Cottage and West End hospitals have been taken, and two patients are in the Cottage Hospital Annex. The Herzog house on Sixth Street has been rented for the emergency."

And an account on Oct. 31, 1918, read:

"The city council introduced and passed an ordinance a few days ago which fixes a penalty to be imposed upon persons who fail or refuse to wear gauze masks when appearing on the streets."

THE MASKS were made of several layers of gauze with ties at each end, and covered the mouth and nose but not the eyes.

The same newspaper article also reported:

"Dr. J. H. Kuser has commandeered the Hotel Rafael."

The famous hotel, then owned by Baron John von Schroeder and his company, was being held by the United States government as alien property. The baron had returned to his native Germany several years earlier to train German troops, and the mortgage on the hotel was being foreclosed by the University of California.

TO OPEN THE hotel for emergency hospital use, Dr. Kuser first had to get the consent of both the regents of the university and federal officials in Washington. He went about it in his usual dynamic manner.

First, he obtained the university regents' approval of his plan in quick order. Then he directed Dist. Atty.

THE COTTAGE HOSPITAL was founded in San Rafael in 1905 by three doctors and served the community for 61 years through good times and bad, including the influenza epidemic of 1918. John K. Taylor bought the institution at 1120 Nye Street from Mrs. Joseph Dias in 1946 and changed its name to San Rafael General Hospital. It was being operated by a non-profit foundation at the time it closed its doors in May of 1966. Today it is the Cottage Residential Care Center, thus recovering a part of its old name.

NINE OF MARIN'S pioneer doctors organized the Marin County Medical Society in 1898 "to fight quackery and to uphold the high standards of the medical profession." Members are pictured here at a gathering to hear scientific papers read at Pastori's shortly after the 1906 earthquake. Dr. John H. Kuser, the society's first secretary and long-time county health officer, is fourth from left in the center row. Dr. W. F. Jones, who as San Rafael city health officer worked with Dr. Kuser in directing the fight against the 1918 influenza epidemic, is second from left in the same row. Dr. W. J. Wickham, first president of the medical society, is second from the right. The photo, copied from an original print in the collection of Farrington Jones, was presented to the Marin County Historical Society Museum in San Rafael's Boyd Park by the San Rafael General Hospital in 1959.

Marin County's Heroic Country Doctor

John H. Kuser Led The Fight Against 1918 Influenza Epidemic

(Editor's Note: This is another of the several manuscripts completed for the Marin Magazine by the late florence Donnelly, long-time Independent-Journal staff member and historian, telling of early-day events and personalities in Marin County.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

There was a time when everyone in Marin walked the streets in masks and fear, and not even the four walls of their home could give them a feeling of security.

And there was a man — a country doctor — who played the hero's role to prevent what could have been a major catastrophe in his county.

He was Dr. John Henry Kuser, physician and surgeon.

DR. KUSER WAS a man to whom patients and public reacted differently. Those who did not know him well were sometimes offended by his brusque manner, and disconcerted by his thundering in his heavy accent.

But if they listened, he was railing against stupidity and poor sanitation.

Those who knew him were aware of his efficiency, and of the kindliness that was in his heart. They respected his edicts. And they were amused by his manner.

HE WAS BORN in Zurich, Switzerland, in 1863, and was a graduate of the University of Munich in Germany, the country offering the finest in medical education at the time.

Maj. Newell Vanderbilt wrote of Dr. Kuser in a chapter for Ira B. Cross' book, "Banking in California: Financing and Empire."

According to Major Vanderbilt, himself a prominent Marinite, Dr. Kuser had traveled and studied further in Europe and Africa before coming to the United States in 1895.

UPON ARRIVAL in the U.S., he came immediately to Marin County and opened an office in Novato. Then, according to Major Vanderbilt, he took an active part in the organization of the Marin County Medical Society, completed Dec. 11, 1897, and served as its first secretary. Dr. W. J. Wickman was the president.

Dr. Kuser also proceeded to establish a hospital in Novato that was a boon to the community.

STILL ACCORDING to Major Vanderbilt, it was Dr. Kuser who had set up an emergency center to treat the 14 persons injured when riots between Chinese and Japanese workers broke out in 1897 in Novato's orchards.

In 1907, Dr. Kuser was appointed county physician, and in 1908 he coped successfully with his first crisis in that capacity, a smallpox epidemic.

In 1910 he was named division surgeon of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad. In this position he was summoned to accident scenes to minister to the injured.

BUT IT WAS during the dark days of World War I that Dr. Kuser, and many other dedicated doctors like him, were to be confronted by their most menacing challenge.

United States forces were fighting on foreign soil, and many of its young sons did not return to their native land, or did so maimed for life. And the grief caused by the war casualties was sharpened at home by the scourge of Spanish influenza that swept over the country like wildfire.

At first Marin was complacent. The Marin Journal of Oct. 17, 1918, reported: "San Rafael has been singularly free from the epidemic of Spanish influenza that is sweeping the country."

BUT DR. KUSER and his fellows in the medical profession were not complacent. They were preparing for the worst — or better yet, to stave off the worst.

Reported the Journal:

"A meeting of the county health officer, John H. Kuser, and city health officer, Dr. W. F. Jones, with representatives of the supervisors and city council was held Tuesday afternoon and precautionary measures ordered to prevent further spread of influenza.

"THE LOCAL theaters are to receive notice that until further notice no shows are to be given. A committee was appointed for the purpose of renting a building which may be used for an isolation hospital, where patients will be received. A special request has been made that the lodges and fraternal orde refrain from holding ope meetings until permit given."

On Oct. 24, 1918, the newspaper carried this article:

"Precautions of every character are being taken by the city and county health authorities to prevent the spreading of the influenza epidemic. The

Edward I. Butler to send a telegram to the alien property custodian in Washington asking for authority as county health officer to make emergency use of the hotel.

That same day, word was received from Washington that permission was granted. And by 4 p.m., Dr. Kuser had the water, gas and electric service resumed to the hotel, and the first patients were being admitted.

THE WISDOM of his move was verified by an article in the Journal a short time later that reported:

"Harold Hamilton worked heroically at Hotel Rafael one night last week. With two women nurses, he was in charge of 30 patients, many of them delirious. The county is taking care of 23 patients."

Many Marin people worked as volunteers during the epidemic. A number of the ill were treated in their homes, as the near disaster taxed the facilities of the hospitals, both regular and temporary.

THERE WERE many nights when Dr. Kuser, his colleagues and their volunteers worked without rest.

How many deathers resulted in Marin from the epidemic is not known. For the disease also had its deadly after-effects. People believed to be recovering would succumb suddenly to heart attacks. Others would be stricken with pneumonia and become fatalities.

With all the work and tragedy about him, Dr. Kuser had little time to worry about his son, Walter, who was serving with the United States Army.

ON NOV. 11, 1918, World War I ended. But its scars and those of the influenza epidemic remained for some time.

Dr. Kuser continued to serve his county as health officer.

Major Vanderbilt wrote that when the schooner Hanalai went aground and broke up on Duxbury Reef, it was Dr. Kuser who succeeded in resuscitating a number of those pulled from the water.

Entrance Hotel Rafael,
San Rafael Cal.

THE HOTEL RAFAEL, San Rafael's widely known luxury hotel, was pressed into emergency use as a hospital by Marin County Health Officer John Henry Kuser during the devastating influenza epidemic of 1918. The hotel, seen here through its front entrance at what is now Belle Avenue and San Rafael Drive, was built in the late 19th Century and challenged the Hotel Del Monte with its accommodations and spacious, landscaped grounds.

HE SERVED on the staffs of the Cottage Hospital and later the Ross General Hospital. And he remained something of a character in his community, sometimes feared for his tongue, respected for his knowledge and often beloved for his humanity.

He could become exasperated when a call for his help was delayed until the patient was near death. A typical remark would be: "Do you expect me to pump life back into them?"

And he was offended by pollution of the water and the air and by sanitary lacks.

A FRIEND riding with him once remarked: "How good is that smell from the hay — so salty and fresh!"

The doctor grunted in reply: "Humph! Nothing but decaying sewage."

The long and useful career of Dr. Kuser ended with his death Aug. 27, 1934. Newspapers in Marin and San francisco carried long obituaries. One of the most eloquent was printed in the Marin Journal on Aug. 30, 1934.

IT WAS WRITTEN by Sidney H. Small, widely-read San Rafael author and journalist who was a regular contributor to Saturday Evening Post and other national publications.

Small, who had been reared in San Rafael and knew the doctor well, wrote:

"In the dead hours of the night, before dawn, a good many years ago, a horse, drawing a light buggy, halted to let a train roar past. The driver slept, reins slack in his hands. The night had been spent caring for the sick,, and sleep had come because his tired eyes refused to stay open.

"THE MAN WAS John Henry Kuser, M.D., and he was being true to his oath as a physician.

"That he was alwys true to it is more important than who he was, where he was born or educated. Never once in his full life did he refuse to aid the sick; his charities were of the great kind, and he was unstinting of giving himself and his experience. He may have been the doctor of the rich; assuredly, he was the physician of the poor.

"He knew every inch of Marin from the days when his horse plodded before him; from the nights when the automobile lights failed and, in blackness, he drove over the old grade, lest a man die. In those days there was barley room enough for one machine on the road.

"HE WAS ON the beach when the Hanalai broke her back on the reef. The smallpox epidemic found him ready and waiting.

"How many babies there are, whose first touch — from blunt, kind fingers — was his, none of us will know. How many times his gruff voice said, 'Now don't cry,' cannot be counted. Of those occasions when his skill was unavailing, we will not know either.

"But we know that those who were left behind were the better for the love he held.

"HE WAS A good friend, but he was also a good enemy. Few men hated hypocrisy more than he, because he, himself, was so honest. "His life had run out, but clear to the end he had progressed. Just as he stepped from horse and buggy to old-fashioned automobile, and finally to the finest of American cars, so he advanced in his science. He was always learning, and, now that he is gone, we will learn what we must miss. . .

schools and theaters have been closed; all public meetings of churches and lodges have been forbidden.

"ONLY TWO deaths have been reported, but the number of light attacks is considerable. All the available rooms in the Cottage and West End hospitals have been taken, and two patients are in the Cottage Hospital Annex. The Herzog house on Sixth Street has been rented for the emergency."

And an account on Oct. 31, 1918, read:

"The city council introduced and passed an ordinance a few days ago which fixes a penalty to be imposed upon persons who fail or refuse to wear gauze masks when appearing on the streets."

THE MASKS were made of several layers of gauze with ties at each end, and covered the mouth and nose but not the eyes.

The same newspaper article also reported:

"Dr. J. H. Kuser has commandeered the Hotel Rafael."

The famous hotel, then owned by Baron John von Schroeder and his company, was being held by the United States government as alien property. The baron had returned to his native Germany several years earlier to train German troops, and the mortgage on the hotel was being foreclosed by the University of California.

TO OPEN THE hotel for emergency hospital use, Dr. Kuser first had to get the consent of both the regents of the university and federal officials in Washington. He went about it in his usual dynamic manner.

First, he obtained the university regents' approval of his plan in quick order. Then he directed Dist. Atty.

THE COTTAGE HOSPITAL was founded in San Rafael in 1905 by three doctors and served the community for 61 years through good times and bad, including the influenza epidemic of 1918. John K. Taylor bought the institution at 1120 Nye Street from Mrs. Joseph Dias in 1946 and changed its name to San Rafael General Hospital. It was being operated by a non-profit foundation at the time it closed its doors in May of 1966. Today it is the Cottage Residential Care Center, thus recovering a part of its old name.

the morning he was dying, 'He was a good man, a damn good man,' and he was! He was true to his oath: 'With purity and holiness I will pass my life and practice my art!' He did. He cared for the sick. . .good men and women, but also evil ones, tricky ones and deceitful ones, whom well he despised, but whom sick were entitled to everything he had to give — and this was much.

"HE LIKED A good dinner, a good joke, a good game. He had time for few of these things.

"He was a fighter. In the end, as he knew, he lost his own battle with his old enemy, Death. But even Death can claim little victory, having been beaten so many times before.

"Dr. Kuser died as he had seen others die, in the cold morning, just before the sun rose for another day. It was rather strange. The sun did rise on Monday for one brief moment. Then, for the first time in many months, the skies darkened again, as if in grief. A good man was gone.

"I THINK THAT even God must feel there will be a little more pain on earth, now that he is gone. Certainly, in the hearts of many there is anguish."

Small's article was a two-column story on the editorial page. Next to it was the editorial, written by E. L. Kynoch.

It said, in part: "Early Monday morning the hand of death was laid gently upon Dr. John H. Kuser. The entire county mourns his passing and grieves with the close friends and associates of the veteran physician. . . .

"BUT DR. KUSER, faithful and constant to the call of duty, ethical and professional among his colleagues, a splendid and upright citizen, is dead. The community and the state have lost a good man, a good physician, and a great man."

And in recognition of the depth of that loss, flags at the Marin County Courthouse, at San Rafael City Hall and at other public buildings in the county were lowered to half-staff to honor the memory of Dr. John H. Kuser, public official, physician to many and friend to all.

Two Years Of Painting Bird Pictures

Marin Artist Bomberger Has An Unusual Specialty

By DON KEOWN

Bruce Bomberger, successful magazine illustrator turned fine arts painter, had completed a canvas depicting an old, abandoned house in a ghost town.

But he wasn't quite satisfied. "There just wasn't enough there," he says.

So almost by impulse, he added some quail to the foreground in front of the house.

Bomberger was pleased with the visual interest the birds added to his painting. And he was also reminded of the enjoyment he had received during his years as a commercial artist when he had been called upon from time to time to paint or sketch birds, particularly in his work for Weyerhaeuser Lumber.

SINCE THEN, Audubon Society member Bomberger has painted almost exclusively bird pictures.

Over that period of two years, he figures he has done something like 100 such paintings, most of them in oil.

The success of that work was demonstrated during a three-month show at the popular Nut Tree restaurant at Vacaville that ended earlier this month.

Of 50 Bomberger bird paintings on display, 41 were sold.

BOMBERGER ALSO designed his own poster to publicize and to complement the show, alive with colorful, exotic birds. At 50 cents each, 5,000 of those posters were sold during the Nut Tree Show.

Born and reared in Modesto, Bomberger selected a career in art early.

"I began drawing and painting when I was about 8 or 9," he says, "and in grammar school I was already set upon becoming a commercial artist. The term — commercial artist — fascinated me."

IN PREPARATION for a career as an illustrator Bomberger took a year of training at the California College of Arts and Crafts in Berkeley and another year at the Art Center School in Los Angeles, both on scholarships.

He then began his commercial artist and illustrator career that was to span 33 years and was to make him one of the most successful practitioners in his field.

His illustrations, both editorial and advertising, appeared in such publications as Saturday Evening Post, True, Good Housekeeping, Reader's Digest, Cosmopolitan and Argosy magazines regularly.

WORKING AS a free-lancer, Bomberger became known especially as an illustrator for stories and articles.

Much of his success was unquestionably the result of talent. "But I also hit it lucky," admits Bomberger. "I was working in what was really the heyday for my realistic kind of illustrations — the 1940s and 1950s. That was the golden era for illustrators."

Bomberger has many fond memories of those years, and particularly of the assignments that took him on field trips to assure the realism of his work.

THERE WAS, for instance, a decade ago, the call to do the illustrations for an eight-part serial by Clarence Budington Kelland in the Saturday Evening Post that was set in Arizona's ghost towns.

Starting from Phoenix, Bomberger drove to Las Vegas, stopping to photograph all the old ghost and mining towns along or near his route.

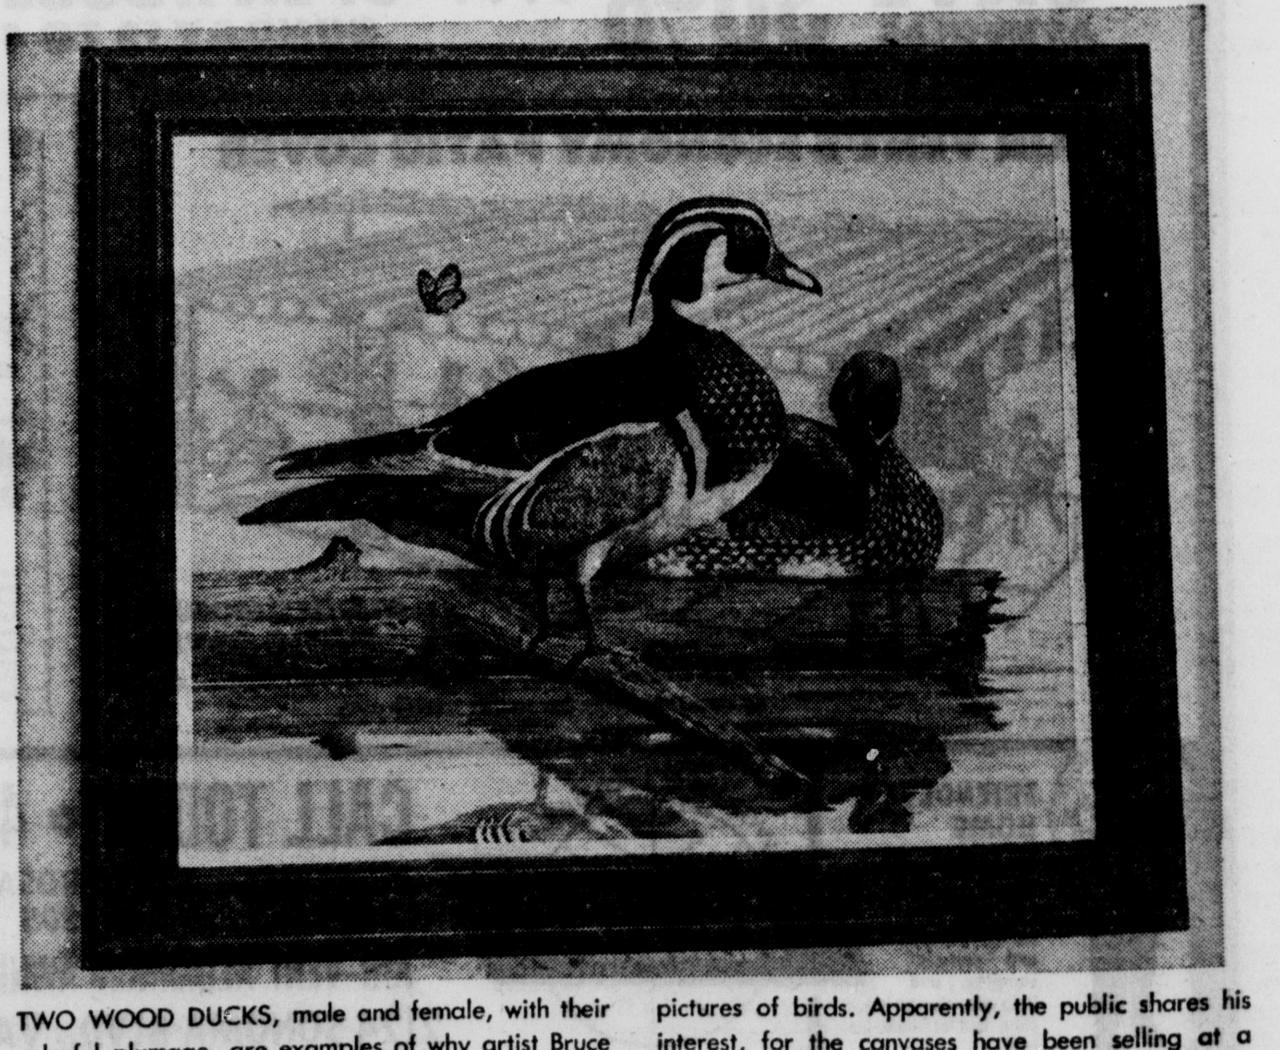
COVER PHOTO

IN HIS studio in the Mills Building on San Rafael's Fifth Avenue, Bruce Bomberger works on one of his oil canvases capturing the colors and patterns of birds. For the past two years, Bomberger, a successful illustrator for magazines turned fine arts painter, has specialized almost exclusively in paintings of birds. An Audubon Society member, he says he has long been fascinated by the bird world.

(Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)



TWO WOOD DUCKS, male and female, with their colorful plumage, are examples of why artist Bruce Bomberger finds a special satisfaction in painting pictures of birds. Apparently, the public shares his interest, for the canvases have been selling at a lively pace.

Bird Paintings by Bruce Bomberger at Nut Tree, California September 16, 1970 thru January 4, 1971

SAN RAFAEL artist Bruce Bomberger did the poster at left to publicize the showing of his bird paintings at the popular Nut Tree inn at Vacaville. His show ran for three and a half months, and proved both an artistic and a commercial success. Of the 50 paintings exhibited, 41 were sold. In addition, some 5,000 copies of the colorful poster were also sold. Bomberger plans another show of animal as well as bird paintings for the Nut Tree at an as yet undesignated date. In the meantime, his bird canvases will be shown in March at the Ecology Center and Sunflower Bookstore in San Francisco.

Marin Artist Bomberger Has An Unusual Specialty

By DON KEOWN

Bruce Bomberger, successful magazine illustrator turned fine arts painter, had completed a canvas depicting an old, abandoned house in a ghost town.

But he wasn't quite satisfied. "There just wasn't enough there," he says.

So almost by impulse, he added some quail to the foreground in front of the house.

Bomberger was pleased with the visual interest the birds added to his painting. And he was also reminded of the enjoyment he had received during his years as a commercial artist when he had been called upon from time to time to paint or sketch birds, particularly in his work for Weyerhaeuser Lumber.

SINCE THEN, Audubon Society member Bomberger has painted almost exclusively bird pictures.

Over that period of two years, he figures he has done something like 100 such paintings, most of them in oil.

The success of that work was demonstrated during a three-month show at the popular Nut Tree restaurant at Vacaville that ended earlier this month.

Of 50 Bomberger bird paintings on display, 41 were sold.

BOMBERGER ALSO designed his own poster to publicize and to complement the show, alive with colorful, exotic birds. At 50 cents each, 5,000 of those posters were sold during the Nut Tree Show.

Born and reared in Modesto, Bomberger selected a career in art early.

"I began drawing and painting when I was about 8 or 9," he says, "and in grammar school I was already set upon becoming a commercial artist. The term — commercial artist — fascinated me."

IN PREPARATION for a career as an illustrator Bomberger took a year of training at the California College of Arts and Crafts in Berkeley and another year at the Art Center School in Los Angeles, both on scholarships.

He then began his commercial artist and illustrator career that was to span 33 years and was to make him one of the most successful practitioners in his field.

His illustrations, both editorial and advertising, appeared in such publications as Saturday Evening Post, True, Good Housekeeping, Reader's Digest, Cosmopolitan and Argosy magazines regularly.

WORKING AS a free-lancer, Bomberger became known especially as an illustrator for stories and articles.

Much of his success was unquestionably the result of talent. "But I also hit it lucky," admits Bomberger. "I was working in what was really the heyday for my realistic kind of illustrations — the 1940s and 1950s. That was the golden era for illustrators."

Bomberger has many fond memories of those years, and particularly of the assignments that took him on field trips to assure the realism of his work.

IN HIS studio in the Mills Building on San Rafael's Fifth Avenue, Bruce Bomberger works on one of his oil canvases capturing the colors and patterns of birds. For the past two years, Bomberger, a successful illustrator for magazines turned fine arts painter, has specialized almost exclusively in paintings of birds. An Audubon Society member, he says he has long been fascinated by the bird world.

THERE WAS, for instance, a decade ago, the call to do the illustrations for an eight-part serial by Clarence Budington Kelland in the Saturday Evening Post that was set in Arizona's ghost towns.

Starting from Phoenix, Bomberger drove to Las Vegas, stopping to photograph all the old ghost and mining towns along or near his route.

into my lap. But I no longer go out and seek them."

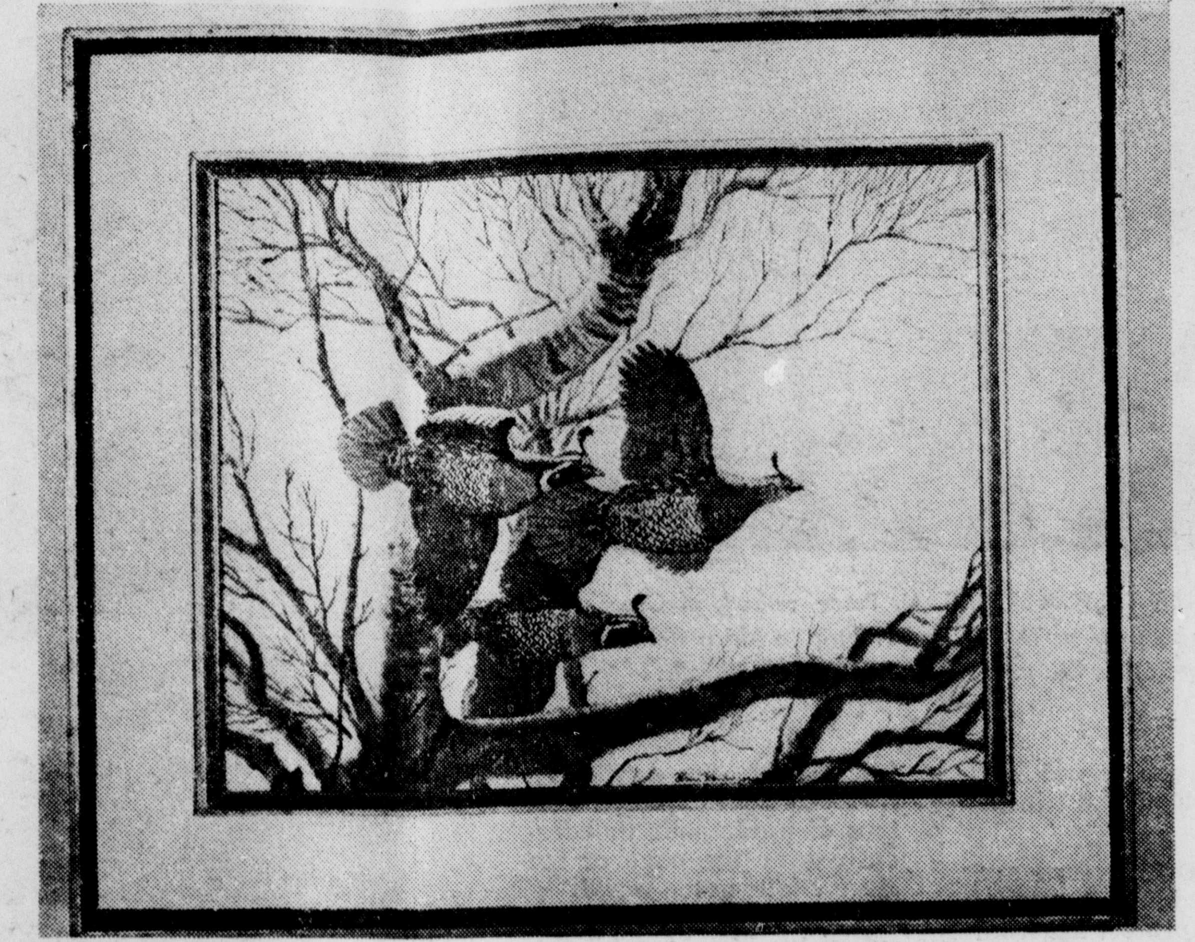
Does this new career provide him with more satisfaction and enjoyment than did the earlier, commercial one?

"Oh, yes," he answers quickly. "I think we all look forward to the day when we can work without pressure. Now I can choose my own subjects and work on my own time schedule."

ALONG WITH his bird paintings, Bomberger has done a number of protraits.

His subjects have included Mr. and Mrs. Barnaby Falvey, "and I have two new commissions now."

He has also had commissions for what is called "trompe l'oeil" paintings — "the realism that fools the eyes." For instance, the illusion that you are seeing through the door of a mansion into the artifact-laden shelves behind it.



A COVEY OF California quail provide the colorful and eye-pleasing subject for this Bruce Bomberger canvas, one of 100 bird paintings he has completed in the past two years.

BUT BIRDS are Bomberger's prime painting interest and have been for some time.

"I have always liked birds," he says. "And their patterns and colors are challenging to the painter."

He strives for realism, yet a decorative design. "As a rule I pick one of the more colorful birds," he says, "and if not, I try to work color into my setting."

GENERALLY HE works from a combination of photographs he has taken in zoos and pictures in books. Sometimes he sketches and photographs waterfowl in the San Rafael Canal upon which the Bomberger home is located.

A bird painting may take from one day to a week of work, while a portrait requires at least a week.

Bomberger's bird art will be shown during the month of March at the Ecology Center and Sunflower Bookstore, 710 Montgomery Street, San Francisco.

His next show at the Nut Tree, he says, will be a display of both bird and animal paintings.

"THE ANIMAL work will give me a little change of pace," he says.

No date for that show has been set as yet.

But the Nut Tree, he says, is a wonderful showcase for an artist's work. The paintings are displayed at the entrance to the dining room. "And the traffic is tremendous."

Mrs. Bomberger, also an artist painting under the name Dania Anixter, will be having a showing of her work starting Feb. 1 in the Coffee Tree, just across the highway from the Nut Tree.

"SHE PAINTS in our home, while I have a studio on Fifth Avenue," says Bomberger.

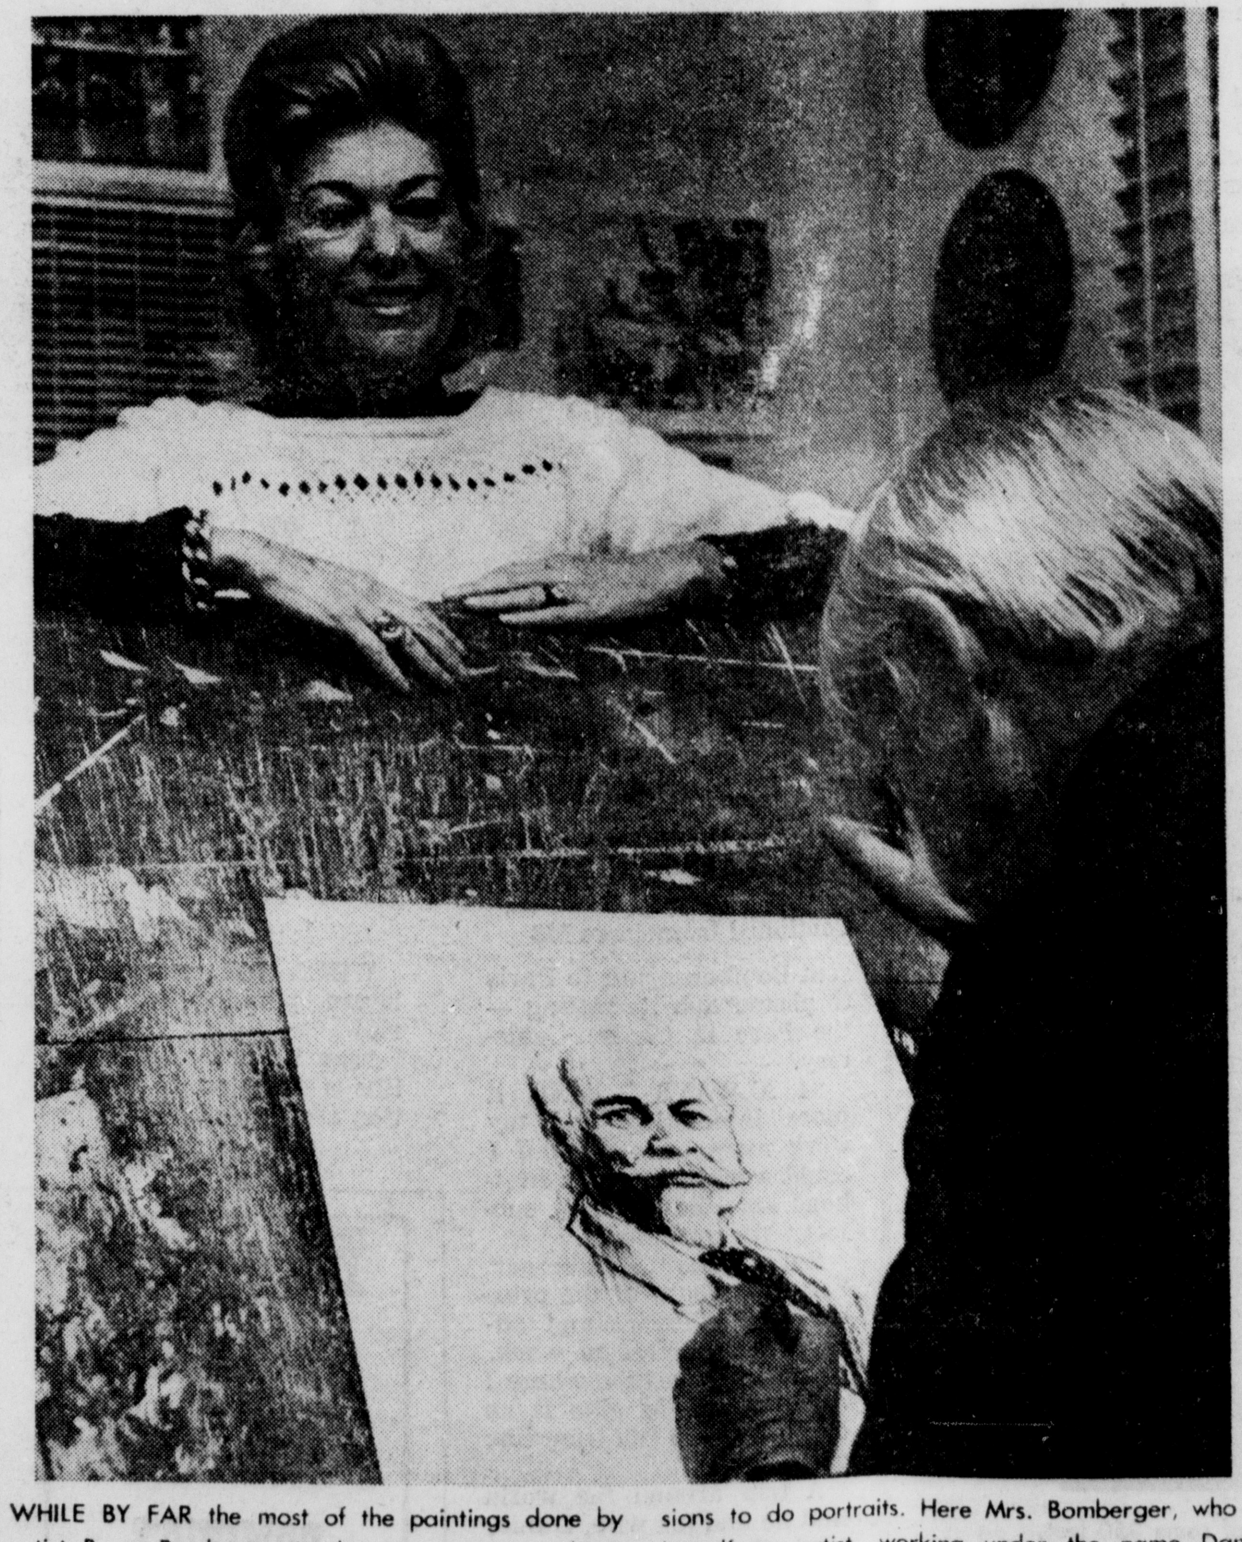
Which of them sells the most of their work?

"I do," smiles Bomberger, but adds: "But she really doesn't care all that much about how many she sells."



WHILE BY FAR the most of the paintings done by artist Bruce Bomberger in the past two years have been pictures of birds, he has also accepted commissions to do portraits. Here Mrs. Bomberger, who is herself an artist, working under the name Dania Anixter, watches as her husband puts some of his distinctive touches to a sketch.

A Marinite In Africa Visits Victoria Falls

COL. CHARLES T. STOFFER, U.S. Air Force, retired, of Greenbrae, continues his series of articles on his 1970 trip to Africa with the story on these pages of his visit to Rhodesia and to Victoria Falls.

By CHARLES T. STOFFER

The first impression of Bulawayo, Rhodesia, is that the city's setting and buildings look very much like California's Fresno.

But there are differences.

For one thing, the streets are about 100 feet wide. And only about one-fourth of the population is of European origin.

I was in Bulawayo after a 470-mile flight from Johannesburg, South Africa, the first leg of a long-desired trip to Victoria Falls and Wankie Park.

CUSTOMS AND immigration processing had been brief and pleasant, no visa being required from USA passport holders.

I received excellent and courteous assistance, too, from the Tourist and Publicity Bureau. When I informed them I had been unable to obtain a reservation to Johannesburg for the Victoria Falls Hotel, they telephoned the Falls and obtained a confirmed reservation for me.

In Bulawayo I visited a jeweler, hoping to see Rhodesia's famed Sandawana Emeralds and was shown three of them. They are more precious than diamonds, and practically the entire output is consigned to Paris.

THE NATIONAL Museum contains the world's largest known mounted elephant, standing 11 feet seven inches high at the shoulders.

Despite the embargo against Rhodesian trade, Bulawayo's stores appeared well-stocked, and cars were plentiful.

I left on the evening train for Victoria Falls, 273 miles to the northwest. A fine dinner was served enroute at a cost of $1.30 in U.S. money. And I arose early for breakfast, since the railway constitutes one of the boundaries of the huge 5,400-square-mile Wankie animal sanctuary, home of more than 50 species of the larger types of wild animals including more than 7,000 elephants.

THE RAILROAD station at Victoria Falls is only 50 yards from the hotel, and the roar of the Falls, although a mile away, was very distinct.

A booking was made for a boat trip up the mighty Zambesi River that required three hours. About 50 passengers were on board, and we passed scores of hippos, most of them submerged in the water under the overhanging trees along the banks.

We docked and went ashore at an upstream island where the boat crew served tea and cookies in as small open air pavilion. Troops of monkeys appeared from every direction as the food was served, begging, snatching and squealing.

AFTER OUR return and lunch at the hotel, I rented a raincoat to protect me from the spray and proceeded along a well-marked path to the Falls. A 10-minute walk brought me to the statue of explorer-preacher David Livingstone, erected at the location where on 1855 he became the first European to see the spectacular sight that remains one of the most treasured natural wonders of our world.

The 1,860-yard-wide Zambesi River becomes a curtain of roaring water as it suddenly plunges into a chasm in a fall of nearly 350 feet. During the April-May flood stage, 75 million gallons of water pour thunderously over the edge of the largest falls in the world.

A VOLUME OF water sufficient to meet the domestic requirements of Marin County from Hamilton Air Force Base to the Golden Gate for an entire day pours over Victoria Falls every 30 seconds.

Like Niagara, it is located on a national boundary. But there all similarity ends.

Nothing man-made, not even guard rails, have been allowed to mar the grandeur of Victoria Falls. Surfaced walks permit visitors to walk along the opposite side of the one-eighth-mile wide chasm, as clouds of vapor sprays embedded with brilliant rainbows created by the sunshine make the view a matchless phenomenon.

THE FALLS TODAY are still unspoiled, preserved just as Livingstone saw them more than a century ago from the rain-forested ledge. It remains a perfect example of environmental control.

The famous hotel with its colonial style has excellent food and other services at about one-third less than the cost at leading American tourist centers.

The next day I took a flight in a four-place plane over the Falls, its adjacent game refuge and the northern part of the Wankie game preserve. Viewed from the air, the herds of animals seemed quite tame compared to the more stirring sight of big game roaming freely over the African veldt as seen from the ground.

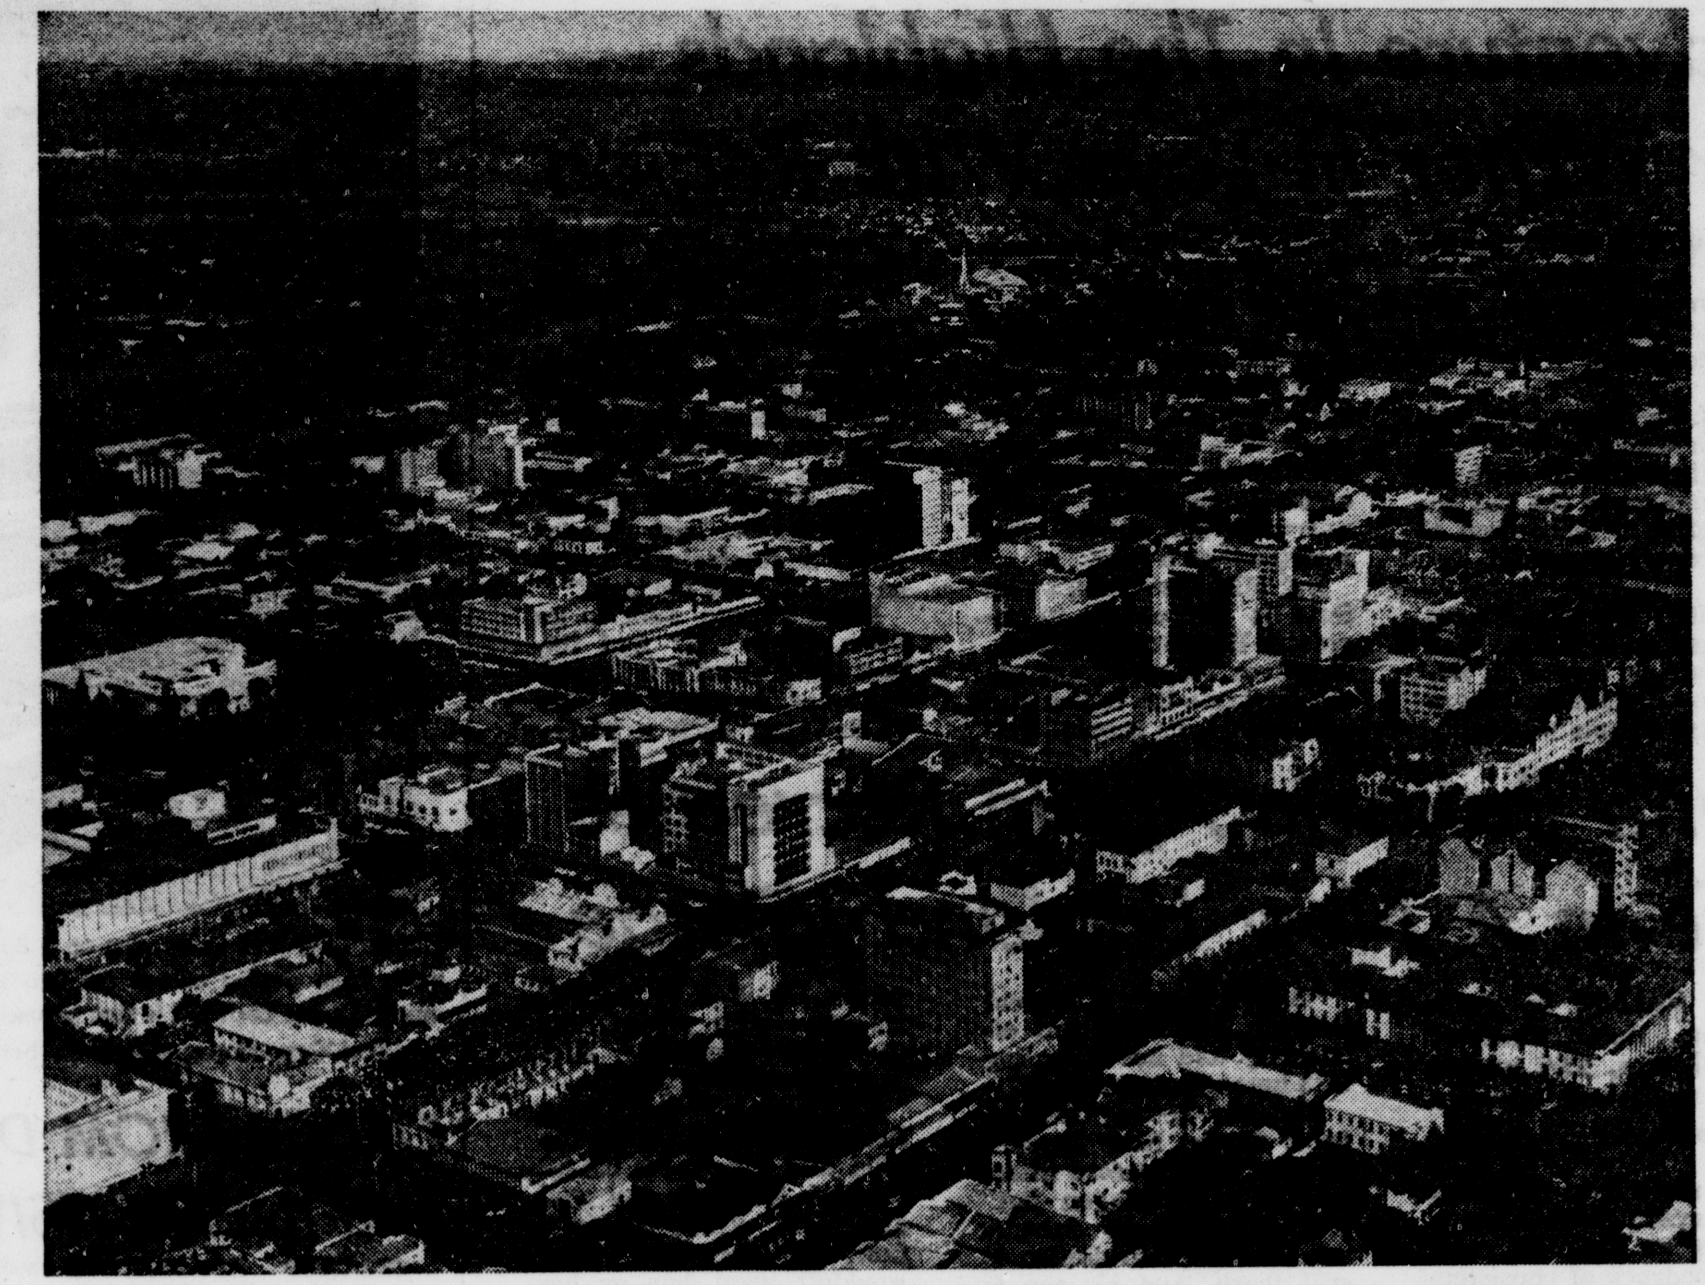
IN RHODESIA, 30,000 square miles, or roughly one-fifth of the country, has been set aside for wildlife management. The objective is to study and conserve one of nature's greatest remaining concentrations of wild animal life.

Later, flying south again, I visited booming Pretoria, the administrative capital of Soupth Africa, before heading for Marin County and home, 10,500 miles distant.

At Nairobi, our first northbound stop, we learned that the entire flight group scheduled to relieve our crew there had been involved in a serious road accident enroute to the airport. The captain had been killed and the others hurt.

WE WERE TAKEN to a Nairobi hotel for the night while our crew from Pretoria took its required rest break, before resuming our flight the next day.

In crystal clear weather we crisscrossed the Nile above Khartoum. Later our captain directed our attention to the huge new high dam at Aswan. We left Africa at El Alamein, and in less than an hour we were on the ground at Athens.



THE INDUSTRIAL CENTER of Bulawayo is Rhodesia's second largest city, and its buildings and setting reminded Col. Charles T. Stoffer of Fresno, Calif. The spire and structures of the Central African Trade Fair site appear here on the edge of the commercial district.

Adventure In The Highlands By Writer In Love With Region

THE HOUSE OF THE DEER by D. E. Stevenson; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 208 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

D. E. Stevenson has written this sequel to her "Gerald and Elizabeth" with all the competence she has accumulated in more than 40 years of writing novels.

Gerald Burleigh-Brown vacations in a remote and primitive old house in the Scottish Highlands, where he makes friends with villagers and shares their interests and activities including hunting in the deer forest. There's a kidnapping, a rescue and other adventures. Miss Stevenson tells her story crisply and cleanly, yet there is a touch of old-fashionedness, in the manner of Sir Walter Scott, in her narration that seems more a virtue than a fault.

But Miss Stevenson's real forte is her ability to recreate Highlands settings. She lives there, and obviously loves the region and understands its people.

Just listen to Sir Walter MacCallum describe the "large property" owned by Gregor MacAslan:

"Yes, a deer-forest, grouse moors, a sea loch with an island in the middle of it, pine woods, hills with sheep, and a few stony fields of hay, oats, turnips and potatoes. Last but not least, a comfortable house on the shores of the loch."

Makes you want to go there, doesn't it? And the best thing about it is that if one went, he would be able to find just such a place.

Faith Baldwin Again Recreates Life In A New England Village

ANY VILLAGE by Faith Baldwin; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 254 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

With more than 100 books to her credit, Faith Baldwin remains an oasis of calm and a bedrock of consistency in a literary world abuzz with novelists too often frenetic and erratic.

"Any Village" is typical Baldwin, a simply and effectively told novel dealing with human relationships.

For her setting she returns to the New England town of Little Oxford where her "Station Wagon Set" took place three decades ago. Dr. Bing Irvington is still there. And his son is also a practicing physician. Their involvement in the affairs of the villagers, and young Dr. Ben Irvington's romance with pretty Amy Meredith provide Miss Baldwin with her plot.

Some may find Miss Baldwin's novels a bit too mild and a touch old-fashioned for this day and age. But Faith Baldwin fans, and they are many, wouldn't want her or her stories any other way. And they will be delighted by "Any Village."

The Flaws In Freud's Thinking

THE CRISIS OF PSYCHOANALYSIS by Erich Fromm; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 161 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Shirley Luthman.

Dr. Fromm's discussions of the limitations of psychoanalytic theory and practice constitute a fresh viewpoint long overdue.

Freud's genius cannot be disputed. His deity is another matter.

Fromm states, "The theory of the unconscious is one of the most decisive steps in our knowledge of man and in our capacity to distinguish appearance from reality in human behavior. As a consequence, it opened up a new dimension of honesty and thereby created a new basis for critical thinking."

True. The difficulty occurred when proponents of Freud's theories responded to the criticism of other professionals by clinging rigidly to the theories and to each other. It is ironic that their process of opening themselves to change and new ideas was sacrificed to the idea itself. That substitution has held back the whole field of the study of human behavior for 30 years.

The other flaw in psychoanalytic theory was the assumption on the part of Freud and his followers that he had the "whole truth." In the study of human behavior, such an assumption is always suspect. Human behavior and development is too complex and changeable for any one theory to explain.

For example, if we make the accrual of knowledge about human development and behavior analogous to erecting a building, then psychoanalytic theory would be one cornerstone, of inestimable value, but not the whole foundation.

Fromm's discussion of the variations on Freud's theories by Marcuse, Hartmann, Sullivan and others, is extremely perceptive and lucid, therefore "must" reading for professionals in the field.

Dr. Fromm makes his most important point in the first two chapters, as I've already discussed. The rest of the book is anti-climactic. He discusses the areas of distortion he sees in psycho-analytic theory, such as his views on the female as a castrated male and the child as a "blank sheet" which the parents fill in. There is obvious evidence in current research and exploration that both these theories are erroneous.

These discussions are interesting and worth reading, but somehow don't seem to correlate with the major thesis of the book, so aptly stated at the end of chapter one — "In spite of some disquieting symptoms, however, psychoanalysis is far from dead. But its death can be predicted, unless it changes its direction."

The Shame Of California: Persecution Of Orientals

EAST MEETS WEST by George Goldberg; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 126 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Oriental people have become so well accepted in California that it is difficult to realize how intensely they were persecuted because of racial prejudice a few years ago.

"East Meets West" is sub-titled "The Story of the Chinese and Japanese in California." As such, it is a story of repression which should remind any California reader that he had best think twice before pointing fingers at Southern whites for their treatment of the Negro. The record is no less shameful because the prejudice has finally almost vanished.

George Goldberg's account of the treatment of the Chinese, first on the scene in the Golden State, is sketchy. He is at his best in his recitation of the Japanese oppression during World War II, which he appears to have researched thoroughly.

And this should serve as a reminder of how bigotry and war hysteria can combine to blind a people to humanity.

A Marinite In Africa Visits Victoria Falls

By CHARLES T. STOFFER

COL. CHARLES T. STOFFER, U.S. Air Force, retired, of Greenbrae, continues his series of articles on his 1970 trip to Africa with the story on these pages of his visit to Rhodesia and to Victoria Falls.

The first impression of Bulawayo, Rhodesia, is that the city's setting and buildings look very much like California's Fresno.

But there are differences.

For one thing, the streets are about 100 feet wide. And only about one-fourth of the population is of European origin.

I was in Bulawayo after a 470-mile flight from Johannesburg, South Africa, the first leg of a long-desired trip to Victoria Falls and Wankie Park.

CUSTOMS AND immigration processing had been brief and pleasant, no visa being required from USA passport holders.

I received excellent and courteous assistance, too, from the Tourist and Publicity Bureau. When I informed them I had been unable to obtain a reservation to Johannesburg for the Victoria Falls Hotel, they telephoned the Falls and obtained a confirmed reservation for me.

In Bulawayo I visited a jeweler, hoping to see Rhodesia's famed Sandawana Emeralds and was shown three of them. They are more precious than diamonds, and practically the entire output is consigned to Paris.

THE NATIONAL Museum contains the world's largest known mounted elephant, standing 11 feet seven inches high at the shoulders.

Despite the embargo against Rhodesian trade, Bulawayo's stores appeared well-stocked, and cars were plentiful.

I left on the evening train for Victoria Falls, 273 miles to the northwest. A fine dinner was served enroute at a cost of $1.30 in U.S. money. And I arose early for breakfast, since the railway constitutes one of the boundaries of the huge 5,400-square-mile Wankie animal sanctuary, home of more than 50 species of the larger types of wild animals including more than 7,000 elephants.

THE RAILROAD station at Victoria Falls is only 50 yards from the hotel, and the roar of the Falls, although a mile away, was very distinct.

A booking was made for a boat trip up the mighty Zambesi River that required three hours. About 50 passengers were on board, and we passed scores of hippos, most of them submerged in the water under the overhanging trees along the banks.

We docked and went ashore at an upstream island where the boat crew served tea and cookies in as small open air pavilion. Troops of monkeys appeared from every direction as the food was served, begging, snatching and squealing.

AFTER OUR return and lunch at the hotel, I rented a raincoat to protect me from the spray and proceeded along a well-marked path to the Falls. A 10-minute walk brought me to the statue of explorer-preacher David Livingstone, erected at the location where on 1855 he became the first European to see the spectacular sight that remains one of the most treasured natural wonders of our world.

The 1,860-yard-wide Zambesi River becomes a curtain of roaring water as it suddenly plunges into a chasm in a fall of nearly 350 feet. During the April-May flood stage, 75 million gallons of water pour thunderously over the edge of the largest falls in the world.

A VOLUME OF water sufficient to meet the domestic requirements of Marin County from Hamilton Air Force Base to the Golden Gate for an entire day pours over Victoria Falls every 30 seconds.

Like Niagara, it is located on a national boundary. But there all similarity ends.

Nothing man-made, not even guard rails, have been allowed to mar the grandeur of Victoria Falls. Surfaced walks permit visitors

THE VICTORIA FALLS were discovered by explorer-missionary David Livingstone in 1855, and they remain one of the wonders of the world. The falls have a width of 1,860 yards and a drop of some 350 feet, and the spray rises to more than 200 feet. Here the main falls are viewed from the rain forest.

The 'Old Redhead' Tells About His Years Behind The 'Mike'

By DON KEOWN

THE BROADCASTERS by Red Barber; Dial, 271 pages, $6.95.

For nearly half a century now the ubiquitous play-by-play sports broadcaster has been almost as much a part of the American scene as apple pie and air pollution, sometimes as pleasure-giving as the former and sometimes as irritating as the latter.

Like any other profession institutionalized by society, sports broadcasting has developed its elite.

Walter (Red) Barber who began working behind a mike 40 years ago ranks high among the favored. He has known all of radio's and television's "greats," worked with most of them and feuded with a few.

His experience and a knack for writing that he now demonstrates as a sports columnist fits him ideally for the task of writing a book about the broadcasting vocation he also continues to practice on a more localized scale for a Miami station.

Our reaction to "The Broadcasters" was one of slight disappointment. The book is by no means uninteresting. It is just not as exhilarating as we expected it to be, given the author, his background and his subject.

It is perhaps a bit too much of an "in" book, although Barber's title quite honestly announces his subject. It is not the usual book about the sports events he has seen and the sports figures he has known; it is about the business of sports broadcasting and the men who make their living at it. In this book, the men on the field and arena are subordinate to the men on the booth and pressbox.

But in a profession torn between journalism and showmanship, Barber has always opted for the former. In a field often rent with near-hysteria, his has always been the voice of calm and reliability, telling us crisply, expertly what has happened on the field and not his personal opinions of it. He has eschewed partisanship for objectivity.

It is not surprising, then, that in deciding to write a book about sports broadcasters, Red Barber should do pretty much exactly that, seldom straying from his central subject.

He gives us a little history of radio in general and of sports announcing in particular. He gives us some of his early biography, a boyhood spent in Florida, and his own introduction to radio in 1929 while a student at the University of Florida at Gainesville on the school station WRUF.

He tells us in detail of the years he spent first as a radio and then as a radio and television broadcaster in Cincinnati, New York and hopping about the country for the networks.

And finally, he closes his book with a bit of advice for the young man who might be considering a career in sports broadcasting. Paramount is imperturbability as delineated in a quotation borrowed from Rudyard Kipling: "To keep your head when all about you are losing theirs." But there are also instructions on scoring, suggestions on interviewing, etc.

And always, Barber, the complete professional, stresses preparation before the game, a factor, he indicates, often neglected by the new crop of broadcasters, especially the ex-athletes who start at the top on the basis of their names and reputations.

Characters like Graham McNamee, Ted Husing, Bill Munday, Bill Slater, Harry Wismer, Bill Stern, Bob Elson, Mel Allen, Tom Manning, Ty Tyson, Curt Gowdy, Clem McCarthy, Jim Woods, Phil Rizzuto, Vince Scully, Russ Hodges, Arch McDonald, Dizzy Dean enliven the pages of "The Broadcasters," so that it cannot be considered dull.

And in his book, as on the air, Barber is scrupulously honest in his comments and evaluations of his colleagues.

Ted Husing fares the worst. Barber's analysis of Husing's prima donna tendencies is devastating, although the value of his pioneering work as a sports announcer is not denigrated. Stern and Slater receive some rough treatment, too. And so do most of the ex-baseball and former football greats who have crowded into the field, generally, Barber feels, without proper qualifications.

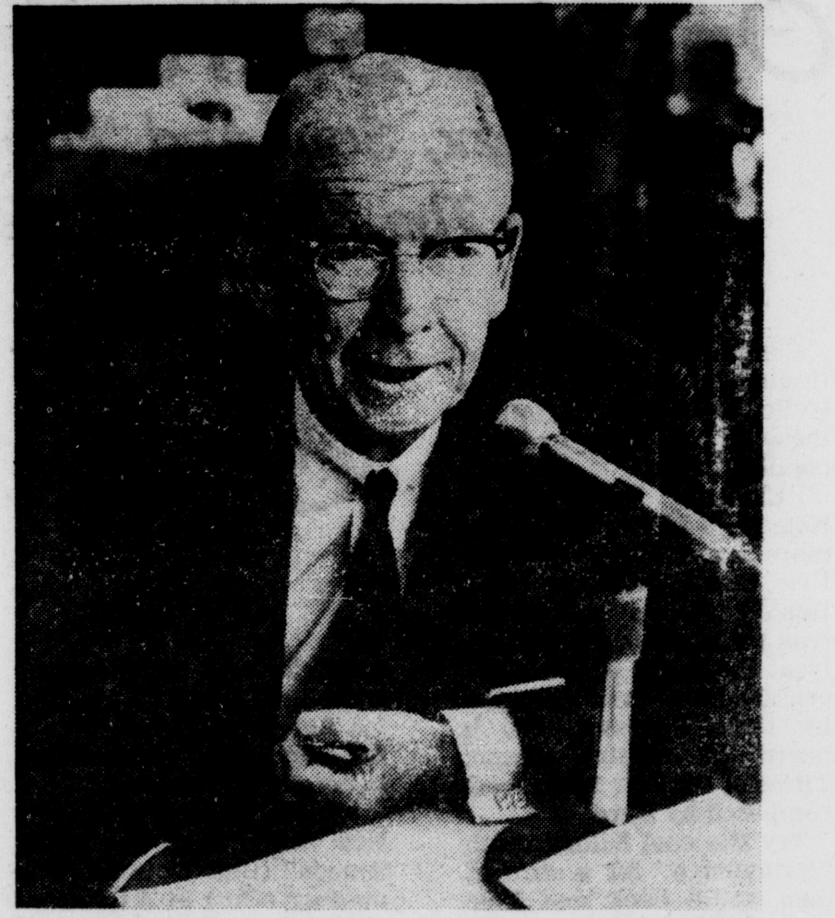
Joe Garagiola is a disruptive influence in the booth, "so self-centered I don't think he ever once paused to consider anybody else."

The expert who played the game now steals the thunder from the professional broadcaster whose personality and knowledge once made him the key figure. The broadcast has been depersonalized, and to Barber that is regrettable.

Some other Barber opinions:

Graham McNamee "was the greatest sports announcer we ever had." Working without the aids, assistants and comforts of today's broadcasters, he covered an amazing variety of sports and made them all come alive for his listeners. (Remembering as a boy listening to the great McNamee on football or baseball and the sense of the dramatic and excitement he generated inside us, we agree wholeheartedly.)

Curt Gowdy is the greatest television sports announcer today (we like Chris Schenkel), while Vince Scully is the best on radio. And Waite Hoyt was the best of the baseball players who transferred to the mike.



RED BARBER draws upon his 40 years of experience in radio and television covering sports in writing "The Broadcasters." It is his fourth book.

The best three-man team? Barber, never one to do the modesty bit, names them forthrightly: "Mel Allen, Jim Woods and Red Barber." Their closest challengers? "Connie Desmond, Vince Scully and Red Barber."

For Barber, sports broadcasting is strictly a business, to be approached and dealt with seriously and responsibly. As he pictures it, it is often not a pretty business. It seems a profession of big egos, petty jealousies and much backbiting — a cutthroat trade. And like the professional sports and entertainment fields with which it is closely related, it tends to overestimate its worth. But this is understandable in a society that tends to quibble over the pay of its garbage haulers, policemen, teachers and others without whom it could not function, while supporting the sometimes outlandish salaries sports and show business pay their stars without whom society could get along easily, if less pleasantly.

Barber, himself, emerges as a somewhat difficult character, stubborn, suspicious, inclined to feel and resent all slights, sometimes needlessly quarrelsome, not so much with his broadcasting colleagues as with network, team and agency officials. But he also emerges as a proud man with principles, dedicated to his trade and possessing the competency of the true professional.

On second thought, after reviewing our impressions of the book, perhaps the "Old Redhead" has written in "The Broadcasters" a history more provocative than we at first realized. If not all our expectations were met, there were also values in the book we had not anticipated.

PRACTICE TO DECEIVE by Elizabeth Linington; Harper & Row, 212 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Elizabeth Linington stands alone as America's sole challenger to John Creasey-J. J. Marric as a writer of the police procedural novel.

If Miss Linington is not yet the English master's peer in incorporating deduction and mystery into her plots, she is his equal in creating interesting, believable characters and in picturing the day-to-day workings of modern police.

In "Practice to Deceive," Sgt. Ivor Maddix and his colleagues of Los Angeles' Wilcox Street Precinct are caught up in a welter of warm weather crimes including a compulsive rapist who finally kills, a dismembered and unidentified body, a locked door mystery and a murdered member of the force. They cope with the crime wave realistically, all the while going about the business of their daily lives which, for Maddox and Police Woman Sue Carstairs, involves some subterfuge in attempting to work out coinciding vacation dates so they can tie the nuptial knot.

It is another neatly-told triumph for Miss Linington and for the men and women of the Wilcox Street station who have become old friends.

UNIVERSITY of California Press has published "Flowers of Point Reyes National Seashore," $2.65 paperback, by Roxana Ferris, curator emeritus of the Dudley Herbarium at Stanford University and authority on the flora of the Bay Region.

It is a book for those visiting the Point Reyes Peninsula to enable them to recognize at least some of the thousands of different plant species that flourish in its diversified 53,000 acres.

Dr. Ferris' descriptions of 181 representative species are accompanied by drawings by Jeanne R. Janish. While there is no color, there is an index listing the plants by color groups.

"From Buttercup Family to Orchid Family" is the first chapter title, and from there Dr. Ferris introduces you to the likes of Hairy Cat's Ear, Slim Solomon's Seal, Wake Robin and Baby Blue Eyes.

A most worthwhile endeavor, and a most useful helpmate for the hiker with an eye for wildflowers.

BAY AREA resident George Tsolinas is the author of "Women in Cages," a Vantage Press-published expose of the India of today as he found it during numerous trips to that country to study its people and their culture. It is not a pretty picture, but, claims the publisher, "it will give you your first clear insight into the life and people of India now."

One Of Nature's Wonders

to walk along the opposite side of the one-eighth-mile wide chasm, as clouds of vapor sprays embedded with brilliant rainbows created by the sunshine make the view a matchless phenomenon.

THE FALLS TODAY are still unspoiled, preserved just as Livingstone saw them more than a century ago from the rain-forested ledge. It remains a perfect example of environmental control.

The famous hotel with its colonial style has excellent food and other services at about one-third less than the cost at leading American tourist centers.

The next day I took a flight in a four-place plane over the Falls, its adjacent game refuge and the northern part of the Wankie game preserve. Viewed from the air, the herds of animals seemed quite tame compared to the more stirring sight of big game roaming freely over the African veldt as seen from the ground.

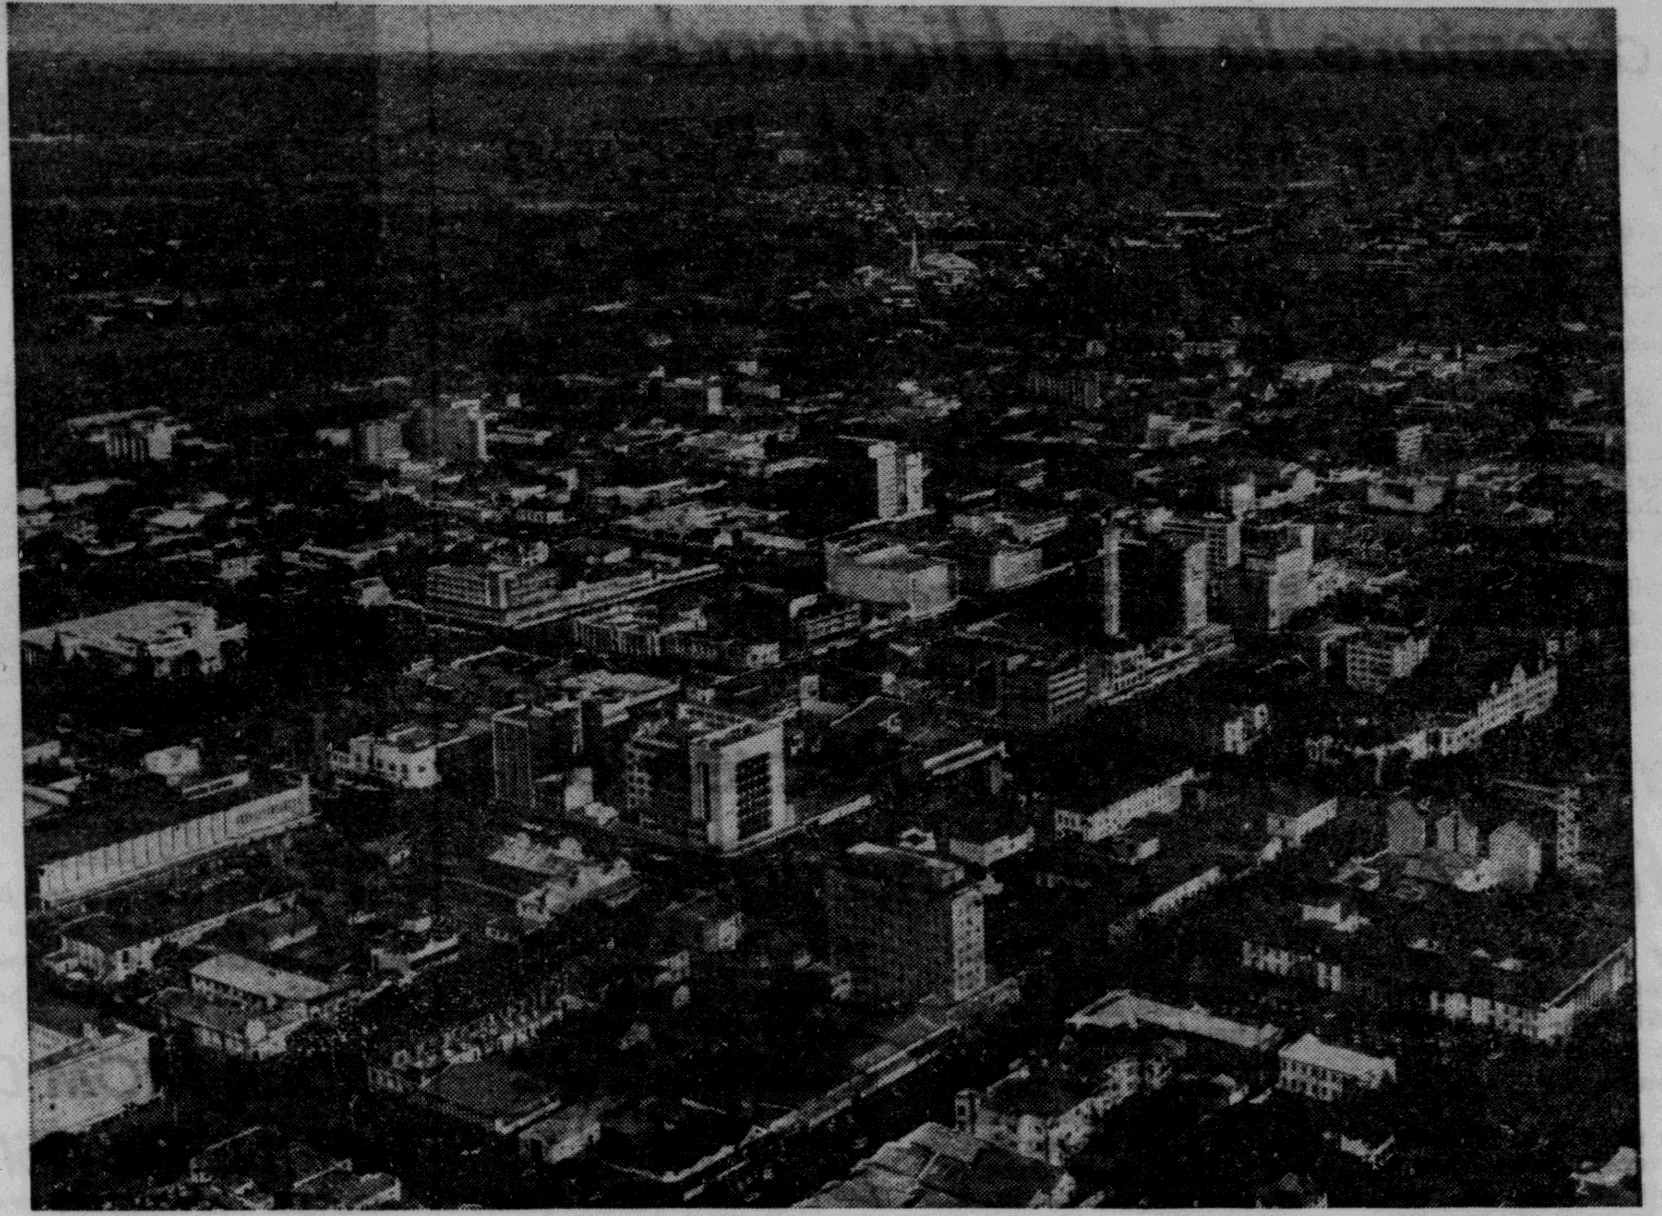
IN RHODESIA, 30,000 square miles, or roughly one-fifth of the country, has been set aside for wildlife management. The objective is to study and conserve one of nature's greatest remaining concentrations of wild animal life.

Later, flying south again, I visited booming Pretoria, the administrative capital of Soupth Africa, before heading for Marin County and home, 10,500 miles distant.

At Nairobi, our first northbound stop, we learned that the entire flight group scheduled to relieve our crew there had been involved in a serious road accident enroute to the airport. The captain had been killed and the others hurt.

WE WERE TAKEN to a Nairobi hotel for the night while our crew from Pretoria took its required rest break, before resuming our flight the next day.

In crystal clear weather we crisscrossed the Nile above Khartoum. Later our captain directed our attention to the huge new high dam at Aswan. We left Africa at El Alamein, and in less than an hour we were on the ground at Athens.



THE INDUSTRIAL CENTER of Bulawayo is Rhodesia's second largest city, and its buildings and setting reminded Col. Charles T. Stoffer of Fresno, Calif. The spire and structures of the Central African Trade Fair site appear here on the edge of the commercial district.

Jazz, Soul And 'Pop' Albums From The Family Of Liberty Labels

By JOHN SUNIER

Continuing our quick run through recent releases from the Liberty "family," these in the jazz, soul and popular veins:

"Electric Byrd" (Blue Note 84349) is one of the more arresting jazz discs I've heard in some time. Donald Byrd's speech-like trumpet style is distinctively at the heart of these impressionistic arrangements by Duke Pearson, who is heard on electric piano. Three of the four tunes were composed by Byrd.

Try the cool Ellington-ish "Estavanico" for a starter, then settle back and float with this expressive, sensitive musical wizardry.

MARIN'S OWN George Duke has his album in "Save the Country" (Liberty 11004).

With a scholarly background gained at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, pianist Duke has climbed fast in the jazz world. Joined by an eight-man group, he bases his improvisations on songs of Laura Nyro, Judy Collins, Joe South and Lennon-McCartney.

Another pianist, McCoy Tyner, is featured in an LP entitled, "Expansions" (Blue Note 84338). Tyner who spent much time with the late John Coltrane's group.

The sextet heard with Tyner is unusual in including a cello played by Ron Carter. There is a Japanese-flavored duet for wood flute and clarinet in "Song of Happiness," and "I Thought I'd Let You Know" is a melodic ballad with the cello coming to the fore.

"SOUL SYMPHONY — A New Sound from The Three Sounds" (Blue Note 84341) is another effort at a fusion of jazz and the classics, which has been going on since the early 1920s.

The work of composer Monk Higgins, the piano-bass-drums group known as The Three Sounds, and the Hollywood studio orchestra with stars like Buddy Collette on woodwinds and Fred Robinson on guitar is no " Rhapsody in Blue," but if viewed as modest, swinging jazz with orchestral backing, it is very enjoyable listening.

After the 26-minute Symphony, flip side of the LP is devoted to four trio performances, all originals.

HERE ARE FOUR more entries in the "Best of. . ." sweepstakes. All are super for the collector on a budget. (I'll just list the album and one or two of the many top hits you'll find therein):

"The Best of Horace Silver" (Blue Note 84325) — "Doodlin'," "Sister Sadie." "The Best of The Gerald Wilson Orchestra" (World Pacific Jazz 20174) — "Blues For Yna Yna," "Viva Tirado." "The Best of the Jazz Crusaders" (World Pacific Jazz 20175) — "Tough Talk," "The Young Rabbits." "The Best of Buddy Rich" (World Pacific Jazz 20169) — "Channel 1 Suite," "West Side Story Medley."

The Imperial label has issued a big series which they call the Legendary Masters Series. These are re-issues of early blues, rock, gospel and so on.

TWO ESPECIALLY interested me: "Volume I, Gospel Music, The Soul Stirrers" (Imperial LM-94007), a black gospel quartet (called that though actually consisting of seven singers) of the late 1940s who balance traditional spirituals in a swinging style with secular songs of historical interest. "Why I Like Roosevelt" and "Pearl Harbor" are simply fascinating. "Volume 3, Rural Blues, Down Home Stomp" (Imperial LM-94006) is a reissue of blues from the late '40s and early '50s by Papa Lightfoot, Roosevelt Sykes, Little Son Jackson and others whose primitive styles were largely untouched by outside influences. These singers have a gutsy honesty that really comes across.

In the field of humor on LP, not much has happened lately. But a wonderfully humane, nutty voice from the past has been preserved on World Pacific 21889, "Bad Rapping of the Marquis De Sade," featuring Lord Buckley.

These tapes were made in an Oakland bar back in 1960 and show one-time Marinite Buckley, with his hipster translations of De Sade and "The Ballad of Dan McGrew."

His plan to our friendly forces of law 'n' order, "His Majesty The Policeman," will have even policemen victims of hilarity.

FINALLY, TO music of the East, a specialty of World Pacific Records, who brought Ravi Shankar to American ears.

"T. Viswanathan, South Indian Flute" (21451) is a trippy flight of sound. The five short ragas in the album demonstrate the close alliance of South Indian instrumental music to vocal lines.

"Bagavad Gita, Song of God" (21466) is a reading by Ravi Shankar of 21 stanzas from the epic Hindu poem about Lord Krishna. Musical background is by Ashish Khan. This is an instructive and interesting exploration of the most popular of the Hindu Scriptures, dating from about 600 B.C.

The music is wonderfully right and supports the words. And I really dig that Indian accent.

"Why Can't My Dress Be Cleaned?

It can be, of course, but you'd be unhappy with the result. While your dress is cleanable the dress trim is not. All of a garment should be drycleanable if it is to be truly serviceable.

Your dress has considerable decorative trim. Your drycleaner tested this trim and discovered that it would bleed in cleaning. Since the trim could not be removed, he would not accept your dress for cleaning.

There are many types of garment decorations which will not dryclean satisfactorily. Even beads can cause trouble; some turn color in cleaning, others are coated over black porous centers that bleed in cleaning; still other beads may dissolve completely when a garment is cleaned.

Before you buy any garment with decorative trim, make certain that the trim is drycleanable, too. Getting that assurance in writing will protect you completely.

Adventure In The Highlands By Writer In Love With Region

THE HOUSE OF THE DEER by D. E. Stevenson; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 208 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

D. E. Stevenson has written this sequel to her "Gerald and Elizabeth" with all the competence she has accumulated in more than 40 years of writing novels.

Gerald Burleigh-Brown vacations in a remote and primitive old house in the Scottish Highlands, where he makes friends with villagers and shares their interests and activities including hunting in the deer forest. There's a kidnapping, a rescue and other adventures. Miss Stevenson tells her story crisply and cleanly, yet there is a touch of old-fashionedness, in the manner of Sir Walter Scott, in her narration that seems more a virtue than a fault.

But Miss Stevenson's real forte is her ability to re-create Highlands settings. She lives there, and obviously loves the region and understands its people.

Just listen to Sir Walter MacCallum describe the "large property" owned by Gregor MacAslan:

"Yes, a deer-forest, grouse moors, a sea loch with an island in the middle of it, pine woods, hills with sheep, and a few stony fields of hay, oats, turnips and potatoes. Last but not least, a comfortable house on the shores of the loch."

Makes you want to go there, doesn't it? And the best thing about it is that if one went, he would be able to find just such a place.

Faith Baldwin Again Recreates Life In A New England Village

ANY VILLAGE by Faith Baldwin; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 254 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

With more than 100 books to her credit, Faith Baldwin remains an oasis of calm and a bedrock of consistency in a literary world abuzz with novelists too often frenetic and erratic.

"Any Village" is typical Baldwin, a simply and effectively told novel dealing with human relationships.

For her setting she returns to the New England town of Little Oxford where her "Station Wagon Set" took place three decades ago. Dr. Bing Irvington is still there. And his son is also a practicing physician. Their involvement in the affairs of the villagers, and young Dr. Ben Irvington's romance with pretty Amy Meredith provide Miss Baldwin with her plot.

Some may find Miss Baldwin's novels a bit too mild and a touch old-fashioned for this day and age. But Faith Baldwin fans, and they are many, wouldn't want her or her stories any other way. And they will be delighted by "Any Village."

The Flaws In Freud's Thinking

THE CRISIS OF PSYCHOANALYSIS by Erich Fromm; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 161 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Shirley Luthman.

Dr. Fromm's discussions of the limitations of psychoanalytic theory and practice constitute a fresh viewpoint long overdue.

Freud's genius cannot be disputed. His deity is another matter.

Fromm states, "The theory of the unconscious is one of the most decisive steps in our knowledge of man and in our capacity to distinguish appearance from reality in human behavior. As a consequence, it opened up a new dimension of honesty and thereby created a new basis for critical thinking."

True. The difficulty occurred when proponents of Freud's theories responded to the criticism of other professionals by clinging rigidly to the theories and to each other. It is ironic that their process of opening themselves to change and new ideas was sacrificed to the idea itself. That substitution has held back the whole field of the study of human behavior for 30 years.

The other flaw in psychoanalytic theory was the assumption on the part of Freud and his followers that he had the "whole truth." In the study of human behavior, such an assumption is always suspect. Human behavior and development is too complex and changeable for any one theory to explain.

For example, if we make the accrual of knowledge about human development and behavior analogous to erecting a building, then psychoanalytic theory would be one cornerstone, of inestimable value, but not the whole foundation.

Fromm's discussion of the variations on Freud's theories by Marcuse, Hartmann, Sullivan and others, is extremely perceptive and lucid, therefore "must" reading for professionals in the field.

Dr. Fromm makes his most important point in the first two chapters, as I've already discussed. The rest of the book is anti-climactic. He discusses the areas of distortion he sees in psycho-analytic theory, such as his views on the female as a castrated male and the child as a "blank sheet" which the parents fill in. There is obvious evidence in current research and exploration that both these theories are erroneous.

These discussions are interesting and worth reading, but somehow don't seem to correlate with the major thesis of the book, so aptly stated at the end of chapter one — "In spite of some disquieting symptoms, however, psychoanalysis is far from dead. But its death can be predicted, unless it changes its direction."

The Shame Of California: Persecution Of Orientals

EAST MEETS WEST by George Goldberg; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 126 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Oriental people have become so well accepted in California that it is difficult to realize how intensely they were persecuted because of racial prejudice a few years ago.

"East Meets West" is sub-titled "The Story of the Chinese and Japanese in California." As such, it is a story of repression which should remind any California reader that he had best think twice before pointing fingers at Southern whites for their treatment of the Negro. The record is no less shameful because the prejudice has finally almost vanished.

George Goldberg's account of the treatment of the Chinese, first on the scene in the Golden State, is sketchy. He is at his best in his recitation of the Japanese oppression during World War II, which he appears to have researched thoroughly.

And this should serve as a reminder of how bigotry and war hysteria can combine to blind a people to humanity.

Formal Dining Room Makes A Comeback

Open Plans Give Way To Separation Trend

Open plans, combining living and dining rooms and creating flowing floor spaces, won the greatest following in the 1960s.

But today's designers are veering back toward separateness.

Openness swept in a new living and entertaining style. The formal dining room merged into the living room, other walls came down, ceilings soared, and expanses of glass brought indoors and outdoors together.

Now in the '70s preferences seem to be shifting back to room divisions, prompted in part by a growing appreciation of privacy in everyday life.

WOMEN HAVE re-discovered the virtues of an enclosed dining room, beautifully set up and unseen by guests until the dinner hour. And how nice to just close the doors on the clutter when the meal is finished.

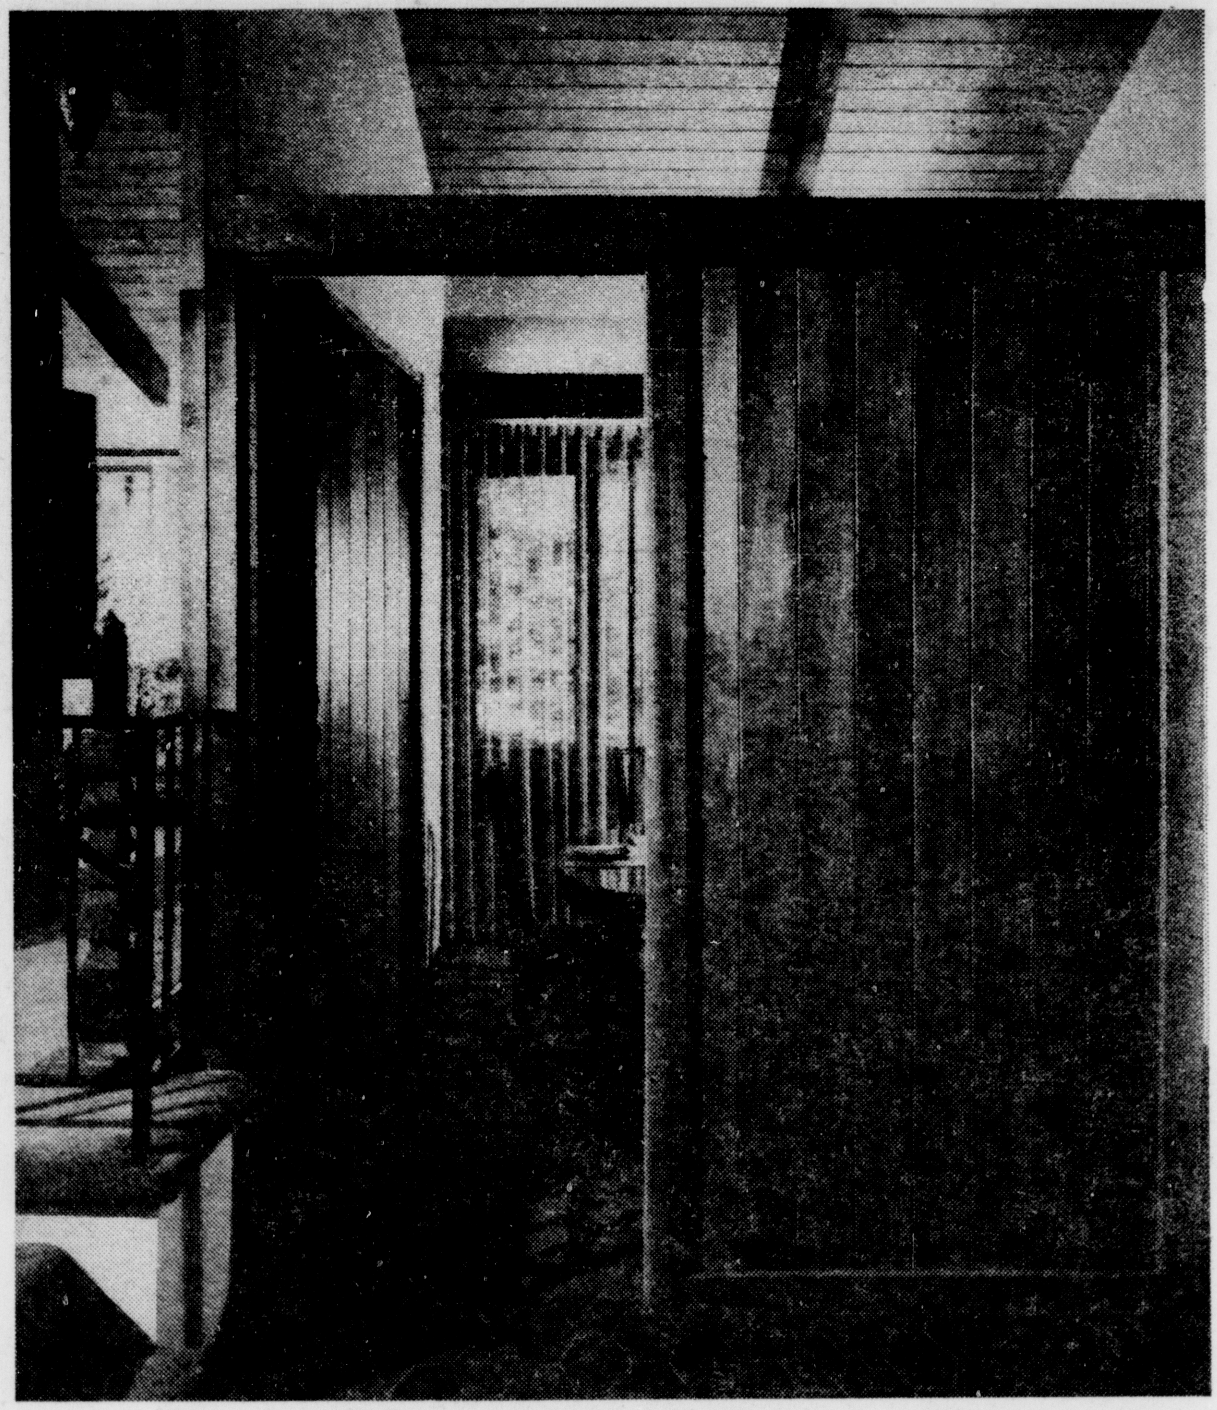
The style of a dining room should complement adjacent areas, providing a warm and gracious atmosphere for one of the most festive moments of the day.

A divider wall easily alters an open plan to achieve dining formality, yet retain spaciousness. Vaulted or pitched ceilings and a window wall lightly draped enhance this feeling.

THE DIVIDER can be solid, one-by-six-inch cedar, hemlock or pine boards, with doors at one or both ends, and possibly with built-in storage for china and silver. Or consider a more open design, with shelves and display areas.

In smaller homes or apartments, where areas simply must blend together for multiple and more efficient use of space, dining room separateness still may be achieved with louvered doors or folding screens.

Wood paneling is effective in a dining room where a minimum of wood furniture is used. Wallpapered walls set off beautifully textured wood dining sets. And a mirrored wall may be used to expand the room visually.



A DIVIDER WALL with doors at each end and paneled in one-by-six-inch cedar boards sets off the dining room from the entrance area and living room in this home. A cathedral ceiling of unfinished knotty pine, two-by-12-inch beams, and a window opening onto the deck add spaciousness to what is actually a 10-by-11-foot room. The indirect lighting is in the valences. (Photo by Western Wood Prodqcts Association)

Cabinet Has Double Use If Planned

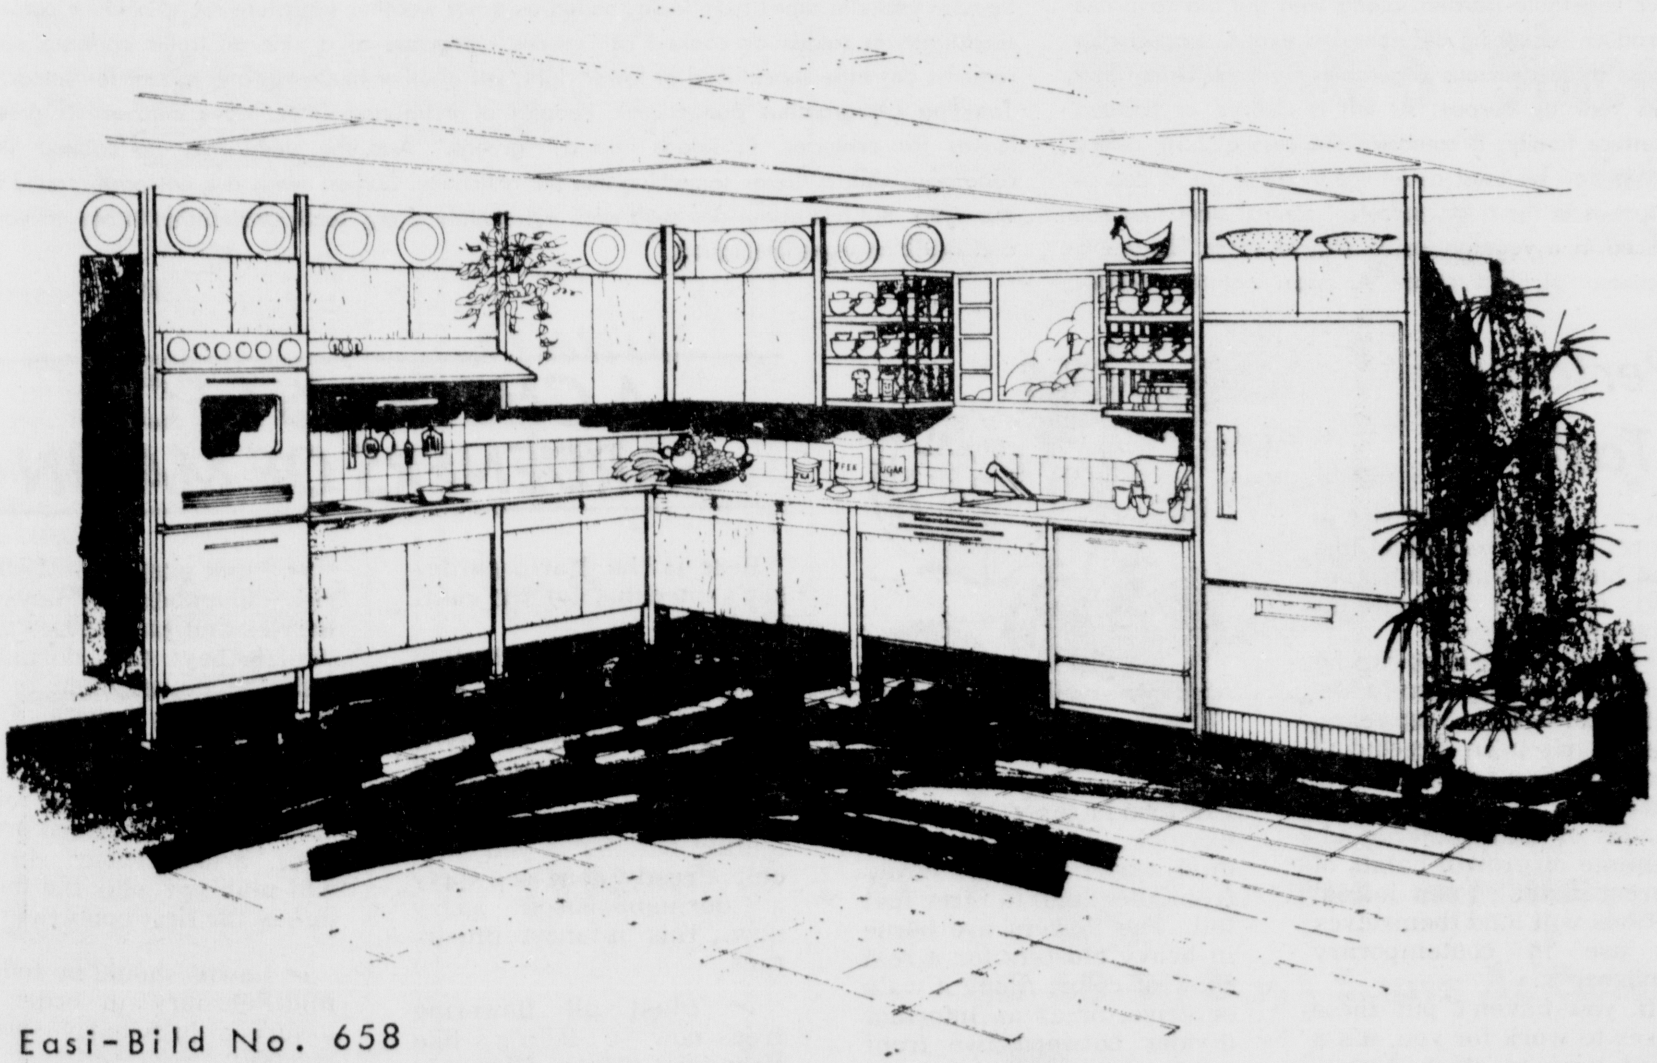
Need a desk niche in your living room or den?

A table-height cabinet can serve a dual purpose.

Build in a cabinet with raised panel doors that open to support a fold-down desk top. Plan its height to provide comfortable leg room.

When more floor space is needed, simply fold back the hinged top and close cabinet doors.

Raised panel doors are available in stock sizes and shelves are easily made of western fir or pine 12-inch boards. Finishing should generally match other woodwork in the room.



Easi-Bild No. 658

A NEW BOOK by the Easi-Bild Pattern Co. offers step-by-step instructions on how to build kitchen cabinets and contemporary furniture. More than 67 illustrations, plus easy-to-follow directions are designed to take the mystery out of kitchen modernization and to reduce the cost of cabinets and dividers by guiding you in the construction of your own. Send $1.50 to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., and ask for Book No. 658-667 — "Kitchen Cabinets, Room Dividers and Cabinet Furniture." Include your zip code number to expedite mailing. Even if you don't decide to build your own, the book will be helpful in purchasing materials and in supervising the ones who do the work for you.

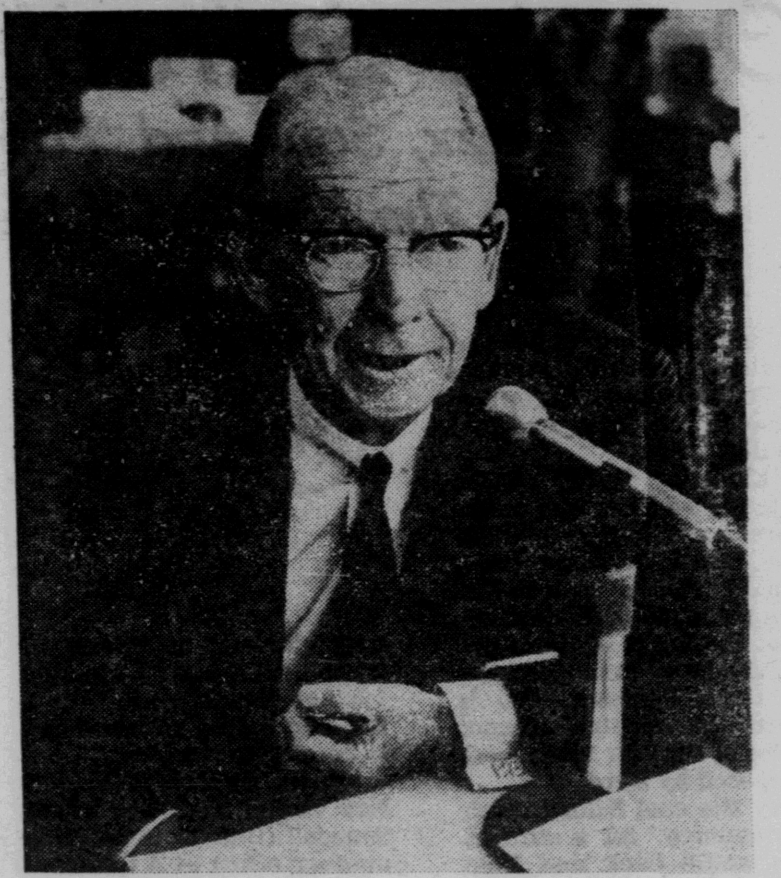
The 'Old Redhead' Tells About His Years Behind The 'Mike'



RED BARBER draws upon his 40 years of experience in radio and television covering sports in writing "The Broadcasters." It is his fourth book.

By DON KEOWN

THE BROADCASTERS by Red Barber; Dial, 271 pages, $6.95.

For nearly half a century now the ubiquitous play-by-play sports broadcaster has been almost as much a part of the American scene as apple pie and air pollution, sometimes as pleasure-giving as the former and sometimes as irritating as the latter.

Like any other profession institutionalized by society, sports broadcasting has developed its elite.

Walter (Red) Barber who began working behind a mike 40 years ago ranks high among the favored. He has known all of radio's and television's "greats," worked with most of them and feuded with a few.

His experience and a knack for writing that he now demonstrates as a sports columnist fits him ideally for the task of writing a book about the broadcasting vocation he also continues to practice on a more localized scale for a Miami station.

Our reaction to "The Broadcasters" was one of slight disappointment. The book is by no means uninteresting. It is just not as exhilarating as we expected it to be, given the author, his background and his subject.

It is perhaps a bit too much of an "in" book, although Barber's title quite honestly announces his subject. It is not the usual book about the sports events he has seen and the sports figures he has known; it is about the business of sports broadcasting and the men who make their living at it. In this book, the men on the field and arena are subordinate to the men on the booth and pressbox.

But in a profession torn between journalism and showmanship, Barber has always opted for the former. In a field often rent with near-hysteria, his has always been the voice of calm and reliability, telling us crisply, expertly what has happened on the field and not his personal opinions of it. He has eschewed partisanship for objectivity.

It is not surprising, then, that in deciding to write a book about sports broadcasters, Red Barber should do pretty much exactly that, seldom straying from his central subject.

He gives us a little history of radio in general and of sports announcing in particular. He gives us some of his early biography, a boyhood spent in Florida, and his own introduction to radio in 1929 while a student at the University of Florida at Gainesville on the school station WRUF.

He tells us in detail of the years he spent first as a radio and then as a radio- and television broadcaster in Cincinnati, New York and hopping about the country for the networks.

And finally, he closes his book with a bit of advice for the young man who might be considering a career in sports broadcasting. Paramount is imperturbability as delineated in a quotation borrowed from Rudyard Kipling: "To keep your head when all about you are losing theirs." But there are also instructions on scoring, suggestions on interviewing, etc.

And always, Barber, the complete professional, stresses preparation before the game, a factor, he indicates, often neglected by the new crop of broadcasters, especially the ex-athletes who start at the top on the basis of their names and reputations.

Characters like Graham McNamee, Ted Husing, Bill Munday, Bill Slater, Harry Wismer, Bill Stern, Bob Elson, Mel Allen, Tom Manning, Ty Tyson, Curt Gowdy, Clem McCarthy, Jim Woods, Phil Rizzuto, Vince Scully, Russ Hodges, Arch McDonald, Dizzy Dean enliven the pages of "The Broadcasters," so that it cannot be considered dull.

And in his book, as on the air, Barber is scrupulously honest in his comments and evaluations of his colleagues.

Ted Husing fares the worst. Barber's analysis of Husing's prima donna tendencies is devastating, although the value of his pioneering work as a sports announcer is not denigrated. Stern and Slater receive some rough treatment, too. And so do most of the ex-baseball and former football greats who have crowded into the field, generally, Barber feels, without proper qualifications.

Joe Garagiola is a disruptive influence in the booth, "so self-centered I don't think he ever once paused to consider anybody else."

The expert who played the game now steals the thunder from the professional broadcaster whose personality and knowledge once made him the key figure. The broadcast has been depersonalized, and to Barber that is regrettable.

Some other Barber opinions:

Graham McNamee "was the greatest sports announcer we ever had." Working without the aids, assistants and comforts of today's broadcasters, he covered an amazing variety of sports and made them all come alive for his listeners. (Remembering as a boy listening to the great McNamee on football or baseball and the sense of the dramatic and excitement he generated inside us, we agree wholeheartedly.)

Curt Gowdy is the greatest television sports announcer today (we like Chris Schenkel), while Vince Scully is the best on radio. And Waite Hoyt was the best of the baseball players who transferred to the mike.

The best three-man team? Barber, never one to do the modesty bit, names them forthrightly: "Mel Allen, Jim Woods and Red Barber." Their closest challengers? "Connie Desmond, Vince Scully and Red Barber."

For Barber, sports broadcasting is strictly a business, to be approached and dealt with seriously and responsibly. As he pictures it, it is often not a pretty business. It seems a profession of big egos, petty jealousies and much backbiting — a cutthroat trade. And like the professional sports and entertainment fields with which it is closely related, it tends to overestimate its worth. But this is understandable in a society that tends to quibble over the pay of its garbage haulers, policemen, teachers and others without whom it could not function, while supporting the sometimes outlandish salaries sports and show business pay their stars without whom society could get along easily, if less pleasantly.

Barber, himself, emerges as a somewhat difficult character, stubborn, suspicious, inclined to feel and resent all slights, sometimes needlessly quarrelsome, not so much with his broadcasting colleagues as with network, team and agency officials. But he also emerges as a proud man with principles, dedicated to his trade and possessing the competency of the true professional.

On second thought, after reviewing our impressions of the book, perhaps the "Old Redhead" has written in "The Broadcasters" a history more provocative than we at first realized. If not all our expectations were met, there were also values in the book we had not anticipated.

PRACTICE TO DECEIVE by Elizabeth Linington; Harper & Row, 212 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Elizabeth Linington stands alone as America's sole challenger to John Creasey-J. J. Marric as a writer of the police procedural novel.

If Miss Linington is not yet the English master's peer in incorporating deduction and mystery into her plots, she is his equal in creating interesting, believable characters and in picturing the day-to-day workings of modern police.

In "Practice to Deceive," Sgt. Ivor Maddix and his colleagues of Los Angeles' Wilcox Street Precinct are caught up in a welter of warm weather crimes including a compulsive rapist who finally kills, a dismembered and unidentified body, a locked door mystery and a murdered member of the force. They cope with the crime wave realistically, all the while going about the business of their daily lives which, for Maddox and Police Woman Sue Carstairs, involves some subterfuge in attempting to work out coinciding vacation dates so they can tie the nuptial knot.

It is another neatly-told triumph for Miss Linington and for the men and women of the Wilcox Street station who have become old friends.

UNIVERSITY of California Press has published "Flowers of Point Reyes National Seashore," $2.65 paperback, by Roxana Ferris, curator emeritus of the Dudley Herbarium at Stanford University and authority on the flora of the Bay Region.

It is a book for those visiting the Point Reyes Peninsula to enable them to recognize at least some of the thousands of different plant species that flourish in its diversified 53,000 acres.

Dr. Ferris' descriptions of 181 representative species are accompanied by drawings by Jeanne R. Janish. While there is no color, there is an index listing the plants by color groups.

"From Buttercup Family to Orchid Family" is the first chapter title, and from there Dr. Ferris introduces you to the likes of Hairy Cat's Ear, Slim Solomon's Seal, Wake Robin and Baby Blue Eyes.

A most worthwhile endeavor, and a most useful helpmate for the hiker with an eye for wildflowers.

BAY AREA resident George Tsolinas is the author of "Women in Cages," a Vantage Press-published expose of the India of today as he found it during numerous trips to that country to study its people and their culture. It is not a pretty picture, but, claims the publisher, "it will give you your first clear insight into the life and people of India now."

WHEN YOU PURCHASE seeds for your vegetable garden, along with the old favorites also pick up a few packages that will produce something different and exotic, suggests the W. Atlee Burpee Co. Something like these three delicious vegetables from the Orient that are being introduced to Americans this year by Burpee. At left is Celtuce or Lactuea sativa from China. A member of the lettuce family, it combines the uses of both celery and lettuce. When leaves are young, they can be used as lettuce in salads or boiled as "greens." But the real pleasure of Celtuce is in the thick, succulent central stalk that can be eaten raw like celery or cooked, diced in a vegetable side dish or soup. The young leaves have four times the vitamin C content of plain lettuce. At upper right is Malabar Spinach (Basella alba) from India, hailed as a hot weather substitute for spinach. It can be used fresh in salads or cooked as "greens." It grows as a vine on trellis or fence and requires but little space. And at lower right, yet another heat-resistant variant for spinach, Tamalpa (Amaranthus gangeticus). Peoples of India and China have enjoyed its green leaves for centuries, in salads and as "greens." And the stems may be cooked like asparagus with a flavor something like the artichoke. Burpee seeds are not easily found in our area. But just about any seed rack will contain a vegetable or two that is new to you, and worth an experimentation.

Roses Can Now Perform Wide Variety Of Tasks

There was a time when the formality of a rose discouraged its use with other flowering plants.

A rose was planted in a bed of fellow roses, where it complemented and was complemented by its beautiful companions.

That was yesteryear, however. Today, while the home rose gardens are still featured attractions, many roses have moved out of more formalized plantings and have become important and beautiful fixtures in modern landscapes.

The rose hybridist can be thanked for this lovely development. In recent years, his art has been directed at developing free-flowering varieties in unbelievable shades of colors, taking advantage of growth habits of parent plants so new introductions will lend themselves to use in contemporary landscapes.

If you haven't put these roses to work for you, it's a good time to start. Nurseries have the year's largest selection roses available now — in bareroot form. The roses, in their dormancy, are easily handled and transplanted into the garden.

To demonstrate the rose hybridist's achievements,

Floribunda roses are a good example. There are individual varieties which grow from knee high to three feet tall. The flowers are borne in heavy clusters for a real show of color. Along a walk or drive, or as an informal divider between two front gardens, there are few more fetching sights.

There are still the familiar specialists of the rose family, too: Pillar roses for post or trellis; climbing roses to follow a fence or eave — and aristocratic tree roses to serve as focal points.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Prune your roses this month. If in doubt as to how to go about it, ask your nurseryman's advice, or buy a good book of instructions.

✓ Fruit trees soon will be leafing out. So if you haven't already done so, apply a dormant-season spray now. This is most important.

✓ Plant all flowering trees now — things like flowering plums, flowering peaches, crabapples, cherries, etc. And while you are at it, take a look at the bareroot shrubs in the nurseries ready for planting in your garden.

✓ Practice snail and slug control by putting out pellets or powder regularly.

✓ Plant grapes, strawberries, blackberries, boysenberries and raspberries now while they are dormant. Ask the nurserymen to recommend the varieties best suited to our area.

✓ If fall and winter rains have created drainage problems around your shrubs and plants, repair the damage at the first opportunity.

✓ Lawns should be fed by mid-February in order to assure a lush early spring growth.

✓ Continue to plant Gladiolus bulbs periodically to assure a continuous show of their spectacular colors.

✓ After rains, stay off the lawn as much as possible until the earth has dried and hardened.

Jazz, Soul And 'Pop' Albums From The Family Of Liberty Labels

By JOHN SUNIER

Continuing our quick run through recent releases from the Liberty "family," these in the jazz, soul and popular veins:

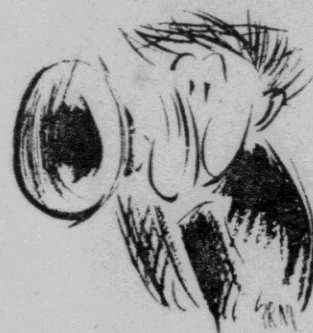
"Electric Byrd" (Blue Note 84349) is one of the more arresting jazz discs I've heard in some time. Donald Byrd's speech-like trumpet style is distinctively at the heart of these impressionistic arrangements by Duke Pearson, who is heard on electric piano. Three of the four tunes were composed by Byrd.

Try the cool Ellington-ish "Estavanico" for a starter, then settle back and float with this expressive, sensitive musical wizardry.

MARIN'S OWN George Duke has his album in "Save the Country" (Liberty 11004).

With a scholarly background gained at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, pianist Duke has climbed fast in the jazz world. Joined by an eight-man group, he bases his improvisations on songs of Laura Nyro, Judy Collins, Joe South and Lennon-McCartney.

Another pianist, McCoy Tyner, is featured in an LP entitled, "Expansions" (Blue Note 84338). Tyner who spent much time with the late John Coltrane's group.



The sextet heard with Tyner is unusual in including a cello played by Ron Carter. There is a Japanese-flavored duet for wood flute and clarinet in "Song of Happiness," and "I Thought I'd Let You Know" is a melodic ballad with the cello coming to the fore.

"SOUL SYMPHONY — A New Sound from The Three Sounds" (Blue Note 84341) is another effort at a fusion of jazz and the classics, which has been going on since the early 1920s.

The work of composer Monk Higgins, the piano-bass-drums group known as The Three Sounds, and the Hollywood studio orchestra with stars like Buddy Collette on woodwinds and Fred Robinson on guitar is no " Rhapsody in Blue," but if viewed as modest, swinging jazz with orchestral backing, it is very enjoyable listening.

After the 26-minute Symphony, flip side of the LP is devoted to four trio performances, all originals.

HERE ARE FOUR more entries in the "Best of. . ." sweepstakes. All are super for the collector on a budget. (I'll just list the album and one or two of the many top hits you'll find therein):

"The Best of Horace Silver" (Blue Note 84325) — "Doodlin'," "Sister Sadie." "The Best of The Gerald Wilson Orchestra" (World Pacific Jazz 20174) — "Blues For Yna Yna," "Viva Tirado." "The Best of the Jazz Crusaders" (World Pacific Jazz 20175) — "Tough Talk," "The Young Rabbits." "The Best of Buddy Rich" (World Pacific Jazz 20169) — "Channel 1 Suite," "West Side Story Medley."

The Imperial label has issued a big series which they call the Legendary Masters Series. These are re-issues of early blues, rock, gospel and so on.

TWO ESPECIALLY interested me: "Volume I, Gospel Music, The Soul Stirrers" (Imperial LM-94007), a black gospel quartet (called that though actually consisting of seven singers) of the late 1940s who balance traditional spirituals in a swinging style with secular songs of historical interest. "Why I Like Roosevelt" and "Pearl Harbor" are simply fascinating. "Volume 3, Rural Blues, Down Home Stomp" (Imperial LM-94006) is a reissue of blues from the late '40s and early '50s by Papa Lightfoot, Roosevelt Sykes, Little Son Jackson and others whose primitive styles were largely untouched by outside influences. These singers have a gutsy honesty that really comes across.

In the field of humor on LP, not much has happened lately. But a wonderfully humane, nutty voice from the past has been preserved on World Pacific 21889, "Bad Rapping of the Marquis De Sade," featuring Lord Buckley.

These tapes were made in an Oakland bar back in 1960 and show one-time Marinite Buckley, with his hipster translations of De Sade and "The Ballad of Dan McGrew."

His plan to our friendly forces of law 'n' order, "His Majesty The Policeman," will have even policemen victims of hilarity.

FINALLY, TO music of the East, a specialty of World Pacific Records, who brought Ravi Shankar to American ears.

"T. Viswanathan, South Indian Flute" (21451) is a trippy flight of sound. The five short ragas in the album demonstrate the close alliance of South Indian instrumental music to vocal lines.

"Bagavad Gita, Song of God" (21466) is a reading by Ravi Shankar of 21 stanzas from the epic Hindu poem about Lord Krishna. Musical background is by Ashish Khan. This is an instructive and interesting exploration of the most popular of the Hindu Scriptures, dating from about 600 B.C.

The music is wonderfully right and supports the words. And I really dig that Indian accent.

"Why Can't My Dress Be Cleaned?

It can be, of course, but you'd be unhappy with the result. While your dress is cleanable the dress trim is not. All of a garment should be drycleanable if it is to be truly serviceable.

Your dress has considerable decorative trim. Your drycleaner tested this trim and discovered that it would bleed in cleaning. Since the trim could not be removed, he would not accept your dress for cleaning.

There are many types of garment decorations which will not dryclean satisfactorily. Even beads can cause trouble; some turn color in cleaning, others are coated over black porous centers that bleed in cleaning; still other beads may dissolve completely when a garment is cleaned.

Before you buy any garment with decorative trim, make certain that the trim is drycleanable, too. Getting that assurance in writing will protect you completely.

For Early Spring Color, Plant Your Annual Flowers Now

It's time now to prepare for spring, and there are no better things to plant for the seasonal transition than early-blooming annuals.

The Snapdragon family is most cooperative in providing loads of color for different areas in the landscape.

For borders, or edging plantings, there are dwarf Floral Carpet Snaps. For massed plantings, or raised beds, the intermediate-growing varieties (12 to 25 inches) — Sprite and Knee High — are ideal.

AND, WHAT garden background would be complete without the tall Rocket hybrid Snapdragons?

Plant "Snaps" in rich soil — a nurseryman's planter mix will help provide this and good drainage for the plants. Give them lots of sun.

The flowers are excellent for cutting and the scrumptions shades of pink, rose, salmon, yellow, copper and crimson will enhance your indoor decor as well as add cheer to your spring garden.

STOCKS ARE attractive annuals for garden beds and cut bouquets. The fragrant blooms come in colors ranging from white through pink shades to lavender-blue.

Tall growing, Stocks are magnificent by themselves in a planting or incorporated with other flowering plants in the garden.

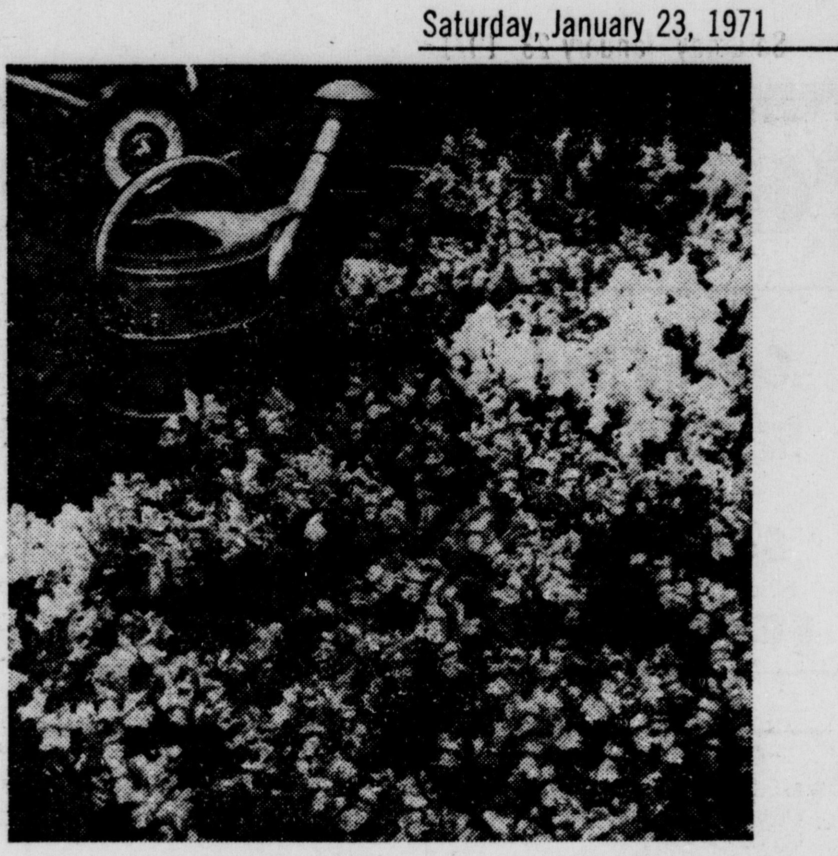
One of the brightest of the spring-blooming favorites is the Calendula. Newer hybrids in radiant and intense shades of persimmon, gold, and cream are available, along with familiar orange and lemon hues.

USE CALENDULAS in borders, massed display beds, pots and window boxes. You may find container-grown plants already in bloom.

No spring garden would be complete without borders or massed plantings of Fairy Primroses. Tiny pink, rose, lavender and white blooms adorn handsome soft green foliage and the freshness of this combination is a seasonal delight. These will do best in a partially shaded area.

English Primroses — a perennial — are also a must, hence their mention here. The bright flowers have no peer in providing abundant beauty.

PANSIES AND Violas are gay brightener-uppers for an early spring garden. They provide a riot of color in borders and edging plantings. For cheery accents, tuck-in Pansies and Violas throughout the garden, in front of other annuals or landscape shrubs. They are great with bulbs and in window boxes, too.



Garden Pages

THE SNAPDRAGON family is among the many early-blooming annuals that can be planted in your garden now to assure you of a colorful spring garden. The "Snaps" range from tiny dwarfs to tall-growing hybrids, with the intermediates, 12 to 25 inches, in between. The variety seen here, the Sprite, falls into that category. Snapdragons are excellent for borders, as edgings and as massed plantings.

A Good Time To Plant Trio Of Garden Favorites

The start of a New Year is a good time to select and plant Azaleas, Camellias and Rhododendrons.

Nurseries have their largest selection of this trio of favorites at this time. Plus, earlier-blooming varieties are showing color, and others are chockful of buds which will unfold their beauty for you to enjoy in the coming weeks.

Planting is fairly simple, with the most important factor being to make sure you provide good drainage for the plants.

The basic soil and water requirements are similar for both Azaleas and Rhododendrons. Both require an acid soil that drains well and at the same time retains moisture. This is easy to provide: Use a planter mix rich in organic matter (such things as pre-moistured peat moss, ground bark, sawdust or leaf mold).

Plant Azaleas and Rhododendrons at or slightly above the soil level. Both are surface rooters and also would appreciate a covering layer of mulch.

Hedges That Bloom Are Popular With Calfornians

There are those who think of hedges only as clipped and formal.

Certainly, in the correct setting, a formal hedge is a handsome fixture. However, while contemporary architecture finds no trend towards formal design, still home owners continue to incorporate hedges in their landscapes.

This is especially true in California, where the emphasis is on outdoor living — and both home and garden are aimed at this end.

INFORMAL HEDGES are the order of the day, and in recent years gardeners in California have planted flowering hedges — gaining the benefits of lovely colors of the blooming specimens, as well as a functional addition to the garden.

Where a privacy screen is needed, for instance, large-growing Oleanders — in bright red, pink and white — fill the bill. As does the sturdy red-blooming Bottle Brush.

Where winter frost is not a threat, Hibiscus, in a wide range of colors is a beautiful choice, too.

AT THE FAR reaches of the property, where a low hedge planting is desired, the carefree Rockroses are a natural. The flowers come in shades of pink and rose or in white.

Too, the newer Juniper varieties are worth looking at for difficult hard-to-water garden spots. Varieties with blue or gray foliages are a lovely sight from afar — or up close. There's a height for any situation.

The India Hawthorne (Raphiolepis) is a popular flowering choice — for hedges or individual planting. Low-to-medium growers, they bloom in shades of pink and red and are to be found throughout the state.

VERONICA, WITH lilac-like blooms, are modest growers; the foliage texture and color make this an ideal hedge choice where lower-growing plants are required.

Camellias make a pleasing hedge and are among the best for shadier places.

Formal Dining Room Makes A Comeback

Open Plans Give Way To Separation Trend

Open plans, combining living and dining rooms and creating flowing floor spaces, won the greatest following in the 1960s.

But today's designers are veering back toward separateness.

Openness swept in a new living and entertaining style. The formal dining room merged into the living room, other walls came down, ceilings soared, and expanses of glass brought indoors and outdoors together.

Now in the '70s preferences seem to be shifting back to room divisions, prompted in part by a growing appreciation of privacy in everyday life.

WOMEN HAVE re-discovered the virtues of an enclosed dining room, beautifully set up and unseen by guests until the dinner hour. And how nice to just close the doors on the clutter when the meal is finished.

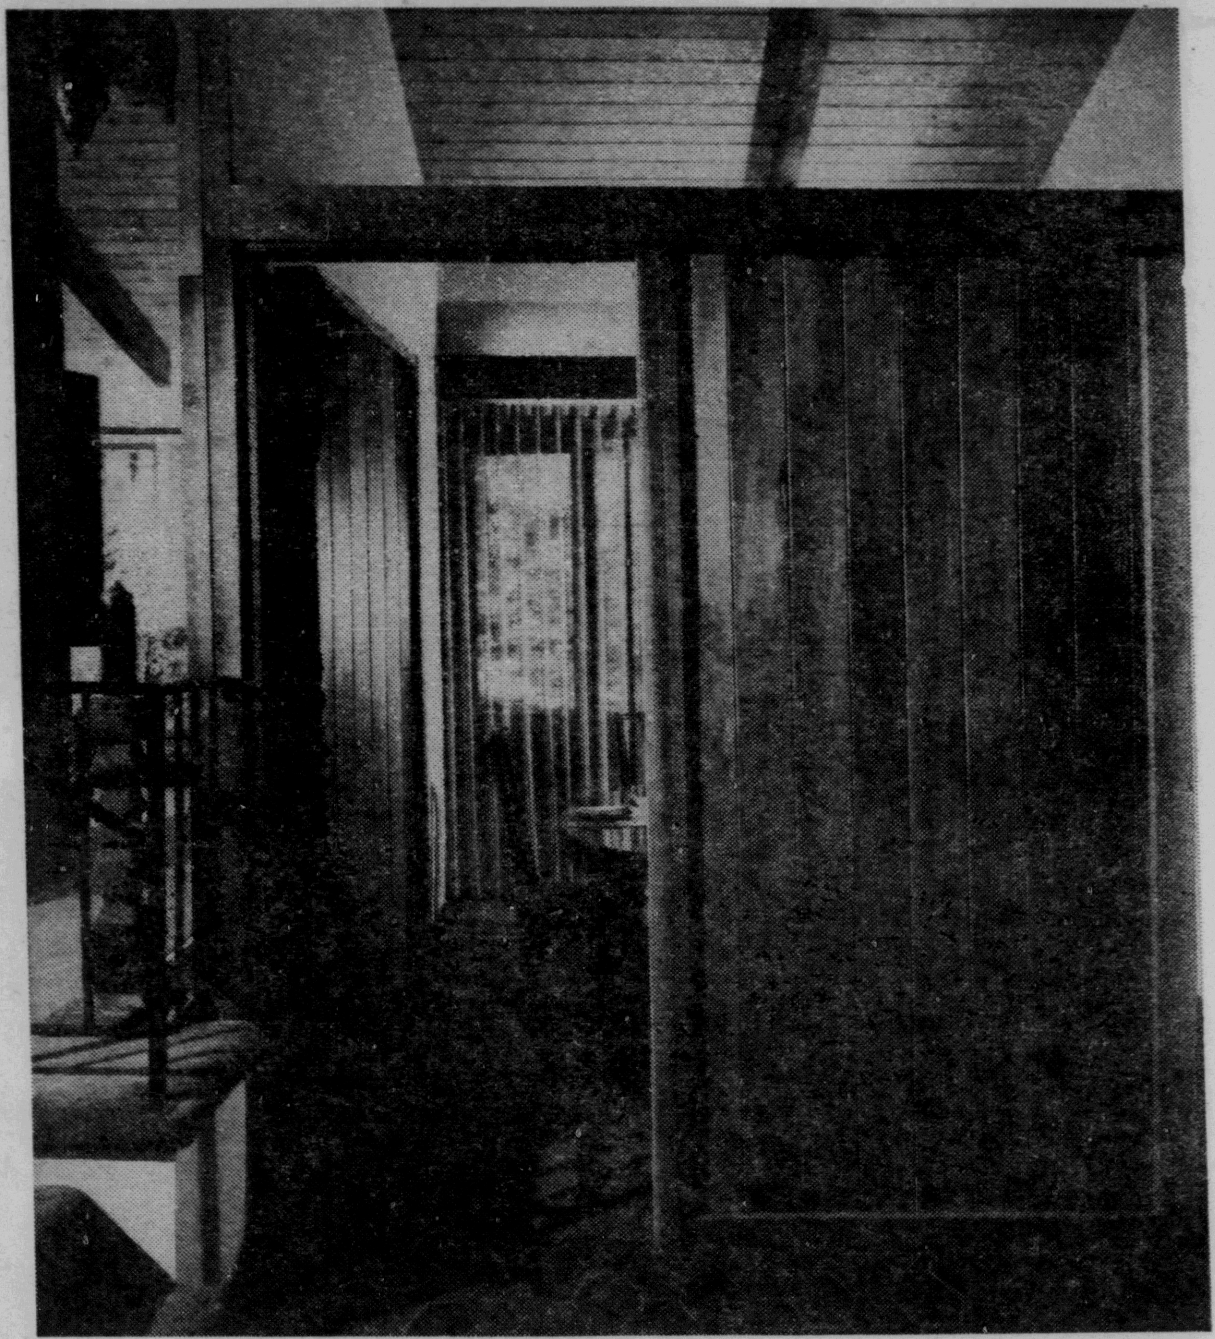
The style of a dining room should complement adjacent areas, providing a warm and gracious atmosphere for one of the most festive moments of the day.

A divider wall easily alters an open plan to achieve dining formality, yet retain spaciousness. Vaulted or pitched ceilings and a window wall lightly draped enhance this feeling.

THE DIVIDER can be solid, one-by-six-inch cedar, hemlock or pine boards, with doors at one or both ends, and possibly with built-in storage for china and silver. Or consider a more open design, with shelves and display areas.

In smaller homes or apartments, where areas simply must blend together for multiple and more efficient use of space, dining room separateness still may be achieved with louvered doors or folding screens.

Wood paneling is effective in a dining room where a minimum of wood furniture is used. Wallpapered walls set off beautifully textured wood dining sets. And a mirrored wall may be used to expand the room visually.



A DIVIDER WALL with doors at each end and paneled in one-by-six-inch cedar boards sets off the dining room from the entrance area and living room in this home. A cathedral ceiling of unfinished knotty pine, two-by-12-inch beams, and a window opening onto the deck add spaciousness to what is actually a 10-by-11-foot room. The indirect lighting is in the valences. (Photo by Western Wood Prodqcts Association)

Bellach's took all of United Furniture Corporation close outs of ALLURA, which is a collection of art itself. Its vertical panels are finished in Walnut stains out of Oak solids, their bas-relief figures are tastefully proportioned to the varying shapes of the collection. This is new drama, a fascinating new dimension in the furniture of today. Sturdy oak solids are treated to an intriguing trio of Walnut, rosewood, and exotic acacia koa.

WHEN YOU PURCHASE seeds for your vegetable garden, along with the old favorites also pick up a few packages that will produce something different and exotic, suggests the W. Atlee Burpee Co. Something like these three delicious vegetables from the Orient that are being introduced to Americans this year by Burpee. At left is Celtuce or Lactuea sativa from China. A member of the lettuce family, it combines the uses of both celery and lettuce. When leaves are young, they can be used as lettuce in salads or boiled as "greens." But the real pleasure of Celtuce is in the thick, succulent central stalk that can be eaten raw like celery or cooked, diced in a vegetable side dish or soup. The young leaves have four times the vitamin C content of plain lettuce. At upper right is Malabar Spinach (Basella alba) from India, hailed as a hot weather substitute for spinach. It can be used fresh in salads or cooked as "greens." It grows as a vine on trellis or fence and requires but little space. And at lower right, yet another heat-resistant variant for spinach, Tamalpa (Amaranthus gangeticus). Peoples of India and China have enjoyed its green leaves for centuries, in salads and as "greens." And the stems may be cooked like asparagus with a flavor something like the artichoke. Burpee seeds are not easily found in our area. But just about any seed rack will contain a vegetable or two that is new to you, and worth an experimentation.

Roses Can Now Perform Wide Variety Of Tasks

There was a time when the formality of a rose discouraged its use with other flowering plants.

A rose was planted in a bed of fellow roses, where it complemented and was complemented by its beautiful companions.

That was yesteryear, however. Today, while the home rose gardens are still featured attractions, many roses have moved out of more formalized plantings and have become important and beautiful fixtures in modern landscapes.

The rose hybridist can be thanked for this lovely development. In recent years, his art has been directed at developing free-flowering varieties in unbelievable shades of colors, taking advantage of growth habits of parent plants so new introductions will lend themselves to use in contemporary landscapes.

If you haven't put these roses to work for you, it's a good time to start. Nurseries have the year's largest selection roses available now — in bareroot form. The roses, in their dormancy, are easily handled and transplanted into the garden.

To demonstrate the rose hybridist's achievements, Floribunda roses are a good example. There are individual varieties which grow from knee high to three feet tall. The flowers are borne in heavy clusters for a real show of color. Along a walk or drive, or as an informal divider between two front gardens, there are few more fetching sights.

There are still the familiar specialists of the rose family, too: Pillar roses for post or trellis; climbing roses to follow a fence or eave — and aristocratic tree roses to serve as focal points.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Prune your roses this month. If in doubt as to how to go about it, ask your nurseryman's advice, or buy a good book of instructions.

✓ Fruit trees soon will be leafing out. So if you haven't already done so, apply a dormant-season spray now. This is most important.

✓ Plant all flowering trees now — things like flowering plums, flowering peaches, crabapples, cherries, etc. And while you are at it, take a look at the bareroot shrubs in the nurseries ready for planting in your garden.

✓ Practice snail and slug control by putting out pellets or powder regularly.

✓ Plant grapes, strawberries, blackberries, boysenberries and raspberries now while they are dormant. Ask the nurserymen to recommend the varieties best suited to our area.

✓ If fall and winter rains have created drainage problems around your shrubs and plants, repair the damage at the first opportunity.

✓ Lawns should be fed by mid-February in order to assure a lush early spring growth.

✓ Continue to plant Gladiolus bulbs periodically to assure a continuous show of their spectacular colors.

✓ After rains, stay off the lawn as much as possible until the earth has dried and hardened.

For Early Spring Color, Plant Your Annual Flowers Now

It's time now to prepare for spring, and there are no better things to plant for the seasonal transition than early-blooming annuals.

The Snapdragon family is most cooperative in providing loads of color for different areas in the landscape.

For borders, or edging plantings, there are dwarf Floral Carpet Snaps. For massed plantings, or raised beds, the intermediate-growing varieties (12 to 25 inches) — Sprite and Knee High — are ideal.

AND, WHAT garden background would be complete without the tall Rocket hybrid Snapdragons?

Plant "Snaps" in rich soil — a nurseryman's planter mix will help provide this and good drainage for the plants. Give them lots of sun.

The flowers are excellent for cutting and the scrumptions shades of pink, rose, salmon, yellow, copper and crimson will enhance your indoor decor as well as add cheer to your spring garden.

STOCKS ARE attractive annuals for garden beds and cut bouquets. The fragrant blooms come in colors ranging from white through pink shades to lavender-blue.

Tall growing, Stocks are magnificent by themselves in a planting or incorporated with other flowering plants in the garden.

One of the brightest of the spring-blooming favorites is the Calendula. Newer hybrids in radiant and intense shades of persimmon, gold, and cream are available, along with familiar orange and lemon hues.

USE CALENDULAS in borders, massed display beds, pots and window boxes. You may find container-grown plants already in bloom.

No spring garden would be complete without borders or massed plantings of Fairy Primroses. Tiny pink, rose, lavender and white blooms adorn handsome soft green foliage and the freshness of this combination is a seasonal delight. These will do best in a partially shaded area.

English Primroses — a perennial — are also a must, hence their mention here. The bright flowers have no peer in providing abundant beauty.

PANSIES AND Violas are gay brightener-uppers for an early spring garden. They provide a riot of color in borders and edging plantings. For cheery accents, tuck-in Pansies and Violas throughout the garden, in front of other annuals or landscape shrubs. They are great with bulbs and in window boxes, too.

Garden Pages

THE SNAPDRAGON family is among the many early-blooming annuals that can be planted in your garden now to assure you of a colorful spring garden. The "Snaps" range from tiny dwarfs to tall-growing hybrids, with the intermediates, 12 to 25 inches, in between. The variety seen here, the Sprite, falls into that category. Snapdragons are excellent for borders, as edgings and as massed plantings.

A Good Time To Plant Trio Of Garden Favorites

The start of a New Year is a good time to select and plant Azaleas, Camellias and Rhododendrons.

Nurseries have their largest selection of this trio of favorites at this time. Plus, earlier-blooming varieties are showing color, and others are chockful of buds which will unfold their beauty for you to enjoy in the coming weeks.

Planting is fairly simple, with the most important factor being to make sure you provide good drainage for the plants.

The basic soil and water requirements are similar for both Azaleas and Rhododendrons. Both require an acid soil that drains well and at the same time retains moisture. This is easy to provide: Use a planter mix rich in organic matter (such things as pre-moistured peat moss, ground bark, sawdust or leaf mold).

Plant Azaleas and Rhododendrons at or slightly above the soil level. Both are surface rooters and also would appreciate a covering layer of mulch.

Hedges That Bloom Are Popular With Calfornians

There are those who think of hedges only as clipped and formal.

Certainly, in the correct setting, a formal hedge is a handsome fixture. However, while contemporary architecture finds no trend towards formal design, still home owners continue to incorporate hedges in their landscapes.

This is especially true in California, where the emphasis is on outdoor living — and both home and garden are aimed at this end.

INFORMAL HEDGES are the order of the day, and in recent years gardeners in California have planted flowering hedges — gaining the benefits of lovely colors of the blooming specimens, as well as a functional addition to the garden.

Where a privacy screen is needed, for instance, large-growing Oleanders — in bright red, pink and white — fill the bill. As does the sturdy red-blooming Bottle Brush.

Where winter frost is not a threat, Hibiscus, in a wide range of colors is a beautiful choice, too.

AT THE FAR reaches of the property, where a low hedge planting is desired, the carefree Rockroses are a natural. The flowers come in shades of pink and rose or in white.

Too, the newer Juniper varieties are worth looking at for difficult hard-to-water garden spots. Varieties with blue or gray foliages are a lovely sight from afar — or up close. There's a height for any situation.

The India Hawthorne (Raphiolepis) is a popular flowering choice — for hedges or individual planting. Low-to-medium growers, they bloom in shades of pink and red and are to be found throughout the state.

VERONICA, WITH lilac-like blooms, are modest growers; the foliage texture and color make this an ideal hedge choice where lower-growing plants are required.

Camellias make a pleasing hedge and are among the best for shadier places.

Rose Marie Keeps Busy To Ease Pangs Of Widowhood

By VERNON SCOTT

Rose Marie, widowed six years, shares a roomy San Fernando Valley home with her daughter, Georgiana, 23, and works steadily in two television shows.

Her busy schedule is more than economic.

Rose Marie's relationship with her late husband, musician Bobby Guy, was so close that she still has not adjusted to his death.

"We were a little too close," she says. "When I lost Bobby I lost half my own life."

TO COMPENSATE for the long, lonely hours at home Rose Marie co-stars in "The Doris Day Show" and doubles as a semi-regular on "The Hollywood Squares."

Her work occupies Rose Marie five days a week, often keeping her at the studio until 7 p.m. or later. But she usually returns home in time to fix dinner for Georgiana whom she calls "Noopy."

Rose Marie is proudest of Georgiana's accomplishments as an equestrienne.

THE HOUSE IS filled with ribbons, trophies and silver plates won by Georgiana in shows. She has five horses of her own and trains them at a suburban stable.

Weekends Rose Marie catches up on mail, does some shopping and cleans house although a cleaning woman comes in once a week.

Much of the wardrobe she wears on television is from her own closets which bulge with dresses and suits that reach the knee and are as tailored as she can find.

CAST AND CREW members of both her television shows are frequent dinner guests.

Rose Marie doesn't care for informality when she entertains. Most often she invites a dozen guests to a sit-down nine-course dinner served formally.

"I never invite more than 12," she says, "because that's as many as I can serve at the table."

HER GUESTS ARE treated to her unusual dinnerware. She collects China.

She has five services of 12 and different services for eight. There are special dishes for Valentine parties, Christmas feasts, Thanksgiving dinners and the like. Included in her collection are special dishes shaped as cabbage leaves for cabbage delicacies and plates in the shape of asparagus.

THEY LEND A festive touch to Rose Marie's parties.

The actress-comedienne believes anything she can do to make her home a merry place diminishes the pangs of widowhood.

Bellach's took all of United Furniture Corporation close outs of ALLURA, which is a collection of art itself. Its vertical panels are finished in Walnut stains out of Oak solids, their bas-relief figures are tastefully proportioned to the varying shapes of the collection. This is new drama, a fascinating new dimension in the furniture of today. Sturdy oak solids are treated to an intriguing trio of Walnut, rosewood, and exotic acacia koa.

Rose Marie Keeps Busy To Ease Pangs Of Widowhood

By VERNON SCOTT

Rose Marie, widowed six years, shares a roomy San Fernando Valley home with her daughter, Georgiana, 23, and works steadily in two television shows.

Her busy schedule is more than economic.

Rose Marie's relationship with her late husband, musician Bobby Guy, was so close that she still has not adjusted to his death.

"We were a little too close," she says. "When I lost Bobby I lost half my own life."

TO COMPENSATE for the long, lonely hours at home Rose Marie co-stars in "The Doris Day Show" and doubles as a semi-regular on "The Hollywood Squares."

Her work occupies Rose Marie five days a week, often keeping her at the studio until 7 p.m. or later. But she usually returns home in time to fix dinner for Georgiana whom she calls "Noopy."

Rose Marie is proudest of Georgiana's accomplishments as an equestrienne.

THE HOUSE IS filled with ribbons, trophies and silver plates won by Georgiana in shows. She has five horses of her own and trains them at a suburban stable.

Weekends Rose Marie catches up on mail, does some shopping and cleans house although a cleaning woman comes in once a week.

Much of the wardrobe she wears on television is from her own closets which bulge with dresses and suits that reach the knee and are as tailored as she can find.

CAST AND CREW members of both her television shows are frequent dinner guests.

Rose Marie doesn't care for informality when she entertains. Most often she invites a dozen guests to a sit-down nine-course dinner served formally.

"I never invite more than 12," she says, "because that's as many as I can serve at the table."

HER GUESTS ARE treated to her unusual dinnerware. She collects China.

She has five services of 12 and different services for eight. There are special dishes for Valentine parties, Christmas feasts, Thanksgiving dinners and the like. Included in her collection are special dishes shaped as cabbage leaves for cabbage delicacies and plates in the shape of asparagus.

THEY LEND A festive touch to Rose Marie's parties.

The actress-comedienne believes anything she can do to make her home a merry place diminishes the pangs of widowhood.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

The role of Dick Van Dyke's wife in his new CBS series next September will be filled by Hope Lange, who has appeared in numerous movies and won two Emmys as the star of video's "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir" series. Van Dyke plays the host of a television variety show in Phoenix, Ariz. Other players are Marty Brill as Van Dyke's manager and Fannie Flagg as his sister.

You can stop worrying about the "Lassie" series that CBS has been telecasting for 17 years. The Jack Wrather firm, which "owns" the collie, has a new three-year agreement with the show's long-time sponsor that extends to September, 1974.

NBC has scheduled a repeat of "It Couldn't Be Done" for Feb. 9. The special celebrates unusual accomplishments by Americans and was telecast originally last April. The network has slated a Feb. 20 repeat for "The Pogo Special Birthday Special." This is the animated musical based on Walt Kelly's newspaper comic strip.

Unions Fined For Marin's Boycott

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A U.S. District Court judge fined three labor union locals $25,000 each yesterday for criminal contempt in connection with secondary boycotts against Independent-Journal advertisers.

Judge William T. Sweigert gave the locals — San Francisco Typographical Union 21 and Teamster locals 70 of Oakland and 85 of San Francisco — 15 days to pay the first $10,000 of the fines. He said the other $15,000 would be levied if there were further violations during a year's probationary period.

Three union officers were also placed on a year's probation for criminal contempt and were warned that if there are violations during the next 12 months, they could face up to six months in prison.

The judge also reserved the right to lengthen the probation period for both the unions and their officials if he wishes.

Union attorneys said they would appeal the fines.

The officials are Don Abrams, organizer for the typographical union local; James R. Muniz, president of Teamster Local 70, and Timothy J. Richardson, business manager and recording secretary of Teamster Local 85.

The unions and their officers were found guilty in December of criminal contempt after almost eight weeks of trial.

They were tried after complaints were lodged by the National Labor Relations Board that the unions had violated three of the court's injunctions prohibiting secondary boycott activities.

The complaints grew out of picketing at Marin stores in October and the threatening of delivery truck drivers going to the stores.

The NLRB cited 28 instances in which truck drivers in Marin were harrassed or threatened or where I-J advertisers were illegally picketed.

During the hit-run intimidation of drivers, tires on trucks and other vehicles were slashed, including tires on the cars of two U.S. marshals serving notices on Teamsters ordering them to cease their activities.

Getting Upper Hand Against The Slicks

By JEFF GREER

The campaign to clean the beaches reached a new crescendo today.

Many marin County and San Francisco residents added their weekend leisure time to the efforts of volunteers who had worked all week long to combat the oil pollution along the shoreline.

Coordinating centers were directing hundreds of volunteers to main cleanup areas and to some spots previously neglected, such as Muir Beach.

Although some reports circulated that the cleanup was "past the halfway mark," coordinators warned against any letup in the campaign against the oil.

"Once we have a storm, it's all over," said Jerry Kresy, chairman of the Marin Ecology Center in Mill Valley. He feared rough water would drive ashore any slicks still at sea.

Kresy and other coordinators urged volunteers to avoid driving to West Marin this weekend. Traffic has clogged roads and hampered delivery of supplies and equipment to Bolinas, Stinson Beach and other coastal areas, Kresy noted.

He suggested that anyone wanting to help should first telephone a coordinating center to learn what is needed. In addition to the Marin Ecology Center, information is available from the Save The Birds Switchboard operated by the Intercity Telephone Answering Service in San Rafael (456-4244 or 456-4253); the National Audubon Society on Richardson Bay or the Marin Humane Society in Novato.

Virgil Hollis, county superintendent of schools, recommended that volunteers call Ranger Pinsley Stetson at the Bear Valley ranger station at Point Reyes National Seashore, another coordinating point.

At Bolinas itself, the Marine Biology Station of the College of Marin is a central information point.

One major gathering point for volunteers today was the parking lot of the old Purity market at East Blithedale Avenue and Camino Alto in Mill Valley. A constant stream of vehicles was shuttling volunteers from there to coastal points where cleanup help was needed, Kresy said.

The overall picture of what has happened since two Standard Oil Co. tankers collided in dense fog early Monday — one spilling an estimated 800,000 gallons of heavy oil in the Golden Gate — still was far from clear today.

Emmett Griffin, public relations spokesman for Standard Oil, said he could

PRINCIPAL TRASHMAN

Principal Alan W. Ellsberg of San Rafael High School, who usually reads papers placed on his desk, glances through a pile of garbage. The trash collected from yards near the school was dumped on Ellsberg's desk at 2:15 p.m. yesterday by an unidentified Mission Avenue property owner to dramatize student littering of his property. After reading through the garbage, Ellsberg called police to complain.

'Drastic Change' For Bay

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — "Drastic changes" to limit growth in the Bay Area must be made if its citizens ever are to enjoy clean air, a top smog official declared yesterday.

D. J. Callaghan, chief administrative officer of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, said these limits will have to be applied to industry, residential development and automobiles.

The nine-county area now has some three million vehicles, but if past growth in the number of vehicles continues, the total will reach almost nine million by the year 2000, Callaghan said.

His estimate brought an audible gasp from district directors.

Representatives of industry in the audience, however, shook their heads at his suggestion that the growth of industry would have to be limited.

Callaghan stressed that the region's atmosphere had definite limits on its capacity to absorb contaminants. "Once this quantity is reached for each contaminant, no further sources can be permitted in the area if we are to maintain air quality standards."

San Francisco Supervisor Dianne Feinstein, praising Callaghan for "getting down to the nitty-gritty decisions that have to be made," won agreement from other directors to consider making it official district policy to discourage growth throughout the region. Resolutions declaring the policy will be considered at a special board meeting sometime next month.

Callaghan explained that the district's regulations temporarily will reduce some contaminants, but that the levels will rebound as growth swamps the effectiveness of the regulations.

Specifically, he recommended consideration of the following actions as a "long-term solution:"

1. Limit the number and

Nixon Urges Radical Move

State, Local Branches Could Share The Power

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon has promised a "new American Revolution" based on increased power for state and local governments coupled with a $16 billion revenue sharing program — including $6 billion in new money — to help them exercise it.

In his second State of the Union speech Friday night, Nixon also proposed deficit spending to reduce unemployment, pleaded for welfare reform, outlined a massive reorganization of the federal bureaucracy and urged bold new health programs including a $100 million search for a cure for cancer.

Reaction of lawmakers assembled for the joint session of Congress generally followed partisan lines with Republicans enthusiastic and Democrats cool. Most of Nixon's programs face tough going in the Democratic-controlled Congress.

Nixon told Congress and a national radio and television audience that "the truly revered leaders in world history are those who gave power to the people, not those who took it away."

The big surprise in the 31-minute speech was the scope of Nixon's plan to share federal revenues with the financially hard-pressed states and cities. The program called for a total of $16 billion, including $10 billion that was already earmarked for established narrow-purpose programs.

Highlights of the speech, devoted almost entirely to domestic issues, included:

—A promise to submit to Congress soon a program to make America "the healthiest nation in the world." He said he would call for legislation to "insure that no American family will be prevented from obtaining basic medical care by inability to pay." The only specific program he mentioned was $100 million to fight cancer.

—A call for a new effort to save and restore the environment including expansion of the nation's parks, particularly in areas close by to crowded cities.

—A proposal to reorganize

Democrats Cool To 'State' Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon held out his hand to the Democratic-controlled Congress Friday night asking for a partnership to enact his bold new programs. Democrats appeared unwilling to shake it.

(See related story, page 22.)

The night was drizzling and cold when Nixon stepped into the House chamber for his second State of the Union message. It wasn't much warmer inside, judging from the applause.

Nixon was interrupted 11 times, mostly by enthusiastic Republicans during the 31-minute address. Democrats were polite but generally sat on their hands.

The President's proposals for a major overhaul of the federal bureaucracy, a $16 billion plan to share federal wealth with the states and a vast reform of the welfare system drew favorable comment at least as far as the goals were concerned.

But the practical probability of any of the measures surviving the 92nd Congress, at least without major surgery, was considered dim.

As for a consolidation of the federal bureaucracy, even Republicans recalled the fierce opposition stirred up among business and labor groups to other, less ambitious plans to tamper with federal agencies with which they deal. Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Pa., said the plan had no better than an even chance. And Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., doubted it would be accomplished in one session.

The welfare reform idea already was in serious trouble with both liberals and conservatives.

But Democrats, recognizing they were being put on the spot before the next presidential election, refused to dismiss the ideas out of hand.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., called the proposals "excellent and hopeful" and said "we will meet the President more than halfway," but he said, "I want to see the specifics."

The man who holds the key to many of Nixon's programs — Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee —was not present for the speech and could not be found afterwards. Mills already has announced strong opposition to any revenue sharing plan.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said he did not see how Nixon could propose a $16 billion revenue sharing program while the war in Southeast Asia drained federal resources.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., said he was surprised Nixon did not submit a single new proposal to deal with crime.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said "There wasn't a line in the speech for the man who is out of work."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said he was enthusiastic about the plan to restructure the bureaucracy, but opposed revenue sharing. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said he liked revenue sharing bat thought the rest of the speech was "propaganda."

Republicans, in the minority in both houses, immediately began pressing the Democratic majority to act.

"It is now up to the Democratically controlled Congress to see whether they can live up to the modernism, boldness and daring of the President of the United States," Scott said.

Sen. Wallace Bennett, D-Utah, the ranking Republican on the Senate Finance Committee which will handle most of the new measures, said Nixon was trying "to remake our whole federal structure to fit the needs of the 70s and I applaud him for it. Now it's up to Congress."

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

The role of Dick Van Dyke's wife in his new CBS series next September will be filled by Hope Lange, who has appeared in numerous movies and won two Emmys as the star of video's "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir" series. Van Dyke plays the host of a television variety show in Phoenix, Ariz. Other players are Marty Brill as Van Dyke's manager and Fannie Flagg as his sister.

You can stop worrying about the "Lassie" series that CBS has been telecasting for 17 years. The Jack Wrather firm, which "owns" the collie, has a new three-year agreement with the show's long-time sponsor that extends to September, 1974.

NBC has scheduled a repeat of "It Couldn't Be Done" for Feb. 9. The special celebrates unusual accomplishments by Americans and was telecast originally last April. The network has slated a Feb. 20 repeat for "The Pogo Special Birthday Special." This is the animated musical based on Walt Kelly's newspaper comic strip.

AIRPORT DESTROYED — Buildings around the perimeter of Phnom Penh's airport lie in ruins today after Communist commandos attacked the airport and an adjacent army base in a pre-dawn raid yesterday, destroying 95 per cent of Cambodia's air force and causing heavy casualties. Today the commandos struck in downtown Pho Phnom Penh.

Red Commandos Strike Downtown Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist commandos who laid waste to Phnom Penh Airport struck in the capital itself today and blew up a government immigration office. Police said 20 persons were wounded, seven seriously.

Despite the blast in downtown Phnom Penh, there was no sign of a general offensive on the city following a pre-dawn raid on the airport Friday which knocked out 95 per cent of Cambodia's air force and caused heavy casualties.

But military authorities announced new curfew regulations and block strategic points.

The city remained on full alert tonight. Fighting could be seen directly across the Mekong River from the old Royal Palace. Tracer bullets fired by helicopter gunships, presumably crewed by Americans, could be clearly seen as they zeroed in on Communist positions around the city.

The explosion this morning was the second in downtown Phnom Penh since the airport assault. A bomb ripped the residence of the South Vietnamese ambassador to Cambodia Friday night, slightly injuring the diplomat and seriously wounding one of his servants.

The blast today, at 10:30 a.m., caused heavy damage to the immigration office where all aliens in Phnom Penh, including Vietnamese and Chinese residents, must register once a year.

Cambodian intelligence sources predicted more terror explosions. Last week, sources said that such attacks as the one on the airport would be followed up with terror actions in the city "to create as much confusion as possible." The guard around all public buildings was strengthened Friday after the airport raid.

The situation eased somewhat today. The airport reopened for limited military traffic and two U.S. Cargo planes arrived from Saigon with a load of ammunition and weapons to replace losses in the attack Friday.

South Vietnamese spokesmen in Saigon said their troops had completed clearing Highway 4 from the capitol to the seaport of Kompong Som by linking up with the Cambodian army at Pich Nil Pass Friday afternoon. They said the South Vietnamese marine, ranger and armored units that participated in the operation soon would begin withdrawing from Cambodia.

Phnom Penh was calm, but Prime Minister Lon Nol went on natonal radio today to call on Cambodians to fight back if Communists strike the city again. Lt. Col. Am Rong, spokesman for the High Command, said they had intelligence reports that Friday's attack was coming but they could not prepare for it —they did not even have enough barbed wire to surround the airport.

Elsewhere in Cambodia, South Vietnamese rangers operating along Highway 1 near the important provincial capital of Svay Rieng ran into heavy action with Communist troops and reported killing 26 while losing only two men.

In South Vietnam, U.S. B52s struck again at the extreme northwestern corner of the country in an effort to knock out Communist supply lines and dumps. It was the 12th strike in that area this month.

The U.S. Army lost two helicopters to Communist ground fire in South Vietnam, bringing to 1,854 the number of choppers shot down there since 1961. Eight Americans were killed in the two helicopter crashes.

San Francisco Against Wider Span Approach

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The city's Planning Commission has endorsed the city planning director's objections to a state proposal for widening the southern approaches to the Golden Gate Bridge.

The State Highway Commission proposes widening the present six-lane stretch a mile south of the bridge toll plaza to eight lanes at a cost of $10 million.

Planning director Allan B. Jacobs objected Thursday to additional widening at certain places and a change in an off ramp. In each case, he said, there would be a "major impact on the open space environment of the Presidio."

Commissioners have authorized him to continue negotiations with the state.

The city and the Golden Gate Bridge District have balked at a state proposal that each pay a quarter of the widening costs.

Four Freed Of Charges On My Lai

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (UPI)—The Army, in what a spokesman said was in the best interest of justice, has dropped charges against all enlisted men in the alleged My Lai massacre.

The action leaves charges or investigations pending against six officers. Three are accused of participating in the infantry sweep in which up to 310 Vietnamese men, women and children were reportedly gunned down. Three others are accused of trying to conceal what happened.

Originally, 12 officers and men were charged in connection with the infantry sweep on March 16, 1968 and 14 officers were charged with covering up what has been termed as one of the worse blots against the American military.

Lt. Gen. Albert O. Connor, 3rd Army commanding general, announced the dismissals Friday against the remaining four enlisted men still facing charges. They are Sgt. Esequiel Torres of Brownsville, Tex.; Spec. 4 Robert W. T'souvas of San Jose, Calif.; Pvt. Max D. Hutson of Attica, Ind., and Pvt. Gerald A. Smith of Chicago.

Egypt Sees Peace Talks Failing

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said today Egypt has told the United States the Middle East peace talks are not making satisfactory progress and called for new guidelines to help U.N. mediator Gunnar V. Jarring's search for accord.

Al Ahram said the Egyptian position was outlined in an exchange of messages between Secretary of State William L. Rogers and Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad.

Rogers suggested an extension of the Middle East cease-fire beyond its Feb. 5 cutoff date to help Jarring pursue his mission and said the United Stated preferred "quiet diplomacy" and did not favor a U.N. Security Council debate on Jarring's progress, Al Ahram said.

The newspaper said Egypt's reply made the following points:

—Cairo failed to see any progress in the talks, particularly in view of the latest Israeli memorandum allegedly repeating Israel's refusal to withdraw from Arab territory.

—The United States should "shoulder its responsibilities" as author of the Rogers initiative and a permanent member of the Security Council and join with other major powers to give Jarring guidelines.

—Egypt affirmed its readiness to implement all provisions of the Nov. 22, 1967, Security Council resolution on the Middle East.

Libya, Syria and the Sudan Friday night issued a communique accusing Israel of using the cease-fire to maintain its occupation of Arab lands.

Rogers Plans Trip To Latin America

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The State Department says Secretary of State William P. Rogers may make an official trip to Latin America this year.

A spokesman said no definite plans had been made, but sources in the department said it was probable he would make the trip prior to the Interamerican Foreign Ministers Conference, scheduled for April 14 in San Jose, Costa Rica.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Launch Try Again

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The U.S. Space Agency will try again tonight to launch the biggest and most powerful communications satellite ever built.

The launching was postponed Friday night because strong winds 30,000 to 40,000 feet high would have subjected the $16 million Atlas-Centaur rocket to dangerous stresses on its climb toward space.

Project officials rescheduled the shot for 7:01 p.m. EST tonight. It will be followed in four days by the launch of a smaller military communications satellite and by the Jan. 31 blastoff of Apollo 14's three moon-bound astronauts.

The $13.5 million satellite that was grounded by weather is the first of eight 1 1-2-ton Intelsat 4's being built for the privately owned Comsat Corp., and its 76 international partners. It will be able to relay up to 9,000 transatlantic telephone calls compared to the 1,200 circuit capacity of the best now in service.

Ban On Priests

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—A federal judge ruled Friday that the Revs. Daniel and Philip Berrigan, Roman Catholic priests active in the antiwar movement, do not have the right to circulate sermons and writings outside of prison.

U.S. District Court Judge T. Emmet Clarie wrote in a 12-page brief first amendment rights of free speech do not extend to prison inmates.

The brothers, both serving terms at the Danbury Federal Prison for destroying draft records in Catonville, Md., in 1969, filed suit in December contending they had a "right to be heard." They said they were being denied their constitutional rights.

Truman Better

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Former President Harry S Truman, 86, in "good spirits and feeling better," faced further tests today as doctors tried to diagnose the cause of stomach pains which forced his quick trip to the hospital Thursday.

Officials at Research Hospital said Truman's condition "remains good."

Doctors indicated late Friday the former President would probably remain hospitalized through the middle of next week.

Grass Killed Sheep

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—A deadly weed that is spreading rapidly across grasslands of the Western United States has been blamed for the death of 1,400 sheep in Utah's isolated Antelope Valley.

Scientists told Utah Gov. Calvin F ampton Friday that separate laboratory studies of samples of tissue from the dead animals revealed the deadly factor to the halogeton, a toxic member of the goosefoot family of plants.

Atomic radiation from a December underground blast that sent a cloud of fallout dust across the nation from Nevada to Canada was ruled out as a cause of death, as was the possibility of deadly gas leaking from the Dugway Proving Ground, 150 miles to the northeast.

Ecuador Defiant

QUITO, Ecuador (UPI) — Minister of National Defense Jorge Acosta said Friday that if the United States cuts off military aid to Ecuador because of the "tuna war" the country can turn to othe nations for any aid it may need.

"We are ready to give back the equipment lent us, without trouble," Acosta told newsmen. "All we want is to defend our legitimate rights."

If aid is withdrawn, he said, the country can turn to "other nations" for help. He did not specify.

The United States has said it will cut off military aid and threatened to stop economic assistance if the fight over fishing rights continues.

Tate Trial Move

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—In its attempt to obtain the death penalty for Charles Manson and three young women defendants, the state has begun issuing subpoenas for 40 witnesses it will call in the penalty phase of the Tate murder trial.

The prosecution issued the first subpoena Friday as the jury in the seven-month trial completed a full week of deliberations in the case with still no sign when it will bring in verdicts. Deliberations were to continue today.

Tear Gas Rout

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI)—Law officers routed a large crowd of young persons from the University of Arizona campus with tear gas Friday in the second night of disturbances police have attributed in part to "street freaks."

At least 40 persons were arrested.

Two city policemen were injured when struck by thrown rocks. One was hospitalized. Dozens of minor injuries were reported.

Authorities said the disturbance erupted after a palm tree on the campus was set afire and a few moments later three fire bombs were thrown at a drug store across the street from the main entrance of the school.

Bank Manager Gabs While Robbers Flee

COVENTRY, England (UPI) —The manager of the Trustee Savings Bank was involved in a discussion with a customer Thursday when three bandits armed with shotguns burst in, herded four women tellers from behind the counter, grabbed $7,200 and fled.

The tellers turned toward the manager, who was still intent in the discussion. He was unaware the bank had been robbed.

Younger Appointment

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger was appointed chairman of the California Council on Criminal Justice Friday by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Gag Rule Hit By Younger

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A domino-effect could result in the courts if the gag rule to block pre-trial public statements is enforced, says Attorney General Evelle Younger.

Speaking in opposition to the rule before the San Francisco Press Club Friday night, Younger said, "Recent history reveals that, when one court imposes a gag rule on a particular case, other courts follow suit."

He added that if a prosecutor "makes public statements calculated to prejudice a defendant's right to a fair trial, there are remedies." These, he said, include the appellate process for the defendants and the ballot box for the public.

"But a prior restraint based on no firmer a foundation than the trial court's intuitive notion that prejudicial publicity will be forthcoming is not the proper solution," Younger said.

"Any public official who is sensitive to his duty to the public must keep them informed," he added.

Younger also outlined proposals he planned to place before the legislature in an effort to increase the effectiveness of the state's criminal laws.

The most notable included a system in which prospective jurors in criminal cases be examined by a judge or commissioner; prohibiting defendants in felony cases from defending themselves and give the State Bar Association responsibility for certifying attorneys competent to represent clients in capital cases.

"Law enforcement involves a successful sequence of investigation, adjudication and punishment" and "a breakdown at any stage destroys the effectiveness of this system," he said.

"The plain truth is that the system is no longer effective and steps must be taken to make corrections so that it will be just as safe for citizens to walk the streets at night as it is for astronauts to walk on the moon."

State Demos Accused Of 'Piracy'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California Democratic leaders opened their biennial convention today bent on adopting election reforms and choosing new officers to guide the party during the 1972 presidential campaign.

Even as the state Democratic Central Committee prepared for a long weekend meeting, Putnam Livermore, a top Republican state officer, attacked proposed Democratic election revisions as "political piracy."

Democrats denied the charge and, in turn, criticized Livermore, GOP state vice chairman, for spreading "misinformation" about recommendations of their "California Commission on Democratic Party Reform."

About 940 delegates are eligible to cast votes Sunday on the election of new officers who will head the California party during the 1972 presidential election year.

Former Rep. George Brown of Monterey Park, an outspoken dove on the Indochina war and unsuccessful contender for the U.S. Senate, was regarded as the leading candidate to succeed Roger Boas of San Francisco as party chairman.

Also seeking the post were Leon Cooper, the party's current Southern California chairman, and Charles Manatt, Newport Beach attorney, and director of Sen. John V. Tunney's southern California campaign.

The commission's 53-page report proposed dozens of revisions in the election process both at the state and national level. Most required legislative action.

One controversial recommendation proposed for California an Oregon-style presidential primary open to all comers while another would abolish residency requirements for voting. A third would give major candidates free broadcast time.

Sen. George Moscone of San Francisco, commission cochairman, conceded that some of the recommendations might not win the convention's endorsement but said they would be introduced in the legislature anyway.

He said such legislation "has a better chance for passage if it has the stamp of approval of the Democratic State Central Committee" but added if the committee turned some proposals down "there still may be legislation proposed because we think it's the right way to go."

Regents Knock Down Proposal For University Money Probe

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A motion for a sweeping investigation of how the University of California handles its financial affairs has been decisively defeated by the university's Board of Regents.

The motion was presented Friday by Regent Norton Simon, a long-time and persistent critic of university financing.

He claims the university spends money unwisely, mishandles its huge investments and is affected by personal investments of some regents.

"I'm completely unclear about what the motion is," said University President Charles J. Hitch. The motion was rejected 13-2 with four abstentions.

Simon's motion called for appointment by the regents of "a special committee to study the matters under study by the auditor-general's report and also the regents' investment activities."

Simon said the regents' committee was needed because the state auditor-general was conducting an investigation and had concluded in a preliminary report there might be a conflict of interest on the part of some of the regents.

Simon's motion called for an investigation into the personal investments of some regents, although Simon did not name them in the motion.

He has been extremely critical in the past of Regents William French Smith and Edward W. Carter because of their involvement in development of land around the Irvine campus. He accused them of conflict of interest.

In fact, five regents at one time or another abstained from some of Friday's actions because of conflicts of interest. Carter abstained twice, once as a director of Southern California Edison and once as a director of AT&T.

Regent William K. Coblentz said Simon should put the matter over until his motion was in clear form. Simon refused and declared: "I have put the matter of investments over entirely too long."

In other action, the regents gave final approval to guidelines making campus chancellors personally responsible for enforcing some restrictions on the content of student newspapers.

PUC Approves West Marin Deal

The California Public Utilities Commission has approved transfer of two West Marin water systems to the North Marin County Water District, according to Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

However, the water district will not assume operation of the Point Reyes Station and Inverness Park water systems until a formal order is drawn up, Churchill said. He said the order should be ready within a month.

GOP Group In Comeback From Debts

ANAHEIM (UPI)—The California Republican Assembly, largest GOP volunteer group in the state, has paid most of its unpaid debts which were left after the disappearance of $23,600 from its treasury last year, it was reported Friday.

CRA official David Gater of Anaheim claimed the CRA has paid about $8,000 of its $12,5000 back bills and said the group was "in better shape now than in a long time."

The quarterly board meeting of the CRA begins today. The group was entirely without funds after the loss was discovered and most of the money has been raised by the efforts of the 11,000 members.

Paul Casattas, 44, Sunnyvale, former treasurer of the conservative group, pleaded innocent in Sunnyvale Municipal Court Jan. 12 to charges of taking more than $10,000 in CRA funds. His preliminary hearing is set for next Tuesday.

Nine Candidates File For School Board

Nine candidacy filings for the April 20 Marin School board elections were reported yesterday by the Marin County Schools Office.

The filings include those of five incumbents — three for the Marin County Board of Education. About two-thirds of the 47 incumbents in the 21 school districts have indicated they will seek reelection.

Candidates who have already filed are:

Dixie School District — Duncan Davidson of 25 Mount Tenaya Drive, San Rafael, an attorney. Two seats up for election.

Larkspur School District — Shirley A. Walker of 476 Montecito Drive, Corte Madera, a housewife, and Curtis P. Kamai of 61 Pixley Avenue, Corte Madera, an engineer and incumbent. Two seats up for election.

Lincoln School District — David Leveroni III of 3100 Novato Boulevard, Novato, a dairy rancher and incumbent. One seat up for election.

Novato Unified School District — Liz Mertel of 20 Baywood Circle and Jan Murray of 93 Estrella Way, Novato, both homemakers.

Marin County Board of Education — James A. Carroll of 33 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Ross, a junior high school teacher; Lee C. Richardson Jr., of Inverness, garage operator, and James A. Swenson of 424 Alameda De La Loma, Novato, paint salesman. All are incumbents. Four seats up for election.

Nixon Plan To Share Washington's Power

the federal bureaucracy, reducing the 12 Cabinet-level departments to eight and consolidating overlapping programs. The Departments of State, Treasury, Justice and Defense would be untouched, but the present Departments of Agriculture, Labor, Commerce, Transportation, Housing and Urban Development, and Health, Education and Welfare would be combined into four new departments —Human Resources, Community Development, Natural Resources and Economic Development.

—A renewed plea for passage of administration bills left over from the last Congress, especially the welfare reform plan intended to build a $1,600-a-year floor under the income of every family of four.

—A deficit federal budget intended to stimulate the economy and reverse a rising trend of unemployment. The President said the budget he will submit to Congress next Friday would be balanced if the economy were operating at full employment, which it now is not. He listed no figures but other sources indicated the budget would be about $230 billion with approximately $10 billion of that in red ink.

The lawmakers appeared generally cool to the President's plea to share power with the states.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., is an outspoken opponent of Nixon's revenue sharing plan. A much more limited proposal, involving first year outlays of only $500 million, died without even a hearing in Mills' committee last year.

In many ways, the speech was a sharp break with Nixon's past. It contained only one passing mention of foreign affairs —the desire to withdraw from Vietnam honorably —and it glorified deficit spending in a way not usually heard from Republicans.

But in vowing to shift power from Washington to the states, cities and towns, Nixon was was following Republcan orthodoxy.

He called for "a New American Revolution —a peaceful revolution in which power was turned back to the people —in which government at all levels was refreshed and renewed, and made truly responsive."

Nixon, who has never served a day in state or local government during his 24 years in politics, pinned his hopes on the states and cities to "close the gap between promise and performance in American government."

His revenue-sharing plan was in two parts. First, the President would provide $5 billion a year in no-strings-attached grants which the states and cities could spend as they see fit. About 52 per cent of the money would go to states and the rest to cities, counties and towns.

He also proposed $11 billion in grants tied to specific purposes but not to narrowly-defined programs. The categories were education, urban development, rural development, transportation, job training and law enforcement.

The $11 billion includes $1 billion in new money and $10 billion which will be included in the new federal budget for specific programs in case Congress balks at the revenue-sharing principle.

The money for revenue sharing will have to be borrowed. The president conceded that federal revenues — held down by the business slump —will not even cover the cost of existing programs.

use of automobiles, trucks and aircraft in the district.

2. Further restrict emissions from all existing industrial and commercial sources.

3. Develop an areawide, nonpolluting urban transport system.

4. Limit population growth by sharply restricting subdivision and residential expansion.

5. Limit commercial and industrial growth to facilities that emit no contaminants.

6. Restrict emissions from agricultural, domestic and recreational sources.

Callaghan's recommendations closely paralleled those in November by the state Air Resources Board's technical advisory committee. The committee called for similar limits, saying "drastic changes which must occur will have direct and jarring effects."

Crash Survivor Reported Better

Capt. George Burk, 29, lone survivor of the crash of an Air Force plane in the Sonoma Hills near Sears Point, May 4, 1970, has recovered from burns that covered more than 60 per cent of his body in the crash.

Thirteen persons were killed when the plane crashed shortly after takeoff from Hamilton Air Force Base, but Burk, communications officer with the Western Communications Regional Headquarters, then stationed at the base, survived.

The captain is in Texas on convalescent leave from Brooke Army Medical Center at Fort Houston, Tex., according to the public information office at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Carrara Estates Before Planners

The Novato Planning Commission will consider plans for Carrara Estates Subdivision at Center Road and Sun Lane at 8 p.m. Monday at Novato Community House.

The developers are asking to construct 26 homes on 7.5 acres now zoned for limited agriculture.

The commission also will have a hearing on a revised tentative map of the Oaks, unit 2, a 79-lot subdivision in the Marin Highlands area, which has been opposed by the Marin Highlands Homeowners Association.

Sewer Additions Due Council Study

Additions to the sewage treatment plant will be considered by the Petaluma City Council in a study session Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Also on the agenda is a request from firefighters for a reduction in their work week and continued discussion of major capital outlay requests for 1971-72.

Bagshaw Heads Freeway Group

T. Fred Bagshaw of Mill Valley has been named executive director of the California Freeway Support Committee, which recently moved its office from Los Angeles to Sacramento.

Bagshaw, of 317 Hillsdale Avenue, replaces Max Gillis as executive director. Bagshaw resigned as secretary to the California Highway Commission last May to join the committee.

No newcomer to highway problems, Bagshaw served as director of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District, director of the State Department of Public Works, Supervisor for Marin county and Mayor of Mill Valley.

Tomales Junior Defends Title

James Spaletta, a junior at Tomales High School, will defend his regional title in a Future Farmers of America speaking contest in Santa Rosa Feb. 25 to 26.

Spaletta, winner of regional competition last year, won the sectional championship in Santa Rosa Monday competing against speakers from Santa Rosa, Petaluma, Napa and Healdsburg. His topic was "insecticides in Our Environment."

Speakers in the regional competition will be from coastal counties from Half Moon Bay to Oregon.

Guilty Verdict In Dope Case

Peter Bruce Winston, 24, of the Diaz Ranch near Mill Valley, was found guilty yesterday by a Marin Superior Court Jury of possessing marijuana and cocaine and a misdemeanor count of possessing a device for smoking narcotics.

Judge Henry J. Broderick set sentencing for March 5.

Winston was arrested in a raid on the ranch in March 1969.

not verify how much of the oil has been scooped up and returned to the refinery in Richmond. He said the 336,000-gallong figure given yesterday to the Independent-Journal "was somebody's rough estimate. Nobody knows now how much has been picked up."

He also denied reports that a factor in the collision was that the tanker Oregon Standard had been delayed in sailing Sunday night to repair a small oil leak, thus placing the ship in the Golden Gate at the same time as the Arizona Standard tanker. The repairs — to a ruptured hose — were made earlier, while the ship was offloading its previous cargo, Griffin reported.

High-altitude photos yesterday showed large oil slicks spread along the Pacific Coast from Point Reyes to Half Moon Bay in the south. Observers at the Bolinas laboratory said beach pollution extended only as far north as Double Point, south of Point Reyes. But oil-soaked birds were coming in from Drake's Bay north of Double Point.

Standard Oil said a fleet of nine oil skimmer craft was gathering up remaining oil in San Francisco Bay and offshore of Stinson Beach and Bolinas.

Barges and small craft worked day and night along the Tiburon Peninsula and Sausalito waterfront, and at Point Richmond.

Three booms were in place at the inlet to Bolinas Lagoon, and were said to be keeping oil in the lagoon to a minimum.

Col. George White, Stinson Beach fire chief, said heavy equipment under contract to Standard was hauling away huge quantities of goo-polluted sand and straw both along Stinson Beach and at Bolinas. "The beach will be the cleanest it has been in 30 years," he said.

White rejected repeated rumors of bad relations between Standard Oil workers and the more than 1,000 volunteers along the beach. He said Standard has been "very cooperative" with the volunteers.

At the marine lab in Bolinas, volunteers agreed with White. Standard has been supplying food to a volunteer kitchen set up in the Bolinas Community Center, they reported, and has helped distribute meals to workers as far away as Muir Beach.

Jules Mayer, a Standard Oil cleanup official, in turn praised the volunteer effort as "overwhelming."

Meanwhile, Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, announced that Standard had assured her the company would replenish all wildlife killed by the oil spill.

The bird rescue operation today centered more on long-term care than on emergency cleanup. The Bolinas marine station said few birds came in during the night. All the birds cared for at the laboratory have been transferred to the San Francisco Zoo for long-term housing until their damaged feathers have replaced themselves.

The Humane Society Center today housed some 700 birds for long-term care. The Audubon headquarters said its birds and those from a temporary warehouse in Terra Linda and the Boyd Museum in San Rafael had been moved to San Francisco.

Experts were beginning today to try to assess overall damage to wildlife. James Steer, a Stinson Beach veterinarian, planned to tour the offshore areas by helicopter this afternoon to check for signs of injury to seals and other ocean mammals.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinicke toured beach cleanup and bird rescue operations in San Francisco yesterday. He praised volunteers for "your compassion" and said he favors federal regulation of tanker traffic in the Bay.

San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto also called for state and federal laws to prevent more oil spills.

Meanwhile, Standard Oil repeated its pledge to continue the cleanup effort as long as necessary. The firm said 700 contract workers and upwards of 1,500 volunteers were toiling day and night around the Bay and along the Pacific coastline.

Yesterday, the company said it had received 200 claims for property damage from the oil, mostly to small boats. No dollar estimate of the claims was available.

OBITUARIES

Constance A. Sabella Dies At 52

Constance A. Sabella, 52, of 230 Via Lerida, Greenbrae, died yesterday in a San Francisco hospital after a long illness.

She was a member of the Sabella family that operates restaurants in Marin County and San Francisco. Her husband, Frank J. Sabella Sr., operates restaurants at Fisherman's Wharf; her late brother-in-law, Angelo Sabella, founded the Sabella's Restaurant in Mill Valley.

Mrs. Sabella was a native of San Francisco and lived there until she and her husband moved to Marin County two years ago.

She also is survived by a daughter, Angela Peterson of Lucas Valley; two sons, Frank Jr. of Marinwood and Richard of the family home; her mother, Carmela Manoguerra; a sister, Mrs. Anthony Cordi, and brothers Anthony, Salvatore, Peter and Jack Manoguerra, all of San Francisco, and three granchildren.

Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Halsted and Co. Mortuary, San Francisco. Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday in Sts. Peter and Paul Church, San Francisco, followed by entombment in Holy Cross Mausoleum, Colma.

KRISTEN PERSEN

Funeral for Kristen A. Persen, a SanAnselmanwho pursued varied and colorful careers, will be Monday at 1 p.m. in the Norwegian Seamen's Church, San Francisco.

Persen, 73, died Thursday at his home after a long illness.

A native of Norway, he came to California in 1945 and had lived in Marin County 20 years, residing at 1515 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

He was an insurance agent for 30 years, a career he began in Shanghai, China. Persen lived in China from 1917 to 1941 and was a sea captain before going into the insurance business.

When Pearl Harbor was attacked, Persen was caught in Manila and forced to live for three years under Japanese occupation. In 1944 he joined Gen. Douglas MacArthur's staff as a war correspondent. He was a former member of the San Francisco Press Club.

Persen is survived by his wife, Dorothy, of San Anselmo.

Burial will be private. The family prefers contributions to the Norwegian Seamen's Church.

Sally Stanford Says Goodbye To Marsha Owen

Marsha Owen, who once asked, "Who the hell knows who Marsha Owen is?" is no more.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of Marin Superior Court yesterday granted Miss Owen's request to have her name changed legally to Sally Stanford, the name the former San Francisco night life figure had used for years.

Following the short legal procedure, Miss Stanford, now a Sausalito restaurateur, celebrated with breakfast in the Hall of Justice cafeteria with Marin Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos.

Bond Issue Seen For Flood Plan

The Bel Aire Flood Control Zone Advisory Board has agreed that a bond issue is the best way to finance a $560,000 flood control program, and told a special bond counsel to set bond machinery in motion.

County Flood Control Engineer Charles P. Murphy said the board instructed attorney Edwin Ness of Belvedere to investigate the bond market to see if such a bond issue is feasible.

Other means of financing the program, including a pay-as-you-go plan and an assessment district, were discussed, Murphy said, but the bond issue seemed to be the most practical.

Metal Sculpture At Fairfax Exhibit

Metal sculpture by Joe Apodaca of Davis will be on exhibit through Feb. 3 at the Fairfax Library, 47 Broadway.

Apodaca's works include birds and people in action.

SARAH TALSNESS

Sarah Talsness, 99, of Novato, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Talsness was born in Storen, Norway, moving to Minnesota in 1893. She lived most of her life in Cass Lake and International Falls, Minn. Three years ago, she moved to Novato to live with her daughter, Mrs. John E. Pederson of 20 Pierce Drive.

Also surviving are two sons, Olaf Talsness and Bernhard Talsness, both of Minnesota; 14 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Funeral will be tomorrow at 3 p.m. at Keaton's Chapel of Marin in Novato. Burial will follow in Cass Lake.

FREDERICK HASSFELD

Private funeral for Frederick K. Hassfeld, 63, of 1893 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, a pool service contractor, was held today.

Hassfeld, operator of Trident Pool Service for 10 years, died Thursday night at a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Chicago, Ill., he had been a resident of Marin and California for 39 years.

Surviving are a daughter, Kay Stevens of Newark, Alameda County, and five grandchildren.

Inurnment was at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

FLORENCE NELSEN

Private funeral was held yesterday in San Rafael for Florence B. Nelsen, a longtime resident of Marin who died Thursday in a local convalescent hospital after a long illness. She was 92.

Mrs. Nelsen, a native of London who lived in Marin for 30 years, was the widow of Henry N. Nelsen, a retired, self-employed plumber and carpenter, who died in 1968.

She was a one-time milliner.

Mrs. Nelsen lived at 110 Santa Cruz Avenue, San Anselmo, before entering the rest home.

Survivors are a daughter, Mrs. Melvin H. Dotson of San Rafael; four grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

Conviction On Use Of Flag

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Robin L. Crown, 26, a Marine veteran who served in Vietnam, was convicted Thursday of desecrating the American flag by using it as a tablecoth at a flea market.

A jury deliberated for less than an hour before returning the verdict in Municipal Court. Judge Robert N. Zarick set Tuesday for sentencing.

Crown was arrested Oct. 4, 1970, at his flea market stand. He had complained to police that he was being harassed by six or seven "old guys" about the flag. And, he said, when Officer Luther L. Linebarger showed up, he was taken into custody instead of getting protection from them.

Crown told the jury that his use of the flag was no worse than its use in advertising, on bumper stickers and decals, or as a bikini swim suit as used by Raquel Welch in the movie "Myra Breckenridge."

Jury Convicts On Pot Count

James Edward Bartee, 24, a former Rancho Olompali resident, was found guilty of possessing marijuana yesterday by a Marin Superior Court jury.

Bartee was charged with having pot when arrested at the former hippie colony Jan. 14, 1969.

Judge Thomas F. Keating set sentencing for Feb. 11.

The shiny or "wet look" in fashion is often interpreted with vinyl, vinyl-coated fabrics, urethane-coated fabrics and Cire finish on fabrics.

Mill Valleyan Hurt In Crash

A 45-year-old Mill Valley woman was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut knee Tuesday after her auto struck a parked car on Shoreline Highway about 5:30 p.m., the California Highway Patrol reported today.

Officers said Carol D. Cassill, of 829 Spring Drive, was northbound on Shoreline when she hit a car owned by John L. Boggs of 302 Robin Road, Mill Valley. The Boggs car was parked in front of the Fireside Motel, according to the highway patrol.

Mrs. Cassill, according to officers, said she blacked out shortly before the accident and did not know what happened.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Concentrate On Eighth Graders Now And The Older Boy Later

Dear Helen:

I was his princess and he was my prince when I was in first grade and he in third.

Now I'm in seventh grade, and he's a ninth-grader, and he hardly ever notices me. If he wasn't too old for me back then, why is he now?

But if he is, then there's a cute boy in the eighth grade, and he has a brother in the same grade and they're both in the band, which I'm in too. They look alike, except one wears braces. We all three play horns. They like me.

But my prince is on the football team.

So please, what do I do?
— LOVESICK

Dear Lovesick:

We-e-ell — two birds in the hand are better than an unnoticing football player in the bush, right? So keep the older "Prince Charming" in mind for high school (where seniors often think sophomores are mighty cute) and concentrate on the cute guys who like you. — H.

Dear Helen:

I've been going with this guy who is 15 years older than me and married. He also has a family. We've been dating for 16 months and he plans to get a divorce and marry me.

Everything was great until my folks found out. They insisted that we break up, so I've been sneaking to see him. I truly love this man and know marriage will work, even though it will be tough if he has to support four children. Could you give some suggestions on winning my parents over?
— NEEDING HELP, (18)

Dear N. H.:

You haven't even won me over yet! . . . .Because:

1. A married man may date a younger chick for 16 months, but marriage usually isn't what he has in mind.
2. He has 15 years and four kids against him. (In addition to a wife.)
3. You are too young for this kind of involvement.
4. Your parents are right.

— H.

Dear Helen:

I know a guy who is very high on anti-pollution, ecology, etc., and tootles around to every meeting in town, making big fusses about factory smog and water-poisoning.

He doesn't seem to notice his old car pours out a blanket of smoke, and the blue haze is even thicker because he uses the cheapest gasoline on the market, plus he won't do any work on his car. (Doesn't have time, what with all the campaigning.)

It's sure funny how people can walk out of a pollution meeting and throw paper cups and trash on the floor, as they rap about how terrible "those others" are.

Or homeowners can be gung-ho for clean-ups and no-smoke legislation — until it's fall leaf burning time.

When will we ever learn?
— OBSERVANT

Dear Ob:

When "the other guy" teaches us, just as we're involved right now in teaching him. It takes time to change those easy, lifelong habits, but we must for, if we don't, future generations may not survive. — H.

SEW SIMPLE

Cottons For Summer Travel

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I am planning a trip this summer and want to get started on my sewing immediately. Everywhere I go people say that I need knits and more knits for travel clothes. I had my first experience with a polyester knit dress last summer and found it to be extremelyhot to wear and wonder if the easy care is worth the uncomfortable feeling. Are there any other fabrics you would recommend for a trip to a very warm and humid country?

MRS. H.V.

DEAR MRS. H.V.,

It seems that with every asset there is always a liability. Yes, the nylons and polyesters are much warmer than cottons, however they are easy to care for.

Today, there are many cottons available that are just as satisfactory and have the same qualities as the synthetics. There are cotton knits that are washable. There are many cottons mixed with some polyester that are drip dry, and there are beautiful double woven cottons that are marvelous for travel coats and suits. You don't have to take everything that is washable, if you spray your cotton coats and suits with fabric finish spray. You will find they won't spot or soil as easily and will probably last beautifully for the entire trip. Even heavy cottons aren't hot to wear; sheer voiles, batistes, and imported cottons can take you anywhere from morning to night.

Even the linens are treated today for wrinkle resistancy, and they have become more and more popular. For many of us, there is nothing like linen for style, elegance and the feeling you get when you wear this beautiful fabric.

No matter where you travel, you will probably have soom cool days or evenings. I discovered a beautiful woven polyester that seems to have more breathing spaces and not the clinging qualities of knits. It has been made up in expensive ready-to-wear and is as light as a feather. I intend to make one of these for myself this summer because I love the qualities it has that the knits don't have. I would vary my wardrobe and take a little of everything; in this way you will always have the right garment for any weather.

MRS. GEORGE Paro, Grand Island, Neb., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her suggestion:

"I have just worked out a big problem for me with the invisible zippers. Hope it will help others when they have a cross-seam to match, such as in dresses with a waistline.

"After sewing the right side, as directed on the instructions, on the second step sew the seam from the bottom up. Start at the line you are trying to match and sew only a few inches with basting stitch and remove from the machine, zip shut to check. If it doesn't match you have only a few loose stitches to remove and try again. If it matches you have to sew again from the bottom to the top and then sew the rest of the seam downward, as directed to close the bottom from the waistline down. I love using these zippers but always had trouble when something had to match; now I've solved my problem."

DEAR EUNICE,

I have seen a new gadget on the market for sewing on velvet, It is called a "velvet foot". Since this is the most miserable material I have ever worked on I am wondering if I should stick my neck out and try it again.

MRS. R.E.L.

DEAR MRS. R.E.L.,

We have tested the "velvet foot" and have mixed emotions about it. The foot is a roller which does tend to glide more smoothly than the standard presser foot. It will sew over pins without leaving the crush marks that you get when you sew over pins with the standard presser foot. I think it is worthwhile to use any gadget that has been developed for a specific purpose but work with it on sample fabric before you begin on your garment.

We have also found the new roller type foot is helpful when sewing with vinyl; again because it tends to glide along with less pressure. Velvet will never be a fabric that is easy to work with. There are too many special techniques necessary, such as pressing. There is nothing more beautiful when done well, but you must be an experienced seamstress with lots of patience for success.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have been making my lingerie and love it. However, I am bored with making a garment out of the ordinary materials that are available in our town. Why don't they make the beautiful sheer prints available for the woman who wants to make her own lingerie so that she really has something special when she has put her time and effort into it.

MRS. S.S.

DEAR MRS. S.S.,

This lingerie craze hit the market much harder than anyone realized. Most manufacturers and fabric shops thought it would be just a whim and didn't want to get stuck with a lot of merchandise.

There are some lovely printed enkalures available. These are the fabrics that are used in lingerie found in your most expensive ready-to-wear shops. They can be made for less than half the cost of the ready-mades.

I agree with you, it would certainly be more fun to make and wear something that would be out of reach in our budgets and yet not out of reach when you make it. Keep on the lookout and I think you will find more and more of these lovely fabrics available.

Mrs. Ruocco Heads Petaluma Society

MRS. JOSEPH RUOCCO

Branch 23 of the Catholic Ladies Aid Society in Petaluma has chosen Mrs. Joseph Ruocco as its president.

A member for 14 years Tillie Ruocco has held various state and local offices. Prior to her and Mr. Ruocco's retirement in Sonoma County, she was president of Branch 66 in San Francisco.

"Helping those in need is our main objective," states the new president. Rummage sales twice yearly finance the charitable deeds accomplished by the membership, which is open to all Catholic women.

Special interest of Mrs. Ruocco is the Petaluma Grandmother's Club. She and her husband are the parents of Mrs. Donald Brown, Mrs. Vernon Piccinotti and Joanne Ruocco and the grandparents of three.

Reading and researching California state history plus sewing and gardening are Mrs. Ruocco's hobbies.

Karen Cunningham To Be The Bride Of Gary Karasik

Announcement of the engagement of their daughter Karen Jean Cunningham to Gary Karasik, has been made by her parents, Mill Valley city Manager William H. Cunningham and Mrs. Cunningham. The couple will be married on April 18.

Parents of the future bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Karasik of Monticello, N.Y.

Graduated cum laude with a major in English literature from Sacramento State College, Karen will complete work on a master's degree this spring at San Francisco State College. She has a sister, Meredith, who lives with her parents, and a brother, William Cunningham Jr. of San Diego.

Gary attended schools in New York and was graduated with a B.A. degree from San Francisco State College, where he is completing work under a fellowship on a master's degree in creative writing.

He has a sister, Susan Karasik, who is attending a college in Israel, and a brother, Jeffrey Karasik of New York City.

STANDARD OIL ISSUES PROCEDURE FOR CLEANING CLOTHING

The Standard Oil Co., has issued a procedure for cleaning denim jeans and other cotton clothes soiled with oil.

First scrape or wipe off the excess oil. Rinse two or three times in paint thinner. (Do not use gasoline or carbon tetrachloride.) Soak articles in a mild liquid dishwashing detergent or soap. Then put the clothes in a washing machine and use twice the normal amount of detergent or soap.

A Standard Oil spokesman said the company's research staff found the process to be successful with cottons only. Synthetics will retain a stain.

Ad Man Says Youth Have Fear 'Of Dying Unfulfilled'

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—A decade ago, they called youth the "beat generation." But that was before the deep involvement of the United States in Vietnam.

Today, youth largely as a result of that involvement is creating its own labels for its lifestyle. The young have become the "takeover generation."

The change is logical, says an advertising agency executive who is author of a new book on understanding young people's attitudes and interpreting them as consumers.

Mel Helitzer, head of the agency which bears his name, said that of course it is oversimplifying a situation to say that what some people call the "tyranny of youth" is actually youth's "fear of dying unfulfilled."

Said Helitzer, " . . . in this marshmallowiworld of affluence and Spockian permissiveness, just when today's young people got old enough to partake of a feast of freedom they were enveloped by the fear of military service and its painful consequences."

HE CONTINUED, "Since fear is rarely admitted except by heroes, the youth bury their dreads by identifying with every kind of underprivileged minority (which is not bad) and by shooting from the lip the most caustic criticism of most adult principles and established organizations this is not necessarily good). Only 10 years ago, youth were calling themselves the 'beat generation.' We were not (deeply) involved in Vietnam then.

But we are today. This fear of tomorrow underlines their 'we want it now' chants. They would like the term the 'takeover generation.'"

"And they are taking over," Helitzer continued. "In language, music, films, education- . . . new products ideas."

Helitzer, whose agency handles accounts geared only to young people, made these remarks in a speech at the Publishers Ad Club in New York this week. His talk coincided with publication of his

Boot Scene

Contour boot trees shape the boot scene. They come in lightweight red plastic and keep boots standing upright, so they're not toppling over and creating a mild state of chaos in the closet. The trees—called Dunks Contour Boot trees—are contoured to keep boots fresh, well-aired and wrinkle-free when not in use.

JEAN FAGNANI

Williams-Fagnani Rite Set

A July 10 wedding is planned by Jean Elizabeth Fagnani of Dorris and David Carl Williams of Novato. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. Blanche Tramansure of San Rafael and E. T. Fagnani of Santa Cruz.

Jean is the sister of Joanne and Janet Fagnani, and she is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Fagnani of San Rafael. Now a teacher at Butte Valley High School in Dorris, she was graduated from Novato High School and the University of California at Santa Barbara.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Williams of Novato and the brother of Mrs. Allen Schafer and Paul Williams. He was graduated from Novato High School and the University of California, spending his junior year in France. He also has the masters degree in public administration from George Washington University, D.C. He did work toward a doctorate at the University of Alabama and is an intern with the Postal Department in San Francisco.

AFTER YOU have decided which role to play at the next party you will have to decide what to wear. If you want to take center stage and make an impact the jersey trousers with an overdress, left, are suggested. The girl who wants to look pretty on the sidelines might choose the shirred evening dress with a clinging top and long flowing skirt in panne velvet, right.

(London Express Service photo)

Which Kind Of Party Girl Are You?

By JANE ROGERS
London Express Service

People who go to parties divide into two groups — those who take the center of the stage and those who stand around and watch. And each role needs a certain style of dressing.

The girl who is hoping to be noticed approaches her party dressing in quite a different way from the rest. She'll go all out to find something show-stopping, shocking or just plain different from everyone else, and she has the inward reassurance to carry the whole idea off. She doesn't mind people staring at her ot talking about her. That's the whole object of the exercise, and she picks her clothes accordingly.

SHE WAS the first girl to try see-through dresses, crochet knits and, surprise surprise, seamed black stockings again. Right now she's probably wearing knicker-bocker suits in black velvet or weird Indian prints, looking too good for words like a little choir-boy when everyone else is clinging to their cleavages. Her hair is almost certainly cut short on top and long and straggling at the neck and her make-up is played down except around her eyes, which will be highlighted on top and underneath with pink-eye shadow and her lips which will be outlined in a cupid's bow.

What do the watchers wear, this year? That's the problem. At one time it was all so easy — you just struggled into the most becoming dark dress that you had, pinned on your jewelry and were ready to go, but now even the girls on the sidelines must make the effort to dress up a little.

It's all a matter of style, really, deciding what type you are and sticking to it. It's amazing the way we all go mad when we have somewhere special to go to and make tremendous errors of judgment. Girls who look pretty in frilly feminine things try to go slinky and sensual; others who are strictly the tailored type go overboard for frills and end up looking rather like cart-horses dressed up for the fair.

If you are really at your happiest in shirts and skirts, stick to them — but pick your skirt in quilted Indian print or flared black velvet; make your shirt a pretty slightly see-through one, and weld the two together with a wide important belt with a big, big buckle — one belt that is currently a best-seller, though only for strictly offbeat evening clothes, is the one made from empty cartridge cases strung together, worn low over the hips cowboy style. It goes with crushed velvet pants and a satin shirt.

IF YOU just want something that will make you look pretty, think in terms of velvet, not the stiff heavy kind, but the light silky variety called pane which drapes and gathers well, makes the sort of evening dress that is kind to you and your figure and is very comfortable to wear. It comes in church window colors like ruby red, deep stained-glass window blue and turquoise, and it's surprisingly inexpensive.

Another good all-purpose evening idea for the girl who wants something with a certain amount of impact is the culotte dress — an evening dress top and a divided skirt. The bodice of the dress is usually low-cut — in some cases diving down almost to waist level, and trimmed with sequins or lace, the divided skirt left plain. Again lightweight soft fabrics are best for this. Look out for silk jersey, crushed taffeta and velvet again.

If you like to lash out with fake eyelashes for evening wear, look out for a useful wardrobe of fake lashes all in one pack. It consists of four lash strips all styled and trimmed to the new spikey look but each in a different density ranging from fine for every day to thick for full evening wear. You simply snip the strip you choose into the right width for your lids and pop them on.

The pack includes a special new, improved adhesive too.

Effects Of The Youth 'Takeover'

book, "The Youth Market" (coedited by Carl Heyel, Media Books, Inc.)—a market which Helitzer estimates is $50 billion a year.

HELITZER, 46, and a former newspaper editor, said Vietnam affected young men directly, young women indirectly as they saw the men go off to one more battlefield.

So all of youth was involved in this fear thing, he said in an interview after his talk. Girls assumed the fears too, adding on such things as pollution and the population explosion.

The fashion world felt the impact of the young takeover, said Helitzer. "Fashion no longer starts in Europe and filters down through society. Now it starts among young people in the street—yes, even in the ghetto—and percolates upward . . . the young who urge each other to do your own thing."

The youth "takeover" reflects in the auto business also, for instance. "The reason teenagers prefer high-powered cars is that it makes it easier to drive their parents up the wall."

BUT HELITZER is optimistic "as Vietnam stumbles to a halt, as the new draft law permits ymungsters with high numbers to plan ahead more optimistically, we will be aware of a lessening in student protests, although they may never disappear. Violence certainly will lessen . . . students know that campus riots are no longer just fun and games . . . ' a guy can get killed out there.'"

One problem with youth today is that it is easily led, also unfortunately easily misled, said Helitzer.

Because of this fact, Helitzer warned, all who reach out to the youth market "must be above reproach. Our products must be worthwhile and safe, our advertising copy must not misrepresent, and our promotional efforts must contain as much good taste as it does effective persuasion."

Emergency Control Of Ships Urged

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — The executive committee of the Association of Bay Area Governments has asked for emergency controls on the movement of ships carrying dangerous cargo in San Francisco Bay

In a move which came on the heels of Monday's tanker collision, the committee asked that agencies involved in control of marine activities develop regulations similar to those employed by the Federal Aviation Administration at airports.

"While ABAG has no authority in the field of marine regulations, the committee felt emergency controls should be instituted at once," a statement said.

In other action Thursday night, the committee approved an application by the City of Tiburon for $70,600 in federal funds to help provide a two-mile bicycle and pedestrian path. The grant would cover half the city's cost of buying property from the Northwestern Pacific Railroad and converting it into a path.

A fiscal 1971-72 budget of $1,182,000 was approved, down $209,511 from the current fiscal year. Annual dues paid by participating agencies were hiked by 6 per cent, however Marin's dues will go from $5,363 to $5,659 and Sonoma's from $5,804 to $6,360.

The committee also decided to develop an enforceable plan for Pacific coastline conservation and development. A guide toward preservation of the shoreline was presented last year.

20,000 Lose Their Vote Rights

About 20,000 Marin residents lost their voting eligibility by failing to cast ballots in last November's election, but about 2,000 of them have since reregistered, Peter C. Meyer, county elections supervisor, reported today.

Meyer called attention to the fact that registration for voting in school board elections throughout the county and in the San Rafael city election will close Feb. 25. Those who did not vote in November need to reregister to be eligible for those elections, he noted.

Marin County registration rolls showed 102,003 eligible to vote in November. Purge of the rolls following that election reduced the number to 82,434 as of Jan. 1. About 2,000 have registered since the first of the year, Meyer said.

The Marin decline of approximately 19 per cent was less than the 23 per cent drop in voter registration for California as a whole.

Republicans had the smallest percentage loss in Marin, 16.9 per cent. Democrats went down by 19.3 per cent, American Independent Party by 46.3 per cent, and Peace and Freedom Party by 46.3 per cent.

As of Jan. 1, the GOP had 39,751 registered in Marin. There were 37,610 registered Democrats, 594 Peace and Freedom, 132 American Independent, 19 other parties, and 4,328 who refused to designate a party

Memories Don't Die, They Shave Away

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. Ben Blackburn, R-Ga., showed up for the opening of the 92nd Congress with a moustache and chin whiskers —but shaved them off a couple of hours later

"The folks thought it made me look like General Sherman," Blackburn said referring to his Georgia constituency, "and he's not too popular down my way"

Help On Housing Survey Being Sought

Marin County is trying to get city cooperation on another "housing condition survey" as a follow-up to the countywide housing survey and 178-page report completed last year

Albert Solnit, chief of advance planning in the county planning department, said the new survey is needed to meet state requirements The previous one was to satisfy federal requirements

He said San Rafael and Novato want to conduct their own surveys, Ross is not interested, and Corte Madera has given no definite answer. But the other cities are willing to go along.

The new survey will start about the first of March to identify housing areas that have a higher rate of substandard housing than the community at large.

A state law enacted by the 1968 Legislature requires that local general plans have "a housing element consisting of standards and plans for the improvement of housing and for provision of adequate sites for housing."

"We didn't dream this up," said Solnit. "Last year, when the county parks and recreation department applied for state money to buy Mc Nears Beach, we got a letter saying we're in violation of state requirements because we don't have this housing element." He said Marin got the funds for Mc Nears Beach by assuring the state we would make this survey.

The state will supply an experienced building inspector to train the surveyors. After training, the surveyors will walk through areas in cities and the unincorporated areas where housing deterioration appears greatest

They will not look for technical code violations such as fire walls or plumbing. They will check exterior appearances such as lack of paint, sagging foundations and porches, broken or boarded windows, and other conditions of general deterioration.

"This information will then help the county and cities recognize where we've got areas that probably need help in rehabilitation," said Solnit. "The state says we've got to amend general plans and show where housing needs to be improved."

Solnit said Novato and San Rafael will assign their own men to conduct surveys in their cities. The county planning department will assign one man and hire another man temporarily for the six-week survey in March and April. The cost of temporary employees will come from the $11,000 budgeted for housing in the city-county planning council budget.

Solnit said the information gathered in the survey will be confidential, and no individual building will be pinpointed as needing improvement

Defense Rejects Proxmire's Figure

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Pentagon has denied charges by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., that it spent $7 billion last fiscal year for military aid to foreign countries. It said the figure was about $2.9 billion.

Proxmire charged earlier this month the Defense Department did not really know how much it was spending for military assistance overseas.

Taxed Sales Rise 2.5%: Inflation

Although sales of taxable items rose about 2.5 per cent in Marin County during the third quarter of 1970 as compared with the same period in 1969, the rise was apparently due to inflation.

In fact, inflation rose 5 per cent in Sept. 1970 over the previous September, according to State Board of Equalization officials.

Marinites, like residents in the rest of the state, continued to pay more for less, according to William M. Bennett of Kentfield, member of the state board.

Total sales in Marin of taxable items for the third quarter of 1970 were $88,155,000. The total for the same three months in 1970 was $85,957,000.

Total sales for the large Marin cities and Petaluma for the third quarter of 1970 were:

Corte Madera, $500,000; Novato, $368,000; Petaluma, $507,000; San Rafael, $36,390,000. Comparative figures for 1969 were not given.

Murderer Convicted

Smog Controllers Agree To Challenge Exemptions

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials yesterday firmly rejected appeals from Sonoma, Napa and Solano counties for special treatment when the three come under their jurisdiction.

The six-county Bay Area Air Pollution Control District last year won a 15-year battle to annex the three northern counties, effective next July 1.

The 1970 law, however, provided a partial escape by allowing each of the three new counties to ask the state air resources board to exempt portions of their territory from the district. Solano and Sonoma supervisors already have asked to exempt the northeastern half of their territory, which falls in the Sacramento valley area.

District directors unanimously agreed yesterday to challenge the exemption moves before the Air Resources Board, each citing federal, state and district data showing the Bay Area's air pollution comes from sources throughout the nine counties

Even in northeastern Solano, the district's staff reported, winds blow contaminants into the Bay Area 22 per cent of the time, largely in winter when agricultural burning is at its height.

Solano County Administrator David Balmer assured district directors that the exemption move was "not an attempt to escape the consequences of air pollution regulation." He acknowledged, however, that the county hoped its northeastern half would fall into an air pollution control district with "different" regulations

Napa Supervisor Joseph G Peatman said his county did not intend to seek an exemption of territory.

Surgeons Jailed

ROME (UPI) —A court sentenced three Rome hospital surgeons to three months in jail Friday for leaving a pair of pincers in the abdomen of an 80-year-old woman on whom they operated. A later operation to remove the pincers was held by the prosecution to be a contributing cause of the woman's death in 1964.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

The Business Of Drinking

Besides possible death, injury, jail, or loss of a driver's license, the drunk driver faces many other consequences. Take Ron Rummy, a successful business man, for instance: After a business meeting and after too many drinks, Ron died when his car crashed into the center road divider. Right afterwards, another motorist was badly hurt when he crashed into Ron's wrecked car.

Ron's widow Molly, inherited Ron's problems: (1) the motorist sued Ron's estate and collected a big judgment, and (2) Ron's life insurance company would not pay Molly on his policies.

Why? The life policy said that the company would pay no claim if Ron was killed "while committing a felony." Molly had to sue.

What was the problem? In driving while drunk Ron had injured another person. Had he lived the court would have tried and found him guilty of a felony. But the court ruled that since Ron died before the other driver came along, he could not have committed a felony since a dead man cannot be found guilty of anything.

Hence Molly got the insurance money.

Another company's policy said that it shall "not be liable for any loss to which a contributing cause was the insured's commission of a felony." A head-on crash killed the intoxicated insured driver while he drove on the wrong side of the road. The crash killed the other driver also.

The court ruled the company didn't have to pay on the policy since the insured was the "contributing cause" to the commission of a felony. There need not be a showing that the insured was in fact guilty of a felony, only that he contributed to its commission.

Other policies may stop payment if a "violation of law" caused the death.

Another policy said it would pay for any "accidental injury." But what is accidental? The insured's drinking has caused his stomach disorder. He choked to death while eating something to calm his stomach. Was the death accidental, that is, forseeable and not voluntary? No, said a court, and the insurance company had to pay. Had the insured suffered this way before, and could have expected the choking, if he still had drunk too much, the death would not have been an accident. (Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.)

Ankle Is Sprained In Cycle Accident

Reese A. Velarde, 16, of 27 Rowland Avenue, San Anselmo, has been treated at Marin General Hospital for a sprained right ankle sustained in a San Anselmo motorcycle accident.

Officers said today Velarde was eastbound on Red Hill Avenue near the hub intersection at 3:10 p.m. Thursday when an auto ahead of him stopped for a hitchhiker forcing young Velarde to roll his motorcycle to avoid striking the car. The auto was driven by Laurie Boyd, 17, of San Francisco.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Kidney, Hemophiliacs Can Be Treated At Home, Saving Time

Many medical procedures could be done at home if the equipment is available and a relative knows how to use it. An artificial kidney (dialysis) for home use enables the victim to lead a more normal life. Because the machine is run all night while he is sleeping, it may save him two days a week.

Doctors S. Frederick Rabiner and Margaret C. Telfer of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center (Chicago) recently reported their experiences in training families of hemophiliacs to do home transfusions. This is a step in the right direction because "bleeders" have unique problems that stem from unpredictable and serious hemorrhages demanding immediate treatment.

HOME INFUSIONS free them from frequent hospital, clinic and emergency room visits with unscheduled trips, delays in care, changing personnel, blood tests and other diagnostic procedures. When a joint is involved, bleeding may produce a deformity, but hemorrhage in the gastrointestinal tract or brain could be fatal.

Home transfusions are possible because of advances in blood plasma concentrates. Those with hemophilia A lack factor VIII. When they bleed, the antihemophilic factor (AHF) can be increased by a transfusion of cryoprecipitate or other AHF concentrates. Sixteen families volunteered for the Reese program. All reported great savings in time, particularly at night when emergency room waits had been the longest. Less expense also was involved.

WHEN BLEEDING occurred, the hospital was called and the dosage discussed with the physician. (The family reports on the patient's status the following day.) If a more serious hemorrhage exists, hospitalization is indicated.

Before home transfusions, many of the younger boys were reluctant to report hemorrhages because they did not want to be hospitalized. The program has been in effect for 18 months, but the physicians are still cautious. Many blood specialists believe that hemophiliacs should learn to give themselves home infusions.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

NORMAL LIMITS

L. T. writes: What does it mean when an electrocardiogram is "within limitations?" Does this mean my heart is normal?

REPLY

I assume your physician meant "within normal limitations." He will have to answer your question because the electrocardiogram is only part of a heart examination. Many persons with valvular defects, for example, have a normal electrocardiogram. In such instances, the cardiac abnormality is detected with the stethoscope.

LAUGH LINES

Miss Z writes: Deep laugh lines have developed at the corners of my mouth because I smile a lot. But my friends who are also gregarious don't have these lines. This is not a trifling matter, as I'm in the market for a husband. Can you tell me how to get rid of these furrows?

REPLY

As you said, this is no laughing matter. I assume your teeth are not responsible and that you are otherwise attractive and interesting. If these furrows are deep, or if this is a family characteristic, plastic surgery is your only hope. Keep smiling, however, because a face 'like 10 days rain' never got a girl to the altar.

Today's Health Hint — Fatigue and irritability often go hand in hand.

Police Appeal For $15,000 A Year

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy said Friday night policemen should get $15,000 a year.

Murphy spoke before the Council of New York Law Associations and said the police are "the front line against crime" and should be paid more than other uniformed employes—firemen and sanitationmen. Negotiations for all three groups, which have been without contracts since Dec. 31, are now going on.

Two Water Plan Bills Introduced

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Legislation to authorize two Northern California water projects has been introduced by Rep. Harold T. Johnson, D-Calif.

One bill would authorize construction of the $175 million Cosumnes River Project, including Nashville Dam and two smaller reservoirs.

The other measure would authorize the $50 million Allen camp unit of the central valley project. The project, to be located on the Pit River, would irrigate 22,000 acres in Big Valley in northwestern Lassen County and southwestern Modoc County.

Guitar Classes At Marinwood

Folk guitar classes for young people and adults will be sponsored by the Marinwood Community Service District and Terra Linda Park and Recreation District.

Young people's intermediate classes will be at 4:30 p.m. starting next Wednesday at Marinwood Community Center at 775 Miller Creek Road. A beginning class will be held at 5:20 p.m. there the same day.

A beginning class for adults will be held at 7 p.m. the same day at the Terra Linda Recreation Center at 670 Del Ganado Avenue.

Bill Steele is the instructor for all classes.

Missing Woman Hunt Called Off

Ross police have called off an extensive search for 73-year-old Evelyn H. Jones, missing since Jan. 14.

"We just have run out of ideas," Chief John F. Harris said after a week-long search that extended from Ross to Bon Tempe Lake.

Searching ended Wednesday as skindivers from the Orcas Underwater Group and the Marin Skindivers Club searched Bon Tempe lake for the body of Mrs. Jones of 22 Bridge Road, the chief said.

The sheriff's Mounted Posse and Ross police also looked Wednesday for the woman, who disappeared during an afternoon walk.

CONTEMPORARY STYLE 'SKIERS ONLY' SERVICE

Pray on Thursday and ski on Sunday?

Not a bad idea, said some slope enthusiasts, so Rev. J. Dale Nystrom of Lucas Valley Community Church is offering a "skiers only" contemporary folk music worship service on Thursdays at 7:30 p.m.

Features of the mid-week services, according to Nystrom, who is a skier himself, include a brief worship service in the chapel followed by a coffee hour with ski films or talks by Bay Area ski leaders.

Assisting in services next month will be Yohann Anderson, a skier who is also a music composer, guitarist and director of the inter-denominational Marin chapter of Young Life.

A SQUARE'S BLESSING

An Amen! To A Rock Album

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

The enthusiastic approval of a middle-aged square is probably the last thing desired by the composers of a rock opera.

So I hope Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice will forgive me for saying that I think their new record album, "Jesus Christ Superstar" (Decca), is a great contribution to the task of making the Christian gospel meaningful to today's young people.

Some guardians of orthodoxy may take offense at the driving rhythms of the music and the breezy language of the libretto put together by these talented young Englishmen. Others will protest the opera's omission of any explicit affirmation of Christ's divinity or any reference to his resurrection.

They should remember that this opera was not written for people who are already secure in a traditional faith. It is aimed at —and is being warmly received by —millions of young people who are turned off by the Church, baffled by the metaphysics of the ancient creeds, suspicious of all ideas which the Establishment tries too hard to sell.

The Jesus who speaks or sings in this opera does not use the Elizabethan English of the King James Bible. But neither did the real Jesus. He addressed the people of his time in their own language — the everyday Aramaic of the Jerusalem streets. In "Jesus Christ Superstar" he addresses the young people of our time in their language.

Thus we hear him pleading with God in the Garden of Gethesemane shortly before his arrest:

"Why should I die?

"Can you show me now that I would not be killed in vain?

"Show me there's a reason for your wanting me to die.

"You're far too keen on where and how, and not so hot on why!"

And then, in the next breath:

"Alright I'll die! Just watch me die! See how I die!"

The words are different, but they convey the same impression as the gospels. Jesus is gripped by a very human agony of apprehension which he finally overcomes by a magnificent act of obedience-unto-death.

As the title indicates, "Jesus Christ Superstar" depicts Jesus as a popular hero who was "at the top of the poll" until the Establishment decided he was a dangerous rabble rouser who had to be put down. Judas emerges not as the conventional deep-dyed villain but as a more subtle and complex character —a social liberal who betrays Jesus because Jesus won't do things the "right way." The most moving character in the opera, perhaps, is Mary Magdalene, as a reformed prostitute who loves Jesus with a holy awe that is far more passionate in its intensity than any of the carnal loves of her past.

Although Webber and Rice (wisely in my opinion) never try to cram Christian dogman down the listener's throat, the libretto makes clear, in a far more effective way, the impact which Jesus had on people and their lives. This is precisely the method employed by the gospel writers to show that Jesus was no ordinary man.

The four-side album ends with Jesus' last cry from the cross:

"Father, into your hands I commend my spirit."

I do not see how anyone whose emotions have been engaged by the opera can reach this point without feeling in his heart that God did vindicate Jesus' faith. And that is, of course, the point of the resurrection story.

If your teen-agers balk at going to Sunday School or reading the New Testament, buy them this album.

It is more likely to draw them to Christ than a thousand conventional services.

Interesting Survey On Pastor Pay

NEW YORK (UPI)—Women are more liberal than men when it comes to demanding their clergymen should get involved in controversial issues of the day, but not as liberal as men in the matter of pastors' salaries, according to a nationwide survey of Episcopal laymen.

The findings were disclosed by the Episcopal Church Foundation, which sent questionnaires to Episcopal men and women throughout the country to learn what kind of clergymen they believe will best serve their parishes in the future.

The issues on which both sexes endorsed clergy participation the most was urban problems. Working with minorities and joining the war on poverty were other areas of participation in which the women favored more direct action than the men.

In the two-part question of what a rector's annual salary will be and should be in 1975 women replied "will be $12,582, should be $15,171" while the men estimated $13,581 and $16,331. These totals varied with the size of the parish.

The foundation is an organization of laymen that supports work of the church.

Lutherans Plan Session In Tokyo

GENEVA (LWF) — A special study consultation on "The Mission of the Church in an Ecumenical Context" will be held in Tokyo, April 29-May 4, 1971, immediately prior to a week-long meeting of the Lutheran World Federation's new Commission on Church Cooperation.

Church Cooperation is one of the LWF's three commissions formed in a restructuring of the international organization approved in December 1969 by the federation Executive Committee.

Also formed in the consolidation of seven former commissions and various related offices were Commissions on Studies and World Service. The studies commission also held its first sessions here early in November.

According to Church Cooperation Department Director Carl-Johan Hellberg, the Japan consultation will carry forward some of the traditions of former enlarged meetings of the previous Commission on World Mission (CWM).

Asian and African churches requested the Far East meeting on the specified theme at the last CWM session in July 1970, the director said.

He also pointed out that in addition to representatives of African and Asian churches, the consultation would provide a forum for missionary societies and supporting agencies and include participation by members of Latin American and Eastern European Lutheran churches.

In this connection, Dr. Hellberg pointed out that Latin American Lutheran churches are planning a Fifth Latin American Lutheran Conference, probably in Argentina in July 1971, which the LWF commission will support and that it also is anticipated that the federation will continue its sponsorship of conferences of Eastern European Lutheran minority bodies.

Preparation of the consultation, the director added, will be in cooperation with the federation's Department of Studies.

Parish Meeting Is Scheduled Tomorrow

The sixth annual parish meeting of St. Francis of Assisi Episcopal Church in Novato will be helf following tomorrow's 10 a.m. service.

The business meeting is scheduled to start at 11:15 a.m. with election of vestrymen as well as delegates and alternates to annual diocesan convention and deanery convocation.

Series Of Sermons To Start Wednesday

A series of sermons will be presented at the Church of Christ in Novato, Wednesday through next Sunday. Guest speaker will be Warren R. Cheatham, of the Miller Avenue Church of Christ in San Jose.

The nightly meetings will be at 7:30 p.m. and on Sunday at 9:45 and 10:45 a.m. and at 6 p.m.

World Missions Week To Open Tuesday At Golden Gate Seminary

J. P. ALLEN
TV director

ED SEABOUGH

W. L. SMITH
Foreign Field

Director of the Audience Response Division of the Southern Baptist Convention Radio and Television Commission will join with three other top Baptist missions personalities as speakers during World Missions week — Tuesday through Friday — at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, at Strawberry.

J. P. Allen, of Fort Worth, Tex., will speak on the missions week theme of "Freedom Now," at 9:40 a.m., Tuesday in John A. Broadus Hall Chapel.

PAST CHAIRMAN

Dr. John Claypool, past chairman of the SBC's Christian Life Commission, will be the key speaker, Wednesday. Claypool, a Lousiville, Ky., pastor and president of the Kentucky Baptist Convention, will speak at 9:50 a.m. in the chapel, with dialogue to follow in Room 210, Academic Building.

Speaker for Thursday will be Bob Tremaine, director of the Greater Worcester, Mass. Baptist Ministries, an inner-city evangelistic missions work. Tremaine's talk will begin at 9:40 a.m. in the chapel.

Ed Seabough and W. L. (Wimpy) Smith, associate secretaries for missionary personnel for the SBC Home Mission and Foreign Mission boards, respectively, will lead in a "Missions Commitment Day," at 9:40 a.m., Friday, January 29, in the chapel. The public is invited to attend the four-day series of chapel talks.

STUDENT CONFERENCE

The series will precede the Golden Gate Mission Conference, to be held on the campus, Friday through Sunday. The conference is expected to draw 300 college and seminary-age young people from 10 western states.

Speakers for the conference will include Claypool, Seabough, Smith, Tremaine, Milton Hughes, consultant on campus evangelism, Student Department, Southern Baptist Conference as well as Claypool, Seabough, Smith, and Tremaine.

The conference will stress opportunities for missions efforts on the home and foreign fields, in the inner-city, the college and university campuses, the mass media and other areas of service open to Christian young adults.

Special music will be provided by the Trouveres, a group of 30 singers from the California Baptist College in Riverside.

Second Woman Is Ordained Minister

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The 2,560,000-member American Lutheran Church has ordained its first woman minister. She is Miss Barbara Andrews, 35, a victim of cerebral palsy who works from a wheelchair.

Miss Andrews is the second woman in North America to be ordained into the Lutheran ministry.

The first was ordained in November in Baltimore by the nation's largest Lutheran body, the Lutheran Church in America.

Self-Help Sessions At Church

Recovery, Inc., a systematic method of self-help after-care is being sponsored by Lucas Valley Community Church on Mondays at 8 p.m. on a non-fee basis.

Rev. J. Dale Nystrom, pastor, said the sessions are a realization of five years in searching to find a qualified organization to offer such a program.

"The need for therapeutic attention is everywhere around us, but the cost of group therapy sessions is frequently prohibitive for those who may suffer the most. Even in Marin County cost is a decided factor for many in refusal for help."

Recovery, Inc., was founded in 1937 in Chicago by Dr. Abraham Low, a psychiatrist. Its purpose is to prevent relapses in former mental patients and to forestall chronicity in nervous patients.

Methods and techniques are presented by trained leaders, drawn from group membership, who serve on a voluntary basis, Nystrom said.

Two New Ones

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Paramount Studios began production on two new television pilot projects, "Escape," a 90-minute adventure drama starring Chris George, and "Funny Face" starring Sandy Duncan.

Flying Missionary Will Speak

REV. KENNETH ENRIGHT
Congo missionary

A flying missionary who has experienced first hand the terrors of revolution and insurrection in the Congo, will speak at a potluck dinner meeting at the United Methodist Church of Mill Valley, Camino Alto at Sycamore, on Feb. 2.

Rev. Kenneth D. Enright, a United Methodist missionary who has worked in the Congo since 1950, is presently home on furlough from work as an evangelistic missionary there.

When civil war broke out after the Congo received its independence, Enright piloted a small plane belonging to the mission. For mission personnel in some of the remote areas, the plane was the only means of escape to the cities when fighting neared their mission stations.

For the past five years Enright has been assigned to the Kafekumba District of the Congo where mission work includes schools, churches, evangelistic work, hospitals and medical dispensaries. Leadership in the work, particularly the schools and churches, is now predominantly in the hands of the Congolese.

Bank Of Marin's Income Up 14 Pct.

Bank of Marin 1970 consolidated income has been reported at $393,364, equivalent to $3.39 per share, up 14 per cent from 1969.

Total consolidated resources as of Dec. 31 were $55,868,364, an increase of 22 per cent over the previous year. Dividends of $1 per share and 25 cents per share were paid in January and October of last year. Directors have announced their intention of going on a 25 cents per quarter dividend basis.

Tabernacle Called An Engineering Feat

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The world-famous Mormon Tabernacle was built in 1863 and is today considered a remarkable work of engineering.

Its most distinctive feature is the self-supporting wooden roof which rests upon pillars of red sandstone spaced 12 feet apart. The pillars support wooden arches which are 10 feet thick and span 150 feet.

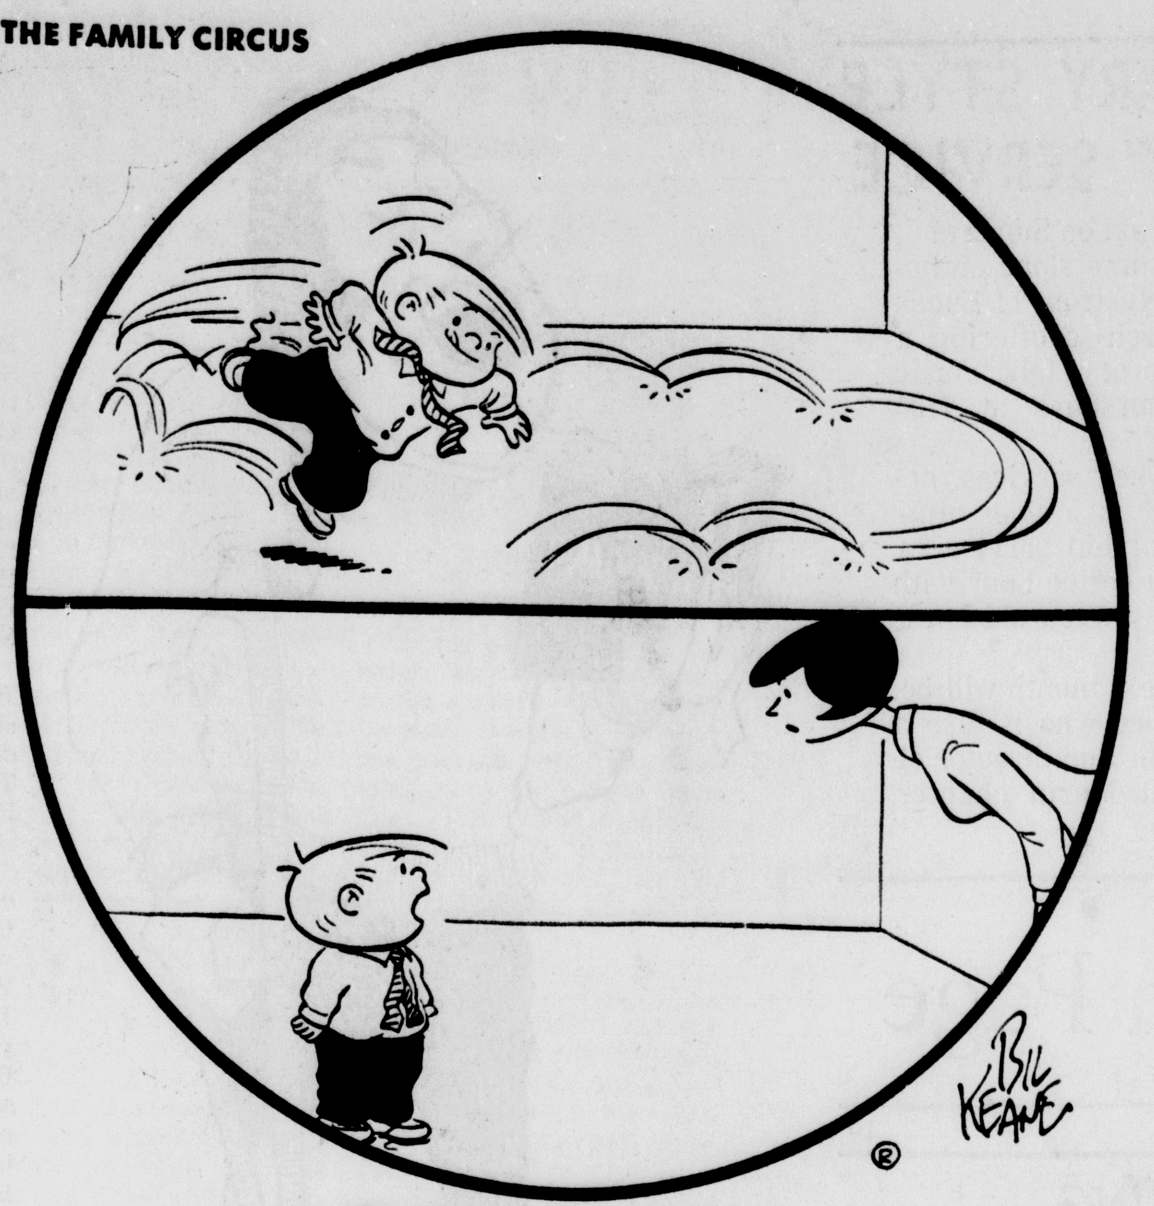
THE FAMILY CIRCUS



"Do I have to have a reason."

ALMANAC

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Jan. 23, the 23rd day of 1971.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mars, Jupiter and Venus. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

American Patriot John Hancock was born Jan. 23, 1737.

On this day in history:

In 1845 Congress ruled that all national elections shall take place on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November.

In 1937 it was announced that 17 communists confessed they had conspired with Leon Trotsky to undermine the regime of Josef Stalin.

In 1969 a tornado killed 29 persons and left hundreds injured at Hazlehurst, Miss. A thought for today: American author James Fields said, "How sweet and gracious, even in common speech, is that fine sense which men call courtesy."

Innocent Plea To Pot Charge

Jerry R. Wade, 20, of San Rafael, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of posessing marijuana. Preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 9.

Wade was arrested Jan. 3 after a Marin City resident told San Rafael police that he had hit her. Police said they found what appeared to be a marijuana cigarette in Wade's jacket.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

An Unusual Discard May Stop Bid Of Six Spades

Everybody knows that an ace is higher than a deuce. If you have to discard on an opponent's trump, you would normally throw the duece rather than an ace. After this beginning, you know that you're about to look at a case in which you should prefer to throw the ace.

Opening lead — ♢ K

WEST SWITCHES

West led the king of diamonds, winning the first trick. West switched to the ace of clubs, and South ruffed. South then proceeded to lead out all of his trumps. When South led his last trump, East had the ace of diamonds and four hearts and had to choose one more discard.

Since East was an inexperienced player, he discarded the deuce of hearts. South thereupon led out three top hearts and won the last trick with the ten of hearts. East's unwillingness to discard the ace of diamonds cost him 1,530 points.

TWO MISTAKES

Since West had opened the king of diamonds, it was clear that West also had the queen of diamonds. It was therefore unnecessary for East to hold the ace of diamonds; West still had the queen and could guard the suit. Only East could guard the hearts.

It's easy to see East's mistake, but he would not have been in this position if South hadn't made a mistake first.

After ruffing the ace of clubs, South should draw one round of trumps. Then he should lead out top hearts. If the jack drops, South can draw the last trump. If the jack doesn't drop, South must hope that the defender with the last trump also has the jack of hearts.

THREE TOP HEARTS

If so, South can get by with three top hearts and then ruff the ten of hearts with dummy's remaining trump.

As the cards lie, this plan would work. South would make the slam by his own efforts instead of with the help of the enemy.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two spades (forcing to game), and the next player passes. You hold:
♠- 8 6
♥- J 9 7 2
♦- A 10 9 3
♣- K J 5.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid 3-no-trump. The jump is necessary, since a response of 2-no-trump would be negative, showing a very weak hand. The positive response promises about 1½ quick tricks, or about an ace and a king as a minimum.

Warrant Issued

A bench warrant has been issued for Thomas Keith Flynn, 38, of Mill Valley, who is charged with stealing a car in Mill Valley Dec. 5.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THE EDITOR'S NOTEBOOK

What Was Environment Like A Century Ago?

TODAY'S INTENSE INTEREST in our physical environment leads us to reflect on how things used to be.

While 1971 is still new, some of us are moved to wonder how it was 100 years ago.

Let us turn back the pages of history and take a look.

IN 1871, the population of San Rafael was only 876 souls. Of this total, scarcely more than 600 were considered regular, old-line residents. About 200 were Johnnie-come-latelys still regarded more as transients than permanent residents.

There were no electric lights and no telephones. Pipelines were installed and the first gas service was begun in that year of 1871.

There was a railroad to Point San Quentin, where the ferry boats arrived and departed. But the railroad was sometimes closed in winter due to high water. There were complaints about the high fares; a quarter for the train ride and a half-dollar for the ferry.

There was a rugged and circuitous wagon road to Sausalito. It had been built a few years earlier by the Sausalito Land and Ferry Co.

Although San Rafael was to be without telephone service for another decade, there was a telegraph line to San Francisco, via cable from Lime Point and Fort Point. Occasionally, the cable parted and service was disrupted for extended periods.

San Rafael's Hook and Ladder Co. was formed just 100 years ago to provide the first organized community fire protection.

THE NEED FOR a new county courthouse was evident. The old adobe structure which housed county offices in 1871 had been built for other purposes 36 years earlier.

Forward-looking Marinites voted a $60,000 bond issue for a new courthouse. Actually, when a contract was let the following year, it wound up costing only $51,000 to build. It still stands in Courthouse Square, abandoned and for sale with no takers.

San Rafael was still three years away from its incorporation as Marin's first city in 1874.

J. A. Richardson founded San Rafael's first public library in 1871. It cost $1 to join and 50 cents per month dues to qualify for using the library facilities.

Messrs. Harding and Nelson were building wagons as well as shoeing horses at their blacksmith shop.

The county agricultural commissioner recommended to the board of supervisors that a county road engineer be employed.

California's population was set at 560,000. The state had only 150,000 registered voters.

San Quentin held all 816 of the state's convicts.

The San Rafael School Board received a report from a citizen committee that "the present school building is totally inadequate for the purpose" and recommending that a new one be built at a probable cost of $3,000 to $3,500. The school board responded by placing a bond issue on the ballot — for $2,500.

A new Methodist Church was dedicated and the new Tamalpais Hotel was opened to accommodate guests.

Dairy farming was acknowledged as the chief industry of the county.

IN 1871 the Marin County Journal observed the 10th anniversary of its founding. Jerome A. Barney, the newspaper's founder, was still its editor and publisher. TheJournal, he wrote on that 10th anniversary, "now ranks as a permanent fixture in the County."

In 1971, it would seem he turned out to be right.

Of San Rafael, he wrote:

"Like a beautiful maiden sitting at the foot of her betrothed, and with wistful eyes looking into the face of him she loves; or like a devotee of knowledge gazing up the steep acclivity of the hill of science, longing for the time when he shall overcome the difficulties in his path of knowledge, or shall gain the goal of his aspirations, so nestles our beautiful San Rafael at the foot of Tamalpais — so coy and demure that a lover of the beautiful in gazing upon the scene, cannot help but admire the picture, and he is not surprised that the dwellers there in are proud of their village and its surroundings."

That's the way things were here a hundred years ago.

Jack Craemer

Those Resolutions

In the age when many young people are rebelling against the forms and rituals and alleged phoniness of contemporary society, it should not be surprising that the old institution of the New Year's resolution is fading away. Considering the noise generated by all the breaking resolutions the first few days of the new year, it is hard to imagine anyone took them seriously. If one wants to improve his character or rid himself of some bad habit, the time is now — whether it be January or July.

Since the only resolutions worthy of the name are self-generated, they do not depend upon the calendar or season. They depend upon one's realization of the need for change and improvement. It is summed up in that old-fashioned word, willpower.

Having said this, let us add one more bit of wisdom. Keep in mind that we are all heirs of Adam and Eve. It is great to dream the impossible dream, but better to make the possible resolution — whatever the time.

Those Hardy Gardeners

We see them laboring in their gardens these frosty Marin mornings. Mufflered, jacketed, gloved, seemingly oblivious to the cold, these hardy fellows are carved from the same tub of freeze-proof flesh as the members of San Francisco's famed Polar Bear Club. The latter prove their manhood with year-around daily dips in the chilling surf. The mere thought of either act is enough to make us cry out mentally for blankets and a hot toddy.

Yet, we envy them their fortitude and constitutions. This is the Spartan disposition which made America great. We think it worked by killing off us weaklings.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS — big ones, in great bunches —to the many people who dropped whatever they were doing to rush to Marin's shores during this week and assist in rescuing waterfowl trapped in the disastrous oil spill. Such wonderful people deserve to be named and praised individually, but there were far too many of them for that to be possible.

BRICKBAT to the San Rafael City Council for proposing to meet behind closed doors to discuss new salary schedules for elected officials — a plan which was cancelled when City Atty. Frederick C. Robbins advised it would be illegal.

BRICKBAT to the Air Force for its seeming intransigence regarding annoying lights shining from its Mount Tamalpais radar station. Repeatedly, residents complain of the lights, the Air Force says they will be modified to eliminate the annoyance. Yet a few months later, they are shining as before, and the complaints of residents are renewed. This is, to a degree, pollution of the environment. The Air Force should not be guilty of it.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Baddies At Top Do Most Harm

In all the complaints about the inflation crunch, why is all the anger particularly directed against the budgets on health, education and welfare? True, the welfare system is certainly lacking, and there are, no doubt, a lot of rotters on the rolls, but the amounts in which they cheat the taxpayers are peanuts compared to the various ways in which business, labor and government combine to get their money.

The costs of the Vietnam war, the space program, and the defense buildup are the top money drainers, and the HEW cost for the whole nation, local to federal, nothing compared to those budgets — we've lost more in expensive hardware by dropping it in the ocean or leaving it on the moon than we've probably spent on HEW in the last 10 years. But no one seems to complain much about that. . .

Industry takes the tax cut and goes merrily on its way reaping profits — how does steel respond to Nixon's request for help in the inflationary cycle? How many industries and government agencies are volunteering to clean up their pollution — they have to be forced to it, fighting all the way, and who still ends up paying?. . .

I have heard a business executive complain about the welfare louses, and in the next breath brag about how he uses the company expense account to pay for personal expenses, and how he sneaks off to play golf. What's the difference?. . .

One could go on and on about the stupid things the taxpayers' money goes for, but the point is that while there are baddies in the welfare system, and the system itself is rotten (the guaranteed annual income would be less expensive to the taxpayer in terms of administration, would be more logical in view of the trend of the economy, and would free social workers to really try to help people instead of doing mountains of paper work), there are also a lot of baddies in top places, and the baddies at the top do a lot more harm than the baddies at the bottom. They're just harder to see. . .

Gals Gung Ho For Cartridge Belts — Is It Part Of Women's Lib?

WASHINGTON — It could be the war or all the talk about revolution, but the latest fashion craze in the country is a cartridge belt for women.

I discovered this the other day when I went into a store to buy a present for my wife.

The salesgirl took me over to a rack where there were belts of bullets in all sizes.

"This is the latest thing in accessories," the girl said. "Your wife would love one."

"I WAS HOPING for something more in a hand grenade," I said.

"Believe me," she added, "women are just crazy about these bullets. They can wear them around their chests or around their hips or let them hang loose like this."

"You don't have anything in tear gas, do you?" I asked her.

"Now, you're not being serious," she said.

"I don't know how to tell you this," I said, "But my wife is a dove."

"ALL THE MORE reason for buying her a bullet belt," she replied. "It's better to wear bullets than to shoot them."

"But I was in the service, and I don't know anyone who wore a belt or cartridges who didn't eventually want to shoot them."

"These are dummy bullets," she said, "and all the powder's been taken out of the casings."

"But what's to prevent another store from selling powder to go with the belts?"

"NOTHING," she said, rather irritated. "But even if a store sold powder for the bullets, you would still need a machine-gun to fire them."

"What would prevent a handbag manufacturer from making a bag that could turn into a machine gun?"

"It's ridiculous," she replied. "If a handbag turned into a machine gun, all the contents in the bag would fall out."

"I never thought of that. What are you featuring in flame throwers this year?"

SHE WAS DETERMINED to sell me a cartridge belt. "Why don't you try one on and see how nice it feels?"

She threw the cartridge belt over my shoulder. "There," she said. "If you were wearing black silk pajamas, you'd look beautiful."

"Let me ask you something," I said. "Why do you think women have gone ape over cartridge belts?"

"What do you know what it's like to be a woman?" she asked bitterly.

"I didn't mean . . ."

"Do you think it's fun to be treated as a second-class citizen, to have to cook and sew and scrub and give birth to children?"

"No, I guess it isn't, but . . ."

"WE'RE PEOPLE, too," she said angrily. "And we're getting sick and tired of being sex objects."

"Please, lady!" I begged.

"We've had it up to here living in a masculine society with a masculine power structure grinding us into robots. And even when we want to wear something as simple as a belt of bullets, men laugh and make fun of us."

"OK, I'll buy it. I'll buy it," I cried. "Please give me one in size 22."

AFTER THE SALE was made, I happened to say to the floor manager, "Boy, that's a pretty uptight salesgirl you have over there."

He just smiled and said, "That's possible, but she sells more cartridge belts than anyone else in the store."

Unemployment Figure Merely Hints At Economy's Sad State

WASHINGTON — A date ringed on every official calendar in Washington is Feb. 5. On that day the Bureau of Labor Statistics is due to announce the unemployment figure for the first month of the new year.

As the figures for January are assembled, they will be as closely guarded as a top-secret military operation. So much turns on the trend in 1971. But whether the percentage of the labor force out of work is six, the level for December, or higher, as many now expect it will be, is academic. The number of persons out of work and seeking employment will be large even though under the "seasonally adjusted" formula the percentage may not reflect it.

The economy is seriously out of joint, and the approach of the Nixon administration thus far is to deal only with the shadows cast by the deep-seated causes of the dislocation.

WHEN HE announced in his "conversation" with the television interlocutors that he would ask for no new taxes, the President shut the door on remedies for inflation on the one hand and the plight of the bankrupt states and cities on the other. A tentative trial balloon was sent up for a value-added tax on manufactured goods; in effect, a sales tax. It would have taken courage to propose such a tax and real grit to try to push it through a balky Congress with Democratic majorities conditioned against such a tax or, for that matter, any new tax.

The shadow play is nowhere more transparent than in the airy talk about inflation tapering off. Inflation is still a powerful force, with new evidence each day that it can grow worse rather than better.

The striking policemen in New York, the teachers in Chicago, Pittsburgh and elsewhere all attest to the pinch of rising prices and the desperate efforts of the middle class to hold their own. The Chicago teachers' strike was settled with a pledge of salary increases adding up to $60 million. That additional money is nowhere in sight in the budget of either the city or the state.

THIS IS TO confront another Nixon pledge —revenue sharing with the states. Given the squeeze on the federal budget, with rising defense costs, it is most unlikely that Mr. Nixon can share out anything like the amounts urged by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and other state executives contemplating empty treasuries and diminishing tax returns.

Getting Big Steel to cut the price increase proposed by Bethlehem in half may have been a famous victory. But the shadow of this puppet play, which has had two previous performances during the '60s, means a lot more than the substance.

Nothing could better illustrate the recourse of monopoly industry in a declining economy. Steel is operating at an average level of around 77 per cent and profits are falling. The answer of the industry is to jack up prices by seven per cent. This is an Alice-in-Wonderland contradiction of the law of supply and demand out of classical economics.

WITHOUT STERN and courageous leadership from Washington the crazy-quilt structure of community, state and federal taxes will continue to be self-defeating. The bricks of urgently needed social reform — the family subsistence plan, the desperate state of medical costs and medical care — cannot be made without the straw of new tax revenues. A deficit cannot be shared out, since the big-city states are already only too familiar with the deficit side of the ledger.

Given the worst of all political worlds under the American system —the executive being of one party and the Congress controlled by the opposition — the intangible called leadership, whatever the volume and the caliber, may be in vain. But, no matter how tough the going, the record in 1972 should not show defeat by default.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Negotiations In Tehran Will Affect Oil Price

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Aside from the air man breaths and the food he must consume to live, probably no single commodity is as important to modern, industrialized society as oil.

Negotiations centering on Tehran, Iran, are then of more than passing interest because their outcome will go far toward determining the price world consumers will pay for this major source of energy as it flows from the gasoline pump into your automobile or from the pipeline into the family furnace.

Aligned on the one side are the world's major oil companies — notably Esso, Royal Dutch-Shell, Britsh Petroleum, Gulf, Mobil, Standard of California, Texaco and Compagnie Francaise des Petroles—and on the other the non-Communist world's oil-producing countries, operating behind a united front called the Organization of Oil Producing Countries. Primarily these are the Middle East and African nations plus Venezuela and Indonesia.

FROM THIS confrontation will come a final decision on what already is agreed will be increased taxes and royalties paid by the companies to the exporting countries.

In return the companies are demanding a five-year agreement to insure a measure of stability and guaranties against demands for retroactive payments and obligatory reinvestment of funds in the producer country.

It is a quirk of fate that this search for stability should center upon an area noted for its instability, namely, the Middle East.

But it also is noteworthy that this instability has affected least of all the oil agreements, mostly because the Arab countries do not need the oil but they do need money. It also is noteworthy that even though U.S. foreign policy in support of Israel has led to Arab threats, it has caused no real action against American oil firms.

ACCOMPANYING the confrontation between the oil producing countries and the companies have been two other major developments.

One is that for the first time the United States, Britain, France and the Netherlands are lending diplomatic support to efforts to keep the prices as low as possible.

Another is that France, at crisis point in its own negotiations with Algeria over exploitation and use of Sahara desert oil, has abandoned the policy of noncooperation with what the late President Charles de Gaulle regarded as an Anglo-Saxon monopoly and has joined The Hague, London and Washington in a united front.

Too Busy For Marriage, Teacher Adopts A Son

By GEORGE NEVIN

A baby shower for a bachelor?

It happened the other day in a classroom at Marin Terrace School in Mill Valley, where Raymond F. Jurasin's students threw a party to celebrate the adoption of a 2-year-old boy by their unmarried teacher.

Surrounded by his cavorting pupils and holding his son, David Rhodes Jurasin, in his lap, the 34-year-old teacher brushed confetti from his hair and told how he waited three years to adopt a child.

He was registered with the San Francisco Department of Social Services, he said, "But they weren't able to find anyone for me."

He's just been too wrapped up in teaching to get married, Jurasin said, explaining why he didn't raise a family in the usual manner. "But, I've wanted a child for a long time."

Jurasin's break came three weeks ago when a friend called to say a child was available in Southern California. The teacher drove down Friday and met David, spent the weekend with him, signed the necessary papers Monday and drove back with his new son.

Barring the unforseen, the adoption will be final one year from now.

Although single persons have been allowed to adopt children since 1965, adoptions by men have been rare. Only two such cases have been reported in San Francisco, andmne other in Marin. They're more common in Southern California, however.

As Jurasin talked, David played happily with a stuffed toy dog, seemingly oblivious to the noisy children who were putting on a skit for his benefit.

Entertainment over, the students crowded around and gave David a large gift-wrapped package. "Open it," they urged, but the boy only looked around.

"That's all right," said Jurasin, opening the box himself. "I gave him a toy jet when I met him Friday and he looked at it two hours before he touched it."

Inside the box was a miniature farm, complete with animals, a barn and a tractor. David looked at it in silence, and then, in a delighted voice, said "Fractor!" The students gleefully repeated the word.

Jurasin said a babysitter, the mother of one of his students, would care for David during school hours and he will pick David up each afternoon and take him home to 20 East Circle Drive in Tiburon.

The teacher said his students are thrilled by his instant parenthood. "As you can see, they're very high," he said, waving his hand at the frolicking youngsters. "There were a few bad days last week when they knew I was going south, but that's all over now."

According to his new father, David is "as happy as a lark" in his new surroundings, but Jurasin has a complaint familiar to most parents.

"David," he said, "just has too much energy. I can't get him to take a nap. I hope he'll be worn out after all this excitement."

Though they've known each other for less than a week, Jurasin has proof that he and David are indeed father and son. "Why," he said, "he already calls me daddy."

Bizarre Twist In Metzger's Case

The possibility that a man arrested aboard a gun-laden sub-chaser last July may be the alleged "victim" of a 1968 Southern California murder is the latest twist in the already-bizarre case surrounding Sausalito attorney Michael Henry Metzger.

A pretrial hearing continued yesterday in Marin Superior Court where Metzger is accused of felony counts of possessing LSD, marijuana, cocaine and a tear gas weapon, stemming from a Dec. 6 raid on his Sausalito home.

The case became bizarre enough when it was learned that it was Gerald N. McDonald — the captain of the sub-chaser raided in Tiburon Harbor — who tipped off county drug abuse officers to the illegal drug stash in Metzger's home.

Yet another dimension was added yesterday when Metzger's attorneys — William O. Weissich and Patrick Hallinan — charged that George William Lawson, who was first mate aboard the sub-chaser, may well be Warren Hudson, said to be a naroctics smuggler who was allegedly murdered in Riverside County in October 1968.

A man identified as Lawrence A. Fassler, said by authorities to be the leader of the smuggling ring in which Hudson was involved, is now on trial in Riverside Superior Court for the murder of Hudson, whose body was never found.

The prosecution has contended that Fassler, currently serving a 15-year sentence in Arizona State Prison for narcotics smuggling, hired a man to kidnap and kill Hudson because Hudson had double-crossed the rest of the five-man ring by keeping $80,000 to himself.

Over the objections yesterday of Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas, Judge Joseph G. Wilson ordered mugshots and fingerprints taken of Lawson be made available to Metzger's attorneys in order to check the theory that Lawson is indeed the "dead" Hudson.

Thomas said the issue was irrelevant.

Yesterday's hearing also heard Alfred Teixeira, a Marin County drug agent, recount his relationship with the mysterious McDonald.

Teixeira said he paid McDonald $25 for the "Metzger job" and said that McDonald was "wired for sound" when he entered Metzger's home last Dec. 6.

Metzger's attorneys claimed that McDonald came to the suspect's home to interest him in using the sub-chaser to rescue five hashish-smuggling Northern Californians, including a Marinite, from jail in Crete. Metzger and his law partner, Daniel Weinstein, had earlier represented some of the jailed Americans.

Teixeira also testified that after the July raid on the sub-chaser in which McDonald was arrested, his boss, Lt. James C. Schwedheim of the Marin Drug Abuse Bureau, told him that McDonald was working for the U.S. Custom's service.

Charges against McDonald stemming from the sub-chaser raid were dropped four days after the raid on Metzger's home.

McDonald was scheduled to appear at yesterday's hearing but failed to do so.

Hallinan charged that the raid on the sub-chaser home was ". . .a fix and a sham" used to set up the raid on his client's home.

Judge Wilson recessed the hearing until next Friday and ordered the district attorney's office to explain McDonald's absence from the hearing.

Novatan Faces Plea On Assault

Brian Lee Gilbert, 20, of Novato, was arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on a felony charge of attempted rape and a misdemeanor count of indecent exposure.

He will plead to the charges Monday.

Gilbert, arrested Thursday on a traffic warrant, is accused of the attempted rape of a 20-year-old Novato woman Dec. 27 at the Nave Shopping Center.

Huge Suit Alleges Sex Bias

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A Sacramento widower is seeking $700 million in damages in a suit charging sex discrimination by three public utility companies.

The superior court action filed by Ned E. Ubben is the largest damage suit in Sacramento County history. It stems from the accidental death of his wife, who last April was crushed between a garage door and her car when the door opened by itself.

Ubben charges the pension and death benefit plans of the defendants, Pacific Telephone Co., American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and Western Electric violate federal sex discrimination laws and the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

His attorney said Pacific Telephone, who employed Mrs. Ubben for 17 years, pays one year's salary to the wife of a deceased employe but nothing to the husband of a deceased employe.

Ubben asks that the $700 million be put into a trust fund to take care of other husbands of the firms' women employes who die.

For himself, he asks $15,000, which represents one year of his wife's salary, and $25,000 in punitive damages. Mrs. Ubben, 43, was a senior engineer at Pacific Telephone.

Four Arraigned On Possession

Four men have been arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on charges of possessing marijuana.

William Cody Smith, 19, of 90 Princess Street, Sausalito; James Kardis Jr., 21, of 124 Beattie Road, Novato, and John Anthony Canales and Carl Glen Pickens, both 18 and from San Francisco, will return to court to enter pleas next Wednesday.

They were arrested last Sunday by sheriff's deputies who were investigating a reported burglary at Kardis's residence.

Muskie Calls For Wage-Price Board

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —Sen. Edmund S. Muskie said today there were "signs of change" in President Nixon's State of the Union address but he warned Nixon must "lift the economy off the flat of its back" or a Democratic President will.

Muskie, on the first California campaign swing of his unannounced bid for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, said Nixon should declare "an economic ceasefire" and appoint a high-level wage and price advisory board.

The Maine senator, keynoting the biennial state Democratic convention, charged in remarks prepared for delivery that Nixon's game plan for improving the economy and halting inflation had "failed."

Muskie watched Nixon's State of the Union address on television with Democratic state legislative leaders in a private room at an expensive restaurant. Afterward, the man who hopes to run against Nixon in 1972 issued this statement:

"There were signs of change in the President's message, and although they fell short of the advance billings, I hope the President's proposals and congressional initiatives will lead to corrections in our economic policies and improved operations in the executive branch.

In his speech today to the 940 Democratic State Central Committee members, Muskie urged Nixon "to go beyond jawboning" and establish a wage-price panel "to restore what has so often been missing from key wage and price decisions—a sense of public responsibility."

Muskie was on a five-day campaign tour in a state where the unemployment rate consistenly has been above the national average. Currently it is 7 per cent, a full point above the nationwide rate.

"The Democratic Party does not need, and it does not want, unemployment as a political issue," Muskie said. "But this administration has made it an issue."

The senator said unemployment should be dealt with by guaranteeing "a job opportunity to every American who is willing and able to work."

Reagan Proposes Overhaul Of School System

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A Reagan administration task force has recommended a complete overhaul of the state's education system including proposals to make the state Board of Education more political and to impose a statewide property tax.

The governor's Commission on Educational Reform Friday also called for abolishing teacher tenure, permitting a simple majority for voter passage of school bonds, authorizing merit pay for quality teachers, requiring students to work to pay for their scholarships, eliminating county superintendents of schools and county boards of education, and rewriting the education code.

In a 70-page report submitted to Gov. Ronald Reagan, the commission proposed that the governor, Assembly speaker and president pro tempore of the Senate be made members of the Board of Education.

THE ELUSIVE BASKETBALL — If these pictures are any indication, the ball was a rather elusive object during last night's Marin County Athletic League game between Terra Linda and San Marin. At the left, Mike Kassenbrock (hands raised) and Jim Thompson of San Marin watch helplessly as the ball flies by, while Terra Linda's Joe Casteel looks the other way. At the right, Kassenbrock, teammate Dana LaFerriere (55), Terra Linda's Gordon Walker (10), and others scramble for the ball, but where is it? (I-J Photo)

TERRA LINDA WINS

Overtime Rally Tops San Marin

Bill Berry's 20-foot shot at the final buzzer, and Larry Kerr's seven points in the ensuing overtime last night brought the Terra Linda High School Trojans a 62-60 win over San Marin in a Marin County Athletic League basketball game at Terra Linda.

The game, the first in the MCAL this season to be decided in overtime, gave the Trojans a 4-1 league record and kept them in second place with Tamalpais, behind undefeated Redwood. The loss was the third in five games for the Mustangs of Novato.

Kerr, who finished with 21 points, hit two layups and three free throws as Terra Linda took charge right away in the extra period. Berry had tied the game with his desperation shot after the Trojans inbounded the ball in the backcourt with five seconds on the clock. The contest was marked by controversy, which included a double technical foul called on San Marin for stuffing the ball during warmups.

Dana LaFerriere, San Marin's 6-foot-8 center, led all scorers with 23 points, and Hoza Wright, a sophomore, backed him up with 17. For Terra Linda, Joe Casteel, despite fouling out in the fourth quarter, came in behind Kerr with 14.

'Giant Killer' Seals Win Again

OAKLAND (UPI) -The 1970-71 California Golden Seals are nowhere near making a run on the leaders in the National Hockey League but they're making it an interesting season.

In the role of a "giant-killer," the Seals, last in the NHL's Western Division, stopped another contender Friday night. With Gary Jarrett and Don O'Donoghue each knocking in two goals, the Seals dominated the Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-2.

Going into the game, fourth-place Toronto had compiled an impressive 15-3-2 over the last 20 games. The loss left the Leafs four points behind Montreal in the Eastern Division.

For the Seals, it was the second time in five games, including one tie, they have beaten the Leafs. The victory lifted California's record to 14-29-3, three points shy of sixth-place Los Angeles.

O'Donoghue, playing in only his 18th game since being summoned from the American Hockey League, opened and closed the scoring for the Seals. Jarrett scored the go-ahead goal on a breakaway in the first period and added the first insurance market in the third stanza.

The other California goal went to Ernie Hicke.

Warriors Host Bulls After Loss To L.A.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The San Francisco Warriors went to Los Angeles with a four-game winning streak and a chance to pull within percentage points of the Pacific Division-leading Lakers.

They came back with 130-110 loss and another battle facing them tonight in the Civic Auditorium against the Chicago Bulls.

San Francisco was never ahead Friday after hitting the opening basket of the game. Keith Erickson, who wasn't supposed to play because of an injured thumb, drilled in 22 points in the first three periods, then the Lakers coasted to victory.

Jerry West played as he usually does—leading all scorers with 28 points.

Nate Thurmond was tops for the Warriors with 20 points. Jeff Mullins added 17 and Jerry Lucas followed with 16.

The Bulls come into tonight's contest in third place in the NBA Midwest Division with a 29-20 mark. San Francisco has a 27-24 record and leads third-place Seattle by five games.

Conference Pride Is Pro Bowl Theme

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —The 80 best football players in the National Football League, 40 from the American and 40 from the National Conferences, put their pride at stake Sunday in the 21st annual Pro Bowl football game here.

The All-Stars were selected by vote of the 26 coaches in the NFL but no coach was permitted to cast a vote for a player on his own team and could name only players in his conference.

This is the first year that the merger of the rival leagues into one huge league made it possible to revise the format of the game to pit the stars of one conference against the other.

Dick Nolan of the San Francisco Forty Niners coaches the Nationals while John Madden of the Oakland Raiders coaches the Americans and they have their own team quarterbacks starting the game.

For the NFC team, John Brodie, who led all pro passers, will hurl his bullet-like aerial thrusts against a defense dominated by the Kansas City Chiefs who placed five men on the starting defensive unit.

Brodie's starting running backs are MacArthur Lane of St. Louis and Larry Brown of Washington while his wide receivers are the two Gene Washingtons, one from San Francisco and the other from Minnesota.

The American Conference quarterback, Daryle Lamonica of Oakland, is flanked by running backs Leroy Kelly of Cleveland and Hewritt Dixon of the Raiders. The wide receivers are Warren Wells of Oakland and Gary Garrison of San Diego.

The other men among the six placed by Oakland on the starting offensive team for the Americans are center Jim Otto, tackle Harry Schuh and tight end Ray Chester.

The game is sponsored by the Los Angeles Metropolitan Newspapers in cooperation with the National Football League.

Pros Continue To Rip Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI —The Phoenix Open is setting some golf records,

Gene Littler, the quiet 40-year-old La Jolla, Calif., pro, shot the lowest 18-hole score of the 1971 pro tour Friday. He had a 63, eight under par at the Arizona country club and one shot shy of his own course and tournament record.

The 63 plus a first round 66 gave Littler a 129 total, lowest 36-hole score of the year in three tournaments to date. Yet that was not good enough for an undisputed lead. A couple of other vets, Paul Harney and Miller Barber, 40, tied Littler. Both had 65-64—129.

The field was cut as is customary to the low 70 pros and ties at the end of two rounds. The score required to remain in contention for the last two rounds Saturday and Sunday was 137—lowest in the history of the Professional Golfers Association. The previous low cut was 140. That was the qualifying mark in last year's Memphis Classic but it was par for that course.

Seventy-one pros made it here with scores that had to be better than five under par.

Among those who didn't make it were Ray Floyd who had a pair of 69s for 138, four under; defending champion Dale Douglass with 67-73—140; and Tom Shaw, winner of last weekend's Crosby Clambake who said farewell with 72-68—140.

Arnold Palmer made it with 68-67—135 but he admitted he was worried.

Big Bob Lunn who won the Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open, first event of the year, was all alone at 130, a shot back of the leading triumvirate. He had 64-66.

"I made the cut," he grinned.

Five pros were grouped at 131 — Hale Irwin, Dave Hill, Bruce Crampton, Don Massengale and Howie Johnson.

Frank Beard made it with a pair of 66s for 132 in a bracket with Fred Marti, Ted Hayes, Rod Curl, Bill Garrett, George Archer and Richard Crawford.

Novato Upsets Marin Catholic

Marty Moroski scored 21 points and provided some much needed consistency for the Novato High School Hornets as they pulled a mild upset by defeating Marin Catholic last night, 61-52 in Novato.

The game, a sloppy affair played to some 500 fans, gave both teams 2-3 records in Marin County Athletic League play. It was Novato's second straight win after they lost their first three games.

Moroski, a junior forward, gave his best performance of the season, and it came at the right time, because teammate Joe DeMaestri, the league's leading scorer and the Nornets' principle weapon, succumbed to foul trouble and the adept coverage of Steve Hurley, and collected only nine points.

Marin Catholic had only Hurley's defense and a 20-point effort by Bill Donellan to highlight a dismal evening. Having beaten San Marin on Tuesday, after that team whitewashed Novato last week, the Wildcats of Kentfield were favored to win this game. But they just didn't come to play. Novato ran up a five point lead at halftime, and was never threatened thereafter.

Redwood Tops Drake; Fifth Straight Win

The Redwood High School Giants won as expected last night to remain undefeated in the Marin County Athletic League basketball race, but their opponents, the Drake Pirates, put up an impressive struggle.

The defending MCAL champion Giants prevailed, 46-34 on their home court in Larkspur, for their fifth straight league win this year. But they led by only five at halftime as the Pirates of San Anselmo, winners of only one game against four losses, put on a strong defensive show.

It took the combined efforts of big Scott Trobbe, and equally-as-big Steve McGee to insure the victory. The 6-foot-6 stars scored 14 and 12 points respectively, and succeeded in wearing Drake down in the third quarter; Redwood outscored Drake in that period, 9-2.

Bob Gregg was high for Drake with 11, and Sam Farb of Redwood scored that many also.

Tamalpais Coasts To Win Over San Rafael

San Rafael High School put up the good fight against Tamalpais last night, but the Indians of Mill Valley pulled steadily away after the first quarter and defeated the Bulldogs, 65-49 at San Rafael.

For Tam the victory was the fourth in five Marin County Athletic League games, but San Rafael, still winless, forced Indian coach Bernie Schneider to go with his frontliners most of the way.

Will Garner and John Earl Huff, Tam's mainstays, played until the fourth quarter, and scored 19 and 15 points respectively to guide the win.

Jim Thorne led the Bulldogs with 16 points, followed by Wayne Lechner with 11.

Record Crowd Sees Historic Shot Put

By RON SUPINSKI

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—He eats a lot of protein powder, loves to lift weights and has burst upon the international track and field scene like an undimming comet.

That's long-haired, mustachioed Al Feuerbach, who was reared on a farm in eastern Iowa, graduated from Emporia State (Kan.) and today holds the world indoor shot put record of 68 feet, 11 inches after stunning rugged Randy Matson in the greatest shot put duel in history at the All-American Games.

A record Northern California track crowd of 13,815 at the Cow Palace watched in awe Friday night as the unheralded Feuerbach unleashed the third greatest shot put throw in history to eclipse the old indoor mark of 67-10 shared by Oregon's Neal Steinhauer and Matson. Only Matson has exceeded that distance, both times outdoors, topped by a 71-5 1-2 heave.

Feuerbach, a 23-year-old muscle-bound athlete whose weight shot from 190 to 246 pounds after leaving college, tossed the 16-pound shot 65 feet, 7 inches on his first try Friday night.

"On my next throw, I knew it was a good one just as soon as I felt the snap of my wrist," he said. "But I really didn't know how far it was until the officials told me.

"That first throw was merely to set my mark. Then I really went all out."

The second toss arced 68 feet, 11 inches to establish the 6-foot-1 Feuerbach as one of the world's top shot putters and a shining light for the United States in the 1972 Olympics.

For Matson of the Texas Striders, it was his first defeat since 1969. When asked if he gave any tips to Feuerbach, Matson replied: "He certainly doesn't need any from me."

Another athlete who brought the capacity crowd to its feet was Jim Ryun, one of the world's greatest middle-distance runners, who clocked in 4:04.4 while winning the mile against hardly any opposition. It was the first time the former Kansas flash has run competitively in 19 months to launch a comeback aimed at the upcoming Olympics.

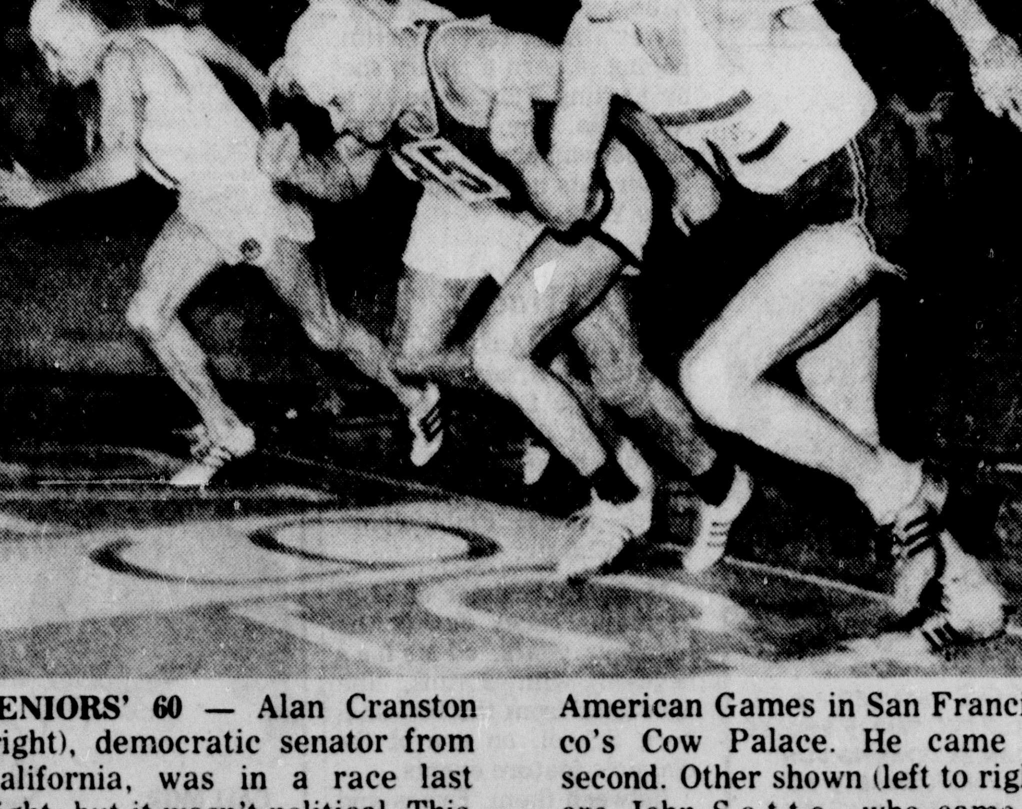
"I was very pleased with my performance, although 4:04.4 is not a mar I will stand much longer," said the 23-year-old newspaper photographer who plans to move soon from Topeka, Kan., to Eugene, Ore., to train under University of Oregon coach Bill Bowerman.

"I knew I had to set the pace out there and time passed quickly. There were about 4 1-2 laps to go before I made a move, but I'm satisfied with going that fast this early in the season."

Other outstanding performances at the eighth annual indoor meet sponsored by the San Francisco Examiner were turned in by Reynaldo Brown, who won the high jump in 7-2, Milan Tiff of the California Track Club, who set a Cow Palace and meet record with a 52-7 3-4 triple jump, and Australia's Kerry Pearce, who broke his own meet record with an 8:38.2 clocking in the two-mile.

George Young, world's co-record holder in the two-mile with Pearce at 8:27.2, did not compete because of a groin muscle pull.

Olympic champ Bob Seagren pulled up lame in a workout and was unable to compete in the pole vault won by Sam Caruthers with a 16-6 clearance.



SENIORS' 60 — Alan Cranston (right), democratic senator from California, was in a race last night, but it wasn't political. This time he was running in the seniors' 60 yard dash at the All-American Games in San Francisco's Cow Palace. He came in second. Other shown (left to right) are John Satte, who came in third, George Tracy and A. J. Puglizervich. (UPI Telephoto)

ABA Drafts Cautiously; Wicks, Carr Fail To Go In First Round

GREENSBORO, N. C. (UPI)— First round draft picks of the American Basketball Association Friday failed to include some of the nation's premier college players, giving indication the owners felt they would be unable to sign them in a bidding war with the NBA.

Although said to have been selected in the second round, the first round picks do not include UCLA's Sidney Wicks, Austin Carr of Notre Dame and Rich Yunkus of Georgia Tech.

The draft, held on the eve of the league's fourth All-Star game, was kicked off by the Utah Stars' selection of Jim McDaniel of Western Kentucky, a 7-footer sought to back up veteran Zelmo Beaty.

The Caroline Cougars also went after a 7-footer — Elmore Smith of Kentucky State — in the second selection of the "secret draft."

Information on the selections came from sources around the league.

Artis Gilmore, Jacksonville's towering center, went to the Kentucky Colonels amid speculation he is already committed to sign with the ABA. He was the ninth player selected during the first round, giving credence to further reports the 7-2 star's talents went to the highest bidder.

Carolina and Utah were reported to be the other clubs who made bids for Gilmore during the meeting.

The first and second round selections show the ABA owners were looking to strengthen their front courts. The smallest player of the 21 chosen was 6-1 Charlie Davis of Wake Forest, whowas picked by the New York Jets as one of their three second-round choices. The remaining players chosen were all 6-7 or taller.

Trades and other types of deals gave some teams more than one selection in the first and second round of the draft. The third round is to come this morning.

Other first round choices were: Pittsburgh, Howard Porter of Villanova; Denver, Cliff Melly of Colorado; Denver, Ralph Simpson of Michigan State; Virginia, Ken Durrett of LaSalle; Memphis, Randy Denton of Duke; Virginia, Willie Sojourner of Weber State; Texas, Stann Love of Oregon and Virginia, Dan Lewis of Tulsa.

In the second round Texas took Roger Brown of Kansas and Wicks; Denver, Marv Roberts of Utah State; Carolina, Yunkas; New York, Charlie Davis of Wake Forest; the Floridians, Willie Long of New Mexico; and Darnell Roberts, a graduate of San Jose State who has spent the last three years in the Army, went to Indiana.

League officials announced a lineup change for the West in today's All-Star game.

Larry Cannon of Denver was unable to play, officials said, because he was required to attend a National Guard training session in Miami. His Denver teammate, Julius Keye, will take Cnnon's place if he's able to make travel connections.

The game, scheduled for 2 p.m., will be televised by CBS.

ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph told newsmen Friday they would continue efforts to regain the services of Spencer Haywood now playing with the NBA Seattle Supersonics.

"We are concerned about the implications of any player in any sport not honoring a proper contract," Dolph said.

Haywood jumped from the Denver Rockets to Seattle last year.

Rally Off To Foggy Beginning

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UPI)—With the 40th Monte Carlo Rally only hours old, the weather today made its mark by focing officials to relax one of the rigid time-limits on the first stage of the seven-day event.

Fog in Morocco, coupled with exceptionally rough roads outside Marrakesh, prompted rally organizers to drop the required average speed to some 50 mph for the 40 competitors on the African route.

The remaining 190 crews from nine European cities faced better conditions as they started out on the 2,200-mile trek toward Monte Carlo.

One curios exception, however, was Monte Carlo itself, where the 32 starters immediately headed into deep snow-filled passes in the Southern French Alps. All cars will have to tackle this section but the crews starting here it proved a double handicap.

The 25 cars which started Friday morning from Oslo, meanwhile, all were reported on time as they drove through Poland.

No troubles were reported on Friday's stage through Sweden, and drivers arriving Friday night at Ystad for the ferry crossing to Swinoujscie, Poland, said roads were dry south of Gothenburg and it was "pure Sunday driving."

Alpine Renault, with eight factory-backed cars all setting out from Marrakesh, emerged firm favorites to win the event for the first time. Porsche, its main rival, not only has switched to an untested car—the 914-6 model—but also was forced to change its drivers' line-up in Warsaw at the last moment.

Other works teams battling it out as the crews sped through the first of three days of non-stop driving across Europe were Lancia and Fiat of Italy, West Germany'S BMW, and Nissan Datsun of Japan.

NBA ROUNDUP

Pistol Pete Takes Care Of Milwaukee

By United Press International

The Milwaukee Bucks and their 10-game winning streak were "pistol-whipped" Friday night.

Pistol Pete Maravich scored three baskets in the last two minutes to rally the Atlanta Hawks to a 117-110 victory over the Bucks. Milwaukee had taken a 108-105 lead with 2:07 remaining when Maravich connected on three baskets and Bill Bridges hit one to boost Atlanta ahead.

An aggressive Hawk defense held Milwaukee's Lew Alcindor to just 16 points, one of his lowest totals of the season, in handing the Bucks their eighth loss against 39 victories, best mark in the National Basketball Association.

Walt Bellamy led the Hawks with 25 points and Maravich had 22. Bobby Dandridge was high man for Milwaukee with 22.

In other NBA action Friday night, Baltimore bombed Boston 136-117, Philadelphia nipped Phoenix 117-116, Los Angeles ripped San Francisco 130-110, Seattle edged Cincinnati 132-131 in overtime, Portland stunned Detroit 123-112 and Buffalo clipped San Diego 101-94.

Earl Monroe had 26 points and Gus Johnson 25 to lead Baltimore past the Celtics. Monroe had 19 points in the first half as the Bullets built a 72-51 lead.

Bailey Howell's basket with 19 seconds left gave the 76ers a victory over Phoenix. Howell scored after Archie Clark stole the Suns' inbounds pass at mid-court. Billy Cunningham had 31 points and Hal Greer 30 to lead Philadelphia while Dick Van Arsdale was tops for Phoenix with 23.

Spencer Haywood scored 30 points and Tom Meschery's two foul shots put Seattle ahead to stay in overtime as the Sonics beat Cincinnati. The Royals led 13-119 with five seconds left in regulation time when steals and baskets by Lee Winfield and Don Smith tied the game.

Geoff Petrie's 28 point performance helped offset a 36-point effort by Dave Bing as Portland beat the Pistons and Don May connected for 29 points including a pair of crucial baskets in the fourth period, to help Buffalo send the Rockets to their ninth straight loss.

The Plot Thickens In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI)—Developments in the grand jury investigation into Erie County's proposed domed stadium continued Friday as it was learned the project engineer for the facility has already testified before a federal grand jury.

J. Lloyd Walker, project engineer for the architectural firm which was hired to design the stadium, was subpoenaed to testify before a county grand jury which is also probing the project.

Walker and Dome stadium atty. Victor T. Fuzak were recipients of "John Doe" subpoenaes issued Jan. 9 by Dist. Atty. Michael F. Dillon.

It was learned that Walker appeared before the federal panel Monday after being granted immunity from prosecution. He originally appeared before the Grand Jury last December.

Fuzak indicated Wednesday that Dome Stadium Inc. initially asked the U.S. Department of Justice to investigate the project last September. Fuzak said he made the request in Washington.

The federal panel is investigating alleged bribery, conspiracy and extortion in connection with the $50 million stadium project.

In other stadium developments Friday:

—County executive B. John Tutuska said the state's Urban Development Corp. (UDC) would "not back out" of talks despite the federal and county investigation. The county executive met with representatives of the UDC to determine what part it may be able to play in construction of a stadium in the county.

—The county legislature's 11-member Republican majority advised the FBI it had no knowledge of any wrongdoing in connection with the stadium project. They said they were "anxious to provide whatever cooperation and assistance you might desire."

World Bobsled Races At Killer Blue Lake

CERVINIA, Italy (UPI)—Bobsledders from 13 nations today attacked the killer Blue Lake slope in the shadow of the Matterhorn for the world two-man bobsled championships.

Warming weather threatening to soften the slope which took the life of the Spanish team captain, Luis Lopez, on Thursday forced officials to move the starting time up an hour to 8 a.m.(2 a.m. EST) to take better advantage of the early morning cold.

First down the track was the Italian No. 2 team of Enzo Vicario and Corrado Dal Fabbro, one of the favorites after another accident eliminated the defending world champion team of Horst Floth and Peppi Bader of West Germany in a trial run.

More than half a dozen accidents marred the trials for the two-man championships,

TOWERING FIGURE — Curtis Rowe of UCLA, one of the nation's most outstanding college basketball players, is one of the big reasons why the Bruins are favored to win the NCAA title again this year. Last night he helped the Southern California school to an 87-62 win over Loyola of Chicago. Here he soars over Loyola's Bill Moody for a tip-in.

UCLA Prepares For Notre Dame With 87-62 Romp Over Loyola

UCLA is ready for its big test with Notre Dame this afternoon.

The Bruins flattened Loyola of Illinois 87-62 Friday night as part of a Chicago double bill. Sidney Wicks and Steve Patterson combined for 47 of the winners' points.

The nationally top-rated and unbeaten Bruins met rugged Notre Dame today before a national television audience.

On the Coast Friday, USF had to go all out to edge crosstown rival San Francisco State 64-61 with Johnny Burks tallying 16 for the Dons, now 5-9 after a disastrous start.

Pepperdine snapped a four-game losing streak by breezing past Chico State, 78-62. Steve Sims had 19 for the Waves in that one.

UC Santa Barbara flattened Cal Poly Pomona by a school record 123-68 count as Doug Rex hit 23 points and the Guachos ran their record to a flashy 12-3.

San Diego State hit 19 of 32 second-half shots to down nationally second-rated small school Louisiana Tech 88-78.

At the All-Cal tournament in San Diego, UC Riverside took UC Irvine 71-66 behind Mike Washington's 22 markers to move into tonight's finals against host UC San Diego, which downed UC Davis 72-60.

Tough Lewis and Clark called on Hawaii, where the Rainbows are hoping for national recognition. It was Hawaii 91, Lewis and Clark 76, as the winners emerged 13-2 and the losers 10-3.

Commission Proposes A Radical System

SEATTLE (UPI) —The time may come when college football players grade their coaches. In gist, that was what a special University of Washington human rights commission has recommended.

The proposal of a "systematic means of gathering players' evaluation of coaches' performance" was included in a 29-page report compiled by the commission and released Friday.

The commission, which earlier recommended the dismissal of football coach Jin Owens and director of sports Joe Kearney, was appointed to look into new charges of racism in the university's athletic department.

In the report, the 27-member multi-racial commission took no action regarding Owens and Kearney, saying, "The group placed emphasis not on the finding of fault in individuals but on the search for changes in the situation which would diminish the chances for racial frictions in the future.

Hallinan Sees Angela 'Lynching'

Supporters of Angela Y. Davis, accused in connection with the Hall of Justice shoot-out, were told last night that "unless people are made aware of the truth" the 26-year-old black revolutionary will be "lynched."

Addressing a sparse audience at the College of Marin, Attorney Terence Hallinan charged that "Marin County is out to get the woman."

"Let's have no illusions," he said. "Unless the people of Marin County and the state stand up and stop this lynching, they are going to get her."

Hallinan, who has visited with Miss Davis in Marin County Jail, was one of four speakers who addressed the rally called by the Bay Area Angela Davis Defense Committee and the college's Black Students Union.

Miss Davis is charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy as a result of the Aug. 7 fray. Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley and three of his abductors were killed in an abortive attempt to free three San Quentin convicts.

Hallinan claimed last night the judge was shot twice during the escape attempt. One shot, he said, was the widely reported shotgun blast in the face. The other was a bullet through the heart which the attorney said was fired from outside the van.

Meanwhile, in San Francisco, supporters of Angela Davis have announced formation of a "national committee of the arts" to aid her defense.

Screen stars Jane Fonda, Elliot Gould, Don Sutherland and Carrie Snodgrass are among the members.

The National Committee of the Arts to Free Angela Davis was formed with offices in Los Angeles. It said it had more than 50 well-known painters, sculptors, writers, actors, musicians and poets as members.

Rights Group 'Dismal', Says Resigning Member

Bella H. Aaron of the Marin County Human Rights Commission, criticized by colleagues for being too independent, announced her resignation yesterday with a parting blast at the group.

Mrs. Aaron, a Sausalito attorney, charged the commission with committing the very type of discrimination it is supposed to fight. In her letter of resignation to the Marin County Board of Supervisors, Mrs. Aaron described the commission's record as dismal and ineffective.

Mrs. Aaron has been on the commission for four years. She will continue to serve as administrator of the Police-Community Relations Program. It was her work in police community relations that led to friction with other commissioners, who charged that she was acting independently without consulting other members. Last week, the commission severed relations with Mrs. Aaron's program.

Mrs. Aaron said she was asked to resign by James Quiett, commission chairman, but that this had not forced her resignation.

She said, rather, that she is convinced the present commission will never be effective in dealing with problems of discrimination in Marin.

"A commission supposedly dedicated to resolving the problems of discrimination has evolved into an organization which is responsible for committing those very practices of discriminatory behavior which it was created to ameliorate," she said.

"The commission's record in the field of housing, education and employment has been dismal enough by itself; it really begins to generate into pure folly when the commission discriminates against one of its own members because she has tried to be effective on the job.

"Their main criticism of my work is that it has been too 'independent'. I did not join the commission for rest and recuperation but to carry on the mandate given to me by the board of supervisors."

County supervisors will begin looking for a successor to Mrs. Aaron Tuesday.

Burdon's Burden

LONDON (UPI) —Emi records announced Friday it has refused to distribute "Black Man's Burden," a new album by rock singer Eric Burdon, because it contains lyrics considered offensive to Queen Elizabeth.

Jones Wins Novato's 'Man Of '70'

David Price Jones, 35-year-old Novato attorney, has been named Novato's "Outstanding Young Man of 1970" at the distinguished service award dinner of the Novato Jaycees.

Jones, a partner in the firm of Carrow and Jones, was nominated by the Novato Lions Club and the Novato Civic Foundation. The award was made Thursday night.

Jones played a key role last year in development of Pioneer Memorial Park, serving as president of the civic foundation during the period when $30,000 in volunteer labor and material was secured for the park project.

He also served last year as chairman of the Citizens committee Promoting Passage of City Park Bonds.

He is president of the foundation and a director of the Lions Club.

Jones, his wife, Kay, and son, Gared, live at 2 Jackson Court.

Unusual Mishap

PORTSMOUTH, England (UPI) — Beer wagon driver Rowland Barnes, 45, was killed Friday when a high-pressure beer barrel he was loading in the cellar of the naval navigational school blew up, police said. The 80-gallon tank was being filled from Barnes' beer truck outside.

Goodrich Co. Sees European Expansion

AKRON (UPI) — B.F. Goodrich Co. expects to spend an increasing share of its capital outlays for expansion in Europe in the 1970s in view of the vigorously expanding European economy, according to Ward Keener, chairman.

John Ong, president of the company's International B.F. Goodrich Division, added that his division, through tires alone, by 1980 could be contributing operating income equal to current operating income for the entire corporation. In 1969 the company reported operating income of more than $100 million.

Five Hurt In Two-Car Smash-Up

Five persons were injured last night in a two-car collision on Highway 101 near the Alto overpass when the motorists were unable to stop for commute traffic which had abruptly slowed.

The California Highway Patrol reported that a northbound vehicle driven by Gerald Fogel, 23, Daly City, was unable to stop so the driver suddenly changed lanes, causing the car to roll over. A second car, driven by Lea Anderson, 35, of San Francisco, then rammed Fogel's vehicle, the officers said.

The accident occurred at 6:45 p.m.

Fogel was treated at Marin General Hospital for possible rib injuries and a passenger in his car, Maria Maselli, 28, Daly City, was listed in good condition today at the Hospital with a possible back sprain and head injuries.

Miss Anderson was listed in fair condition today at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael with cuts. Two passengers in Miss Anderson's car — Gale Vandersluis, 18, San Francisco, and Jeremiah E. Fitzgerald, 23, San Francisco — were treated for minor cuts at Marin General.

Final Rubella Clinics Slated

The final two make-up clinics for rubella (german measles) vaccinations will be held next week in San Rafael.

Children aged 1 through 11, who have not yet received the shots, may get their vaccinations Monday or Tuesday at the County Health Department Clinic, 920 Grand Avenue.

The clinic hours are 1:30 to 4 p.m. on Monday and 4 to 7 p.m. on Tuesday.

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, said the make-up clinics are an extension of the school vaccination program held in November and December. The mass vaccination program is aimed at preventing an epidemic of rubella, which can maim and sometimes kill unborn infants.

Sweepstakes Lure New Kind Of Fan

PARIS (UPI)—For the men who market Virginia Slims ("You've come a long way, baby") cigarettes, Jan. 2 wasn't as black a day as it might have been.

True, the commercials that helped them reach sales of 5 billion cigarettes a year in little more than two years—and incense Women's Lib—were now banned from U.S. television along with all other cigarette ads. But, indicative of new trends in cigarette promotion, the Virginia Slims people were just winding up a "New Year's Eve in Paris" sweepstakes. It was part of a promotional effort to compensate for the lost television exposure that includes sponsorship of the Powder Puff Derby for women pilots, an invitational tournament series for women tennis players and an annual American Women's Opinion Poll. All are designed to appeal to women smokers, 40 per cent of the U.S. market.

"I wanted a travel sweepstakes because travel is the most exciting kind of reward. It fits the brand image—chic, sophisticated, upsale, fun," brand manager Steve S. Korson said.

Starting last August, Virginia Slims advertised the sweepstakes. At the end of October the French consul in New York put on a blindfold, reached into a drum and drew the names of winners from among almost 400,000 entries.

The 25 couples who arrived in New York City the day after Christmas to collect their trip came from 15 states. They included an unemployed machinist from Maine with his waitress wife and a California management consultant whose wife wears mink. There was a black heating engineer from New York City and a Puerto Rican nurse from Ohio, a meatcutter, a pipefitter, a tirebuilder, a golf ball packer, an air traffic controller, a truck dricer, a cocktail waitress and a professor of French literature. One winner's husband had been murdered earlier in the year. Another advanced her wedding date so she could make the trip her honeymoon.

Sweepstakes Lure New Kind Of Fan

After a night on the town in New York they flew to Paris. In the days that followed the group toured Paris, Versailles and Fontainebleau. They ate on the Eiffel Tower. The women visited the salon of Nina Ricci and met designer Gerard Pipart. The men were outfitted with rented tuxedos for New Year's Eve and the women given free hairdos. A fleet of chauffeured limousines drove them to the Lido for a New Year's Even show.

For income tax purposes all this was valued at $3,000 a couple. Korson said this was "on the low side" but refused to specify total cost because of the "competitive situation" in the cigarette industry. He put it at 10 to 20 per cent of Virginia Slims' seven-figure promotion budget for 1970.

The immediate benefit was the gratitude of the winners. Korson also claims gains in two other areas.

—The ads for the sweepstakes stimulated new trial. Thirty per cent of the smokers who entered the contest tried Virginia Slims for the first time and a "significant percentage" switched to the brand.

—Retail outlets increased their inventory.

"These drops in the bucket add up," Korson said. "You have to remember that cigarettes probably have the highest brand loyalty of any product. You know when you get a client you're going to have him for a long time."

State To Change Traffic Signs

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Motorists may have to look twice to recognize speed limit signs along California streets and highways during the next few years.

The state Public Works Department announced Monday that the signs, which historically have white numerals on a black background, will be gradually replaced during the next four years with ones having black numerals on a white background.

The department said the move is designed to meet national traffic safety standards. Public Works Director James A. Moe said the black-on-white signs would be more visible to motorists than the current signs.

Radiation Shaft Drilled

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—Nevada Test Site scientists have drilled into a shaft in the desert floor to retrieve samples of radiation from a nuclear test which leaked radioactive dust into the atmosphere Dec. 18.

Radiation from the 20 kiloton blast was detected in 13 western states and as far as the Canadian border. Six hundred atomic workers were evacuated from the rest area near Yucca Flat following the leakage.

The Atomic Energy Commission said samples recovered from the shaft might give clues to what caused the leak. Underground nuclear testing has been suspended pending the outcome of the investigation.

Chief Joe Brusatori Has Seen Changes –

SAN RAFAEL Chief of Police Joe Brusatori tells one of his patrolmen, Ronald Averiette, that he, too, once rode a motorcycle in the performance of his duty. Brusatori, who joined the San Rafael force in 1939, has seen it grow from 12 members to 54 officers and 18 civilians, and has risen from school crossing guard and patrolman to "head hog" as a plaque presented by the department's pistol team jokingly proclaims him.

Profile Of A Marinite

By C. P. McCARTHY

Things have changed considerably since San Rafael Police Chief Joseph J. Brusatori joined the force in 1939.

For one, Brusatori would not be eligible to join the department today. He stands an inch under the five-foot-nine-inch height requirement.

Brusatori, 58, is a native of San Rafael. He joined the police force in 1939 when then Chief Barney Ruschetti asked him if he wanted a job.

TODAY, A MAN seeking to be a San Rafael officer must compete with other applicants as well as pass a written exam, physical agility test, oral interview, lie detector test, psychological tests, physical exam and a background check.

Police communications have changed too, Brusatori said in an interview the other day.

In 1940, he said, police headquarters would signal officers in the city's three patrol cars by switching on red lights on top of hills or buildings in the city. The patrolmen, seeing the light, would then call headquarters from a street call box.

IN THE EVENT of an emergency, Brusatori said, San Rafael headquarters would telephone the message to the San Anselmo Police Department which would radio it to Berkeley police who would radio it to receivers in San Rafael's patrol cars.

The long distance relay was necessary because of San Rafael's somewhat-less-than-sophisticated radio equipment.

In addition to the three patrol cars, the force in 1940 had two motorcycles. Brustori, still rookie of the 12-man force, volunteered to take one of the motorcycles in 1942 — despite the fact he had no idea how to ride one.

AFTER HE HAD volunteered, he went to a San Rafael garage where he was told it would take him a week to learn how to ride one of the two-wheelers. Brusatori didn't have a week, and after one night's practice was good enough to escort a funeral the next day.

After serving as a school crossing guard, desk man, and patrolman, Brusatori was appointed juvenile officer in 1955, deputy chief in 1959 and chief in 1969 to succeed retiring Charles J. Chiesa.

Voters last November approved a city charter amendment making the position of police chief appointive instead of elective. The move had twice before been defeated by voters.

ONE OF THE differences in the proposal last year was that it had the endorsement of Brusatori. His predecessor had opposed the measure.

Brusatori said he hopes to be reappointed when his present term expires in April.

Brusatori's father came to San Rafael from Italy in 1904, and worked as a foreman in Sausalito with the Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

THE CHIEF HAS two sisters, Rose Crader of San Rafael and Mary Skillicorn of San Francisco, and a brother, Robert Brusatori of San Rafael. Another brother, former Marin Superior Court Judge N. Charles Brusatori, died in 1966.

The chief attended Short School, San Rafael Grammar School, San Rafael High School and San Francisco Law School for a year and a half.

He worked at Albert's Department Store and was a partner in the Garatti Grocery in San Rafael before joining the police department.

BRUSATORI HAS a son, John Joseph Brusatori of San Rafael; two daughters, one in Daly City and one in Oregon, and — he is quick to add — two grandsons and two granddaughters.

He and wife, Dorothy, live in the Glenwood area of San Rafael.

Over his years as a policeman, Brusatori has watched San Rafael and the police department progress.

"You used to go down the street and know 99 out of 100 people. Now you might know nine out of a hundred," he said.

THE DEPARTMENT has grown to 54 officers and 18 civilian employees since Brusatori joined the 12-man force.

Thirty years ago, he said, the biggest police problem was the family disturbance. Today the department deals with murder, rape, narcotics offenses and burglaries.

Years ago, the chief said, there were two definitions: a police officer was the man who arrested the person you wanted arrested, and a cop was the man who arrested you.

In keeping with the times, a gold-plated pig sits on a pedestal on Brusatori's desk. A plaque attached to it announces it was presented by the police department's crack pistol team to the "head hog."

FOR THE LARGE residence and grounds of Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Ramsey of San Rafael, landscape architects Sidney M. Lewin and Associates designed five separate gardens. Above is the front garden with a large expanse of lawn and a foundation planting of evergreen shrubs. At left is the entry court which features a six-foot diameter explosed aggregate fountain, set on river-washed stones which in turn are set in concrete. And below, in this side yard arrangement, the Lewin landscapers have used natural stone walls to adjust the grades around the existing trees. Slatted wood seats are cantilevered from the stone planter walls. And just the right kind of ratio between sunshine and shade has been attained to make for easy relaxation for the occupants.

NINE OF MARIN'S pioneer doctors organized the Marin County Medical Society in 1898 "to fight quackery and to uphold the high standards of the medical profession." Members are pictured here at a gathering to hear scientific papers read at Pastori's shortly after the 1906 earthquake. Dr. John H. Kuser, the society's first secretary and long-time county health officer, is fourth from left in the center row. Dr. W. F. Jones, who as San Rafael city health officer worked with Dr. Kuser in directing the fight against the 1918 influenza epidemic, is second from left in the same row. Dr. W. J. Wickham, first president of the medical society, is second from the right. The photo, copied from an original print in the collection of Farrington Jones, was presented to the Marin County Historical Society Museum in San Rafael's Boyd Park by the San Rafael General Hospital in 1959.

Marin County's Heroic Country Doctor

John H. Kuser Led The Fight Against 1918 Influenza Epidemic

(Editor's Note: This is another of the several manuscripts completed for the Marin Magazine by the late florence Donnelly, long-time Independent-Journal staff member and historian, telling of early-day events and personalities in Marin County.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

There was a time when everyone in Marin walked the streets in masks and fear, and not even the four walls of their home could give them a feeling of security.

And there was a man — a country doctor — who played the hero's role to prevent what could have been a major catastrophe in his county.

He was Dr. John Henry Kuser, physician and surgeon.

DR. KUSER WAS a man to whom patients and public reacted differently. Those who did not know him well were sometimes offended by his brusque manner, and disconcerted by his thundering in his heavy accent.

But if they listened, he was railing against stupidity and poor sanitation.

Those who knew him were aware of his efficiency, and of the kindliness that was in his heart. They respected his edicts. And they were amused by his manner.

HE WAS BORN in Zurich, Switzerland, in 1863, and was a graduate of the University of Munich in Germany, the country offering the finest in medical education at the time.

Maj. Newell Vanderbilt wrote of Dr. Kuser in a chapter for Ira B. Cross' book, "Banking in California: Financing and Empire."

According to Major Vanderbilt, himself a prominent Marinite, Dr. Kuser had traveled and studied further in Europe and Africa before coming to the United States in 1895.

UPON ARRIVAL in the U.S., he came immediately to Marin County and opened an office in Novato. Then, according to Major Vanderbilt, he took an active part in the organization of the Marin County Medical Society, completed Dec. 11, 1897, and served as its first secretary. Dr. W. J. Wickman was the president.

Dr. Kuser also proceeded to establish a hospital in Novato that was a boon to the community.

STILL ACCORDING to Major Vanderbilt, it was Dr. Kuser who had set up an emergency center to treat the 14 persons injured when riots between Chinese and Japanese workers broke out in 1897 in Novato's orchards.

In 1907, Dr. Kuser was appointed county physician, and in 1908 he coped successfully with his first crisis in that capacity, a smallpox epidemic.

In 1910 he was named division surgeon of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad. In this position he was summoned to accident scenes to minister to the injured.

BUT IT WAS during the dark days of World War I that Dr. Kuser, and many other dedicated doctors like him, were to be confronted by their most menacing challenge.

United States forces were fighting on foreign soil, and many of its young sons did not return to their native land, or did so maimed for life. And the grief caused by the war casualties was sharpened at home by the scourge of Spanish influenza that swept over the country like wildfire.

At first Marin was complacent. The Marin Journal of Oct. 17, 1918, reported: "San Rafael has been singularly free from the epidemic of Spanish influenza that is sweeping the country."

BUT DR. KUSER and his fellows in the medical profession were not complacent. They were preparing for the worst — or better yet, to stave off the worst.

Reported the Journal:

"A meeting of the county health officer, John H. Kuser, and city health officer, Dr. W. F. Jones, with representatives of the supervisors and city council was held Tuesday afternoon and precautionary measures ordered to prevent further spread of influenza.

"THE LOCAL theaters are to receive notice that until further notice no shows are to be given. A committee was appointed for the purpose of renting a building which may be used for an isolation hospital, where patients will be received. A special request has been made that the lodges and fraternal orde refrain from holding op meetings until permit given."

On Oct. 24, 1918, the newspaper carried this article:

"Precautions of every character are being taken by the city and county health authorities to prevent the spreading of the influenza epidemic. The schools and theaters have been closed; all public meetings of churches and lodges have been forbidden.

"ONLY TWO deaths have been reported, but the number of light attacks is considerable. All the available rooms in the Cottage and West End hospitals have been taken, and two patients are in the Cottage Hospital Annex. The Herzog house on Sixth Street has been rented for the emergency."

And an account on Oct. 31, 1918, read:

"The city council introduced and passed an ordinance a few days ago which fixes a penalty to be imposed upon persons who fail or refuse to wear gauze masks when appearing on the streets."

THE MASKS were made of several layers of gauze with ties at each end, and covered the mouth and nose but not the eyes.

The same newspaper article also reported:

"Dr. J. H. Kuser has commandeered the Hotel Rafael."

The famous hotel, then owned by Baron John von Schroeder and his company, was being held by the United States government as alien property. The baron had returned to his native Germany several years earlier to train German troops, and the mortgage on the hotel was being foreclosed by the University of California.

TO OPEN THE hotel for emergency hospital use, Dr. Kuser first had to get the consent of both the regents of the university and federal officials in Washington. He went about it in his usual dynamic manner.

First, he obtained the university regents' approval of his plan in quick order. Then he directed Dist. Atty.

THE COTTAGE HOSPITAL was founded in San Rafael in 1905 by three doctors and served the community for 61 years through good times and bad, including the influenza epidemic of 1918. John K. Taylor bought the institution at 1120 Nye Street from Mrs. Joseph Dias in 1946 and changed its name to San Rafael General Hospital. It was being operated by a non-profit foundation at the time it closed its doors in May of 1966. Today it is the Cottage Residential Care Center, thus recovering a part of its old name.

How Marin Fought Back Against Influenza Epidemic

Health Officers Mobilized Their County

Edward I. Butler to send a telegram to the alien property custodian in Washington asking for authority as county health officer to make emergency use of the hotel.

That same day, word was received from Washington that permission was granted. And by 4 p.m., Dr. Kuser had the water, gas and electric service resumed to the hotel, and the first patients were being admitted.

THE WISDOM of his move was verified by an article in the Journal a short time later that reported:

"Harold Hamilton worked heroically at Hotel Rafael one night last week. With two women nurses, he was in charge of 30 patients, many of them delirious. The county is taking care of 23 patients."

Many Marin people worked as volunteers during the epidemic. A number of the ill were treated in their homes, as the near disaster taxed the facilities of the hospitals, both regular and temporary.

THERE WERE many nights when Dr. Kuser, his colleagues and their volunteers worked without rest.

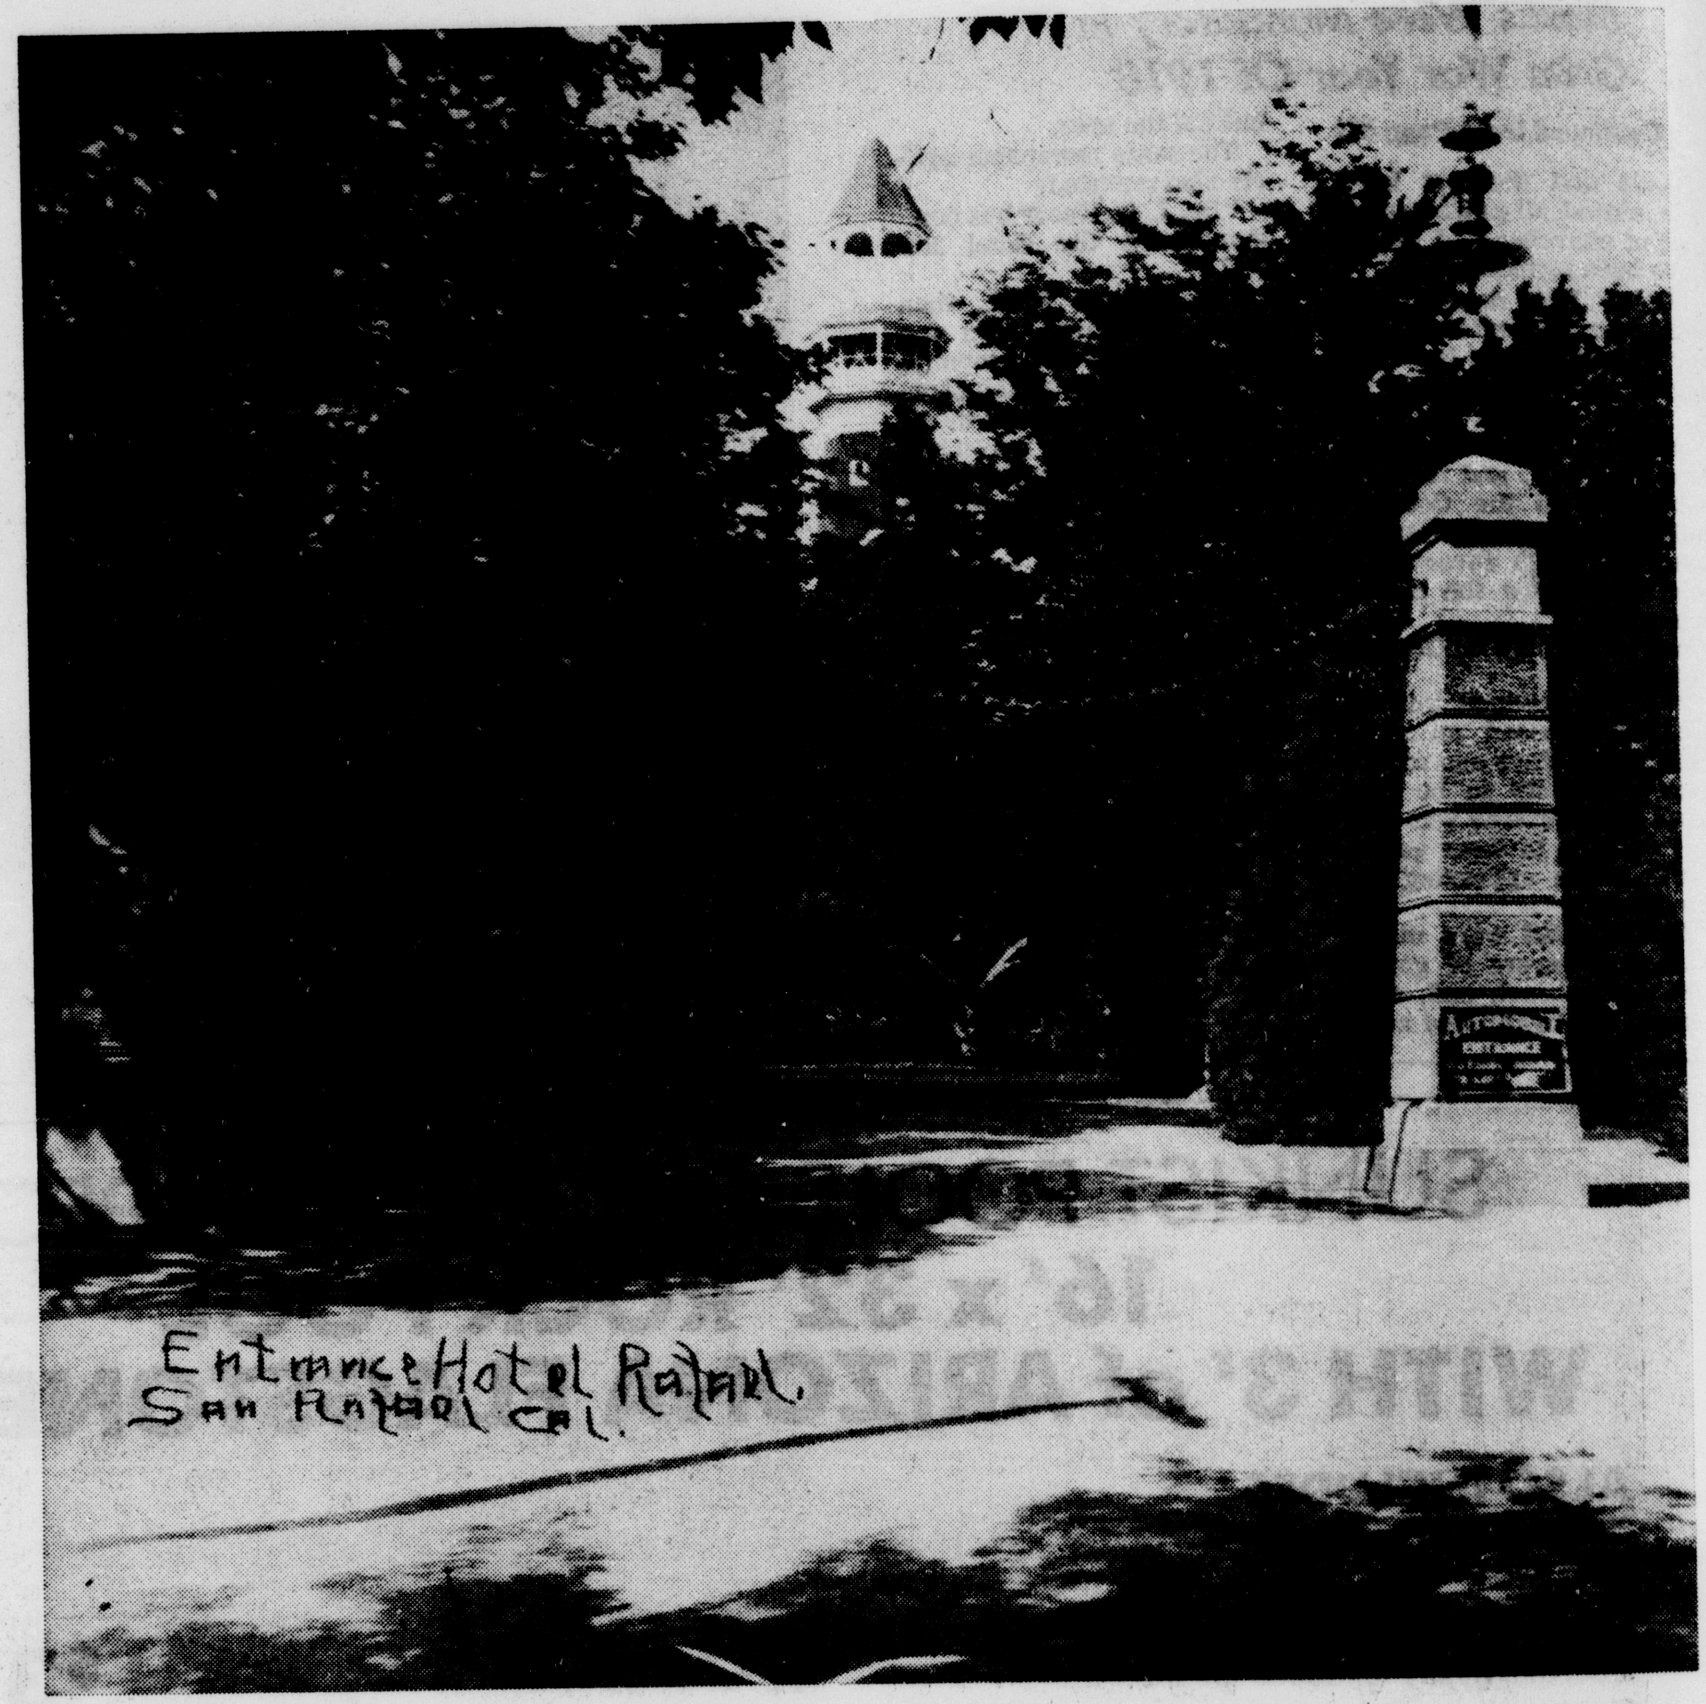
How many deathers resulted in Marin from the epidemic is not known. For the disease also had its deadly after-effects. People believed to be recovering would succumb suddenly to heart attacks. Others would be stricken with pneumonia and become fatalities.

With all the work and tragedy about him, Dr. Kuser had little time to worry about his son, Walter, who was serving with the United States Army.

ON NOV. 11, 1918, World War I ended. But its scars and those of the influenza epidemic remained for some time.

Dr. Kuser continued to serve his county as health officer.

Major Vanderbilt wrote that when the schooner Hanalai went aground and broke up on Duxbury Reef, it was Dr. Kuser who succeeded in resuscitating a number of those pulled from the water.



THE HOTEL RAFAEL, San Rafael's widely known luxury hotel, was pressed into emergency use as a hospital by Marin County Health Officer John Henry Kuser during the devastating influenza epidemic of 1918. The hotel, seen here through its front entrance at what is now Belle Avenue and San Rafael Drive, was built in the late 19th Century and challenged the Hotel Del Monte with its accommodations and spacious, landscaped grounds.

HE SERVED on the staffs of the Cottage Hospital and later the Ross General Hospital. And he remained something of a character in his community, sometimes feared for his tongue, respected for his knowledge and often beloved for his humanity.

He could become exasperated when a call for his help was delayed until the patient was near death. A typical remark would be: "Do you expect me to pump life back into them?"

And he was offended by pollution of the water and the air and by sanitary lacks.

A FRIEND riding with him once remarked: "How good is that smell from the hay — so salty and fresh!"

The doctor grunted in reply: "Humph! Nothing but decaying sewage."

The long and useful career of Dr. Kuser ended with his death Aug. 27, 1934. Newspapers in Marin and San francisco carried long obituaries. One of the most eloquent was printed in the Marin Journal on Aug. 30, 1934.

IT WAS WRITTEN by Sidney H. Small, widely-read San Rafael author and journalist who was a regular contributor to Saturday Evening Post and other national publications.

Small, who had been reared in San Rafael and knew the doctor well, wrote:

"In the dead hours of the night, before dawn, a good many years ago, a horse, drawing a light buggy, halted to let a train roar past. The driver slept, reins slack in his hands. The night had been spent caring for the sick,, and sleep had come because his tired eyes refused to stay open.

"THE MAN WAS John Henry Kuser, M.D., and he was being true to his oath as a physician.

"That he was alwys true to it is more important than who he was, where he was born or educated. Never once in his full life did he refuse to aid the sick; his charities were of the great kind, and he was unstinting of giving himself and his experience. He may have been the doctor of the rich; assuredly, he was the physician of the poor.

"He knew every inch of Marin from the days when his horse plodded before him; from the nights when the automobile lights failed and, in blackness, he drove over the old grade, lest a man die. In those days there was barley room enough for one machine on the road.

"HE WAS ON the beach when the Hanalai broke her back on the reef. The smallpox epidemic found him ready and waiting.

"How many babies there are, whose first touch — from blunt, kind fingers — was his, none of us will know. How many times his gruff voice said, 'Now don't cry,' cannot be counted. Of those occasions when his skill was unavailing, we will not know either.

"But we know that those who were left behind were the better for the love he held.

"HE WAS A good friend, but he was also a good enemy. Few men hated hypocrisy more than he, because he, himself, was so honest.

"His life had run out, but clear to the end he had progressed. Just as he stepped from horse and buggy to old-fashioned automobile, and finally to the finest of American cars, so he advanced in his science. He was always learning, and, now that he is gone, we will learn what we must miss. . .

"A friend of his said on

The Saga Of A Pioneer Marin Doctor

the morning he was dying, 'He was a good man, a damn good man,' and he was! He was true to his oath: 'With purity and holiness I will pass my life and practice my art!' He did. He cared for the sick. . .good men and women, but also evil ones, tricky ones and deceitful ones, whom well he despised, but whom sick were entitled to everything he had to give — and this was much.

"HE LIKED A good dinner, a good joke, a good game. He had time for few of these things.

"He was a fighter. In the end, as he knew, he lost his own battle with his old enemy, Death. But even Death can claim little victory, having been beaten so many times before.

"Dr. Kuser died as he had seen others die, in the cold morning, just before the sun rose for another day. It was rather strange. The sun did rise on Monday for one brief moment. Then, for the first time in many months, the skies darkened again, as if in grief. A good man was gone.

"I THINK THAT even God must feel there will be a little more pain on earth, now that he is gone. Certainly, in the hearts of many there is anguish."

Small's article was a two-column story on the editorial page. Next to it was the editorial, written by E. L. Kynoch.

It said, in part: "Early Monday morning the hand of death was laid gently upon Dr. John H. Kuser. The entire county mourns his passing and grieves with the close friends and associates of the veteran physician. . . .

"BUT DR. KUSER, faithful and constant to the call of duty, ethical and professional among his colleagues, a splendid and upright citizen, is dead. The community and the state have lost a good man, a good physician, and a great man."

And in recognition of the depth of that loss, flags at the Marin County Courthouse, at San Rafael City Hall and at other public buildings in the county were lowered to half-staff to honor the memory of Dr. John H. Kuser, public official, physician to many and friend to all.

Marin Artist Bomberger Has An Unusual Specialty

By DON KEOWN

Bruce Bomberger, successful magazine illustrator turned fine arts painter, had completed a canvas depicting an old, abandoned house in a ghost town.

But he wasn't quite satisfied. "There just wasn't enough there," he says.

So almost by impulse, he added some quail to the foreground in front of the house.

Bomberger was pleased with the visual interest the birds added to his painting. And he was also reminded of the enjoyment he had received during his years as a commercial artist when he had been called upon from time to time to paint or sketch birds, particularly in his work for Weyerhaeuser Lumber.

SINCE THEN, Audubon Society member Bomberger has painted almost exclusively bird pictures.

Over that period of two years, he figures he has done something like 100 such paintings, most of them in oil.

The success of that work was demonstrated during a three-month show at the popular Nut Tree restaurant at Vacaville that ended earlier this month.

Of 50 Bomberger bird paintings on display, 41 were sold.

BOMBERGER ALSO designed his own poster to publicize and to complement the show, alive with colorful, exotic birds. At 50 cents each, 5,000 of those posters were sold during the Nut Tree Show.

Born and reared in Modesto, Bomberger selected a career in art early.

"I began drawing and painting when I was about 8 or 9," he says, "and in grammar school I was already set upon becoming a commercial artist. The term — commercial artist — fascinated me."

IN PREPARATION for a career as an illustrator Bomberger took a year of training at the California College of Arts and Crafts in Berkeley and another year at the Art Center School in Los Angeles, both on scholarships.

He then began his commercial artist and illustrator career that was to span 33 years and was to make him one of the most successful practitioners in his field.

His illustrations, both editorial and advertising, appeared in such publications as Saturday Evening Post, True, Good Housekeeping, Reader's Digest, Cosmopolitan and Argosy magazines regularly.

WORKING AS a free-lancer, Bomberger became known especially as an illustrator for stories and articles.

Much of his success was unquestionably the result of talent. "But I also hit it lucky," admits Bomberger. "I was working in what was really the heyday for my realistic kind of illustrations — the 1940s and 1950s. That was the golden era for illustrators."

Bomberger has many fond memories of those years, and particularly of the assignments that took him on field trips to assure the realism of his work.

THERE WAS, for instance, a decade ago, the call to do the illustrations for an eight-part serial by Clarence Budington Kelland in the Saturday Evening Post that was set in Arizona's ghost towns.

Starting from Phoenix, Bomberger drove to Las Vegas, stopping to photograph all the old ghost and mining towns along or near his route.

IN HIS studio in the Mills Building on San Rafael's Fifth Avenue, Bruce Bomberger works on one of his oil canvases capturing the colors and patterns of birds. For the past two years, Bomberger, a successful illustrator for magazines turned fine arts painter, has specialized almost exclusively in paintings of birds. An Audubon Society member, he says he has long been fascinated by the bird world.

TWO WOOD DUCKS, male and female, with their colorful plumage, are examples of why artist Bruce Bomberger finds a special satisfaction in painting pictures of birds. Apparently, the public shares his interest, for the canvases have been selling at a lively pace.

Bird Paintings by Bruce Bomberger at Nut Tree, California September 16, 1970 thru January 4, 1971

SAN RAFAEL artist Bruce Bomberger did the poster at left to publicize the showing of his bird paintings at the popular Nut Tree inn at Vacaville. His show ran for three and a half months, and proved both an artistic and a commercial success. Of the 50 paintings exhibited, 41 were sold. In addition, some 5,000 copies of the colorful poster were also sold. Bomberger plans another show of animal as well as bird paintings for the Nut Tree at an as yet undesignated date. In the meantime, his bird canvases will be shown in March at the Ecology Center and Sunflower Bookstore in San Francisco.

sent Bomberger off to Paris to photograph its setting — the Pere la Chaise Cemetery.

"I ALWAYS FOUND it more interesting and my work more convincing if I could work from such first-hand knowledge of my subject," the artist says.

But, adds Bomberger, "after 33 years of the pressures of editorial and advertising illustration work, I got to the position where I could afford to give it up and become a full-time fine arts painter."

A trip around the world that he and his wife, Dania, made three years ago provided him with an opportunity to make the break.

WHEN HE returned, he began painting for galleries.

into my lap. But I no longer go out and seek them."

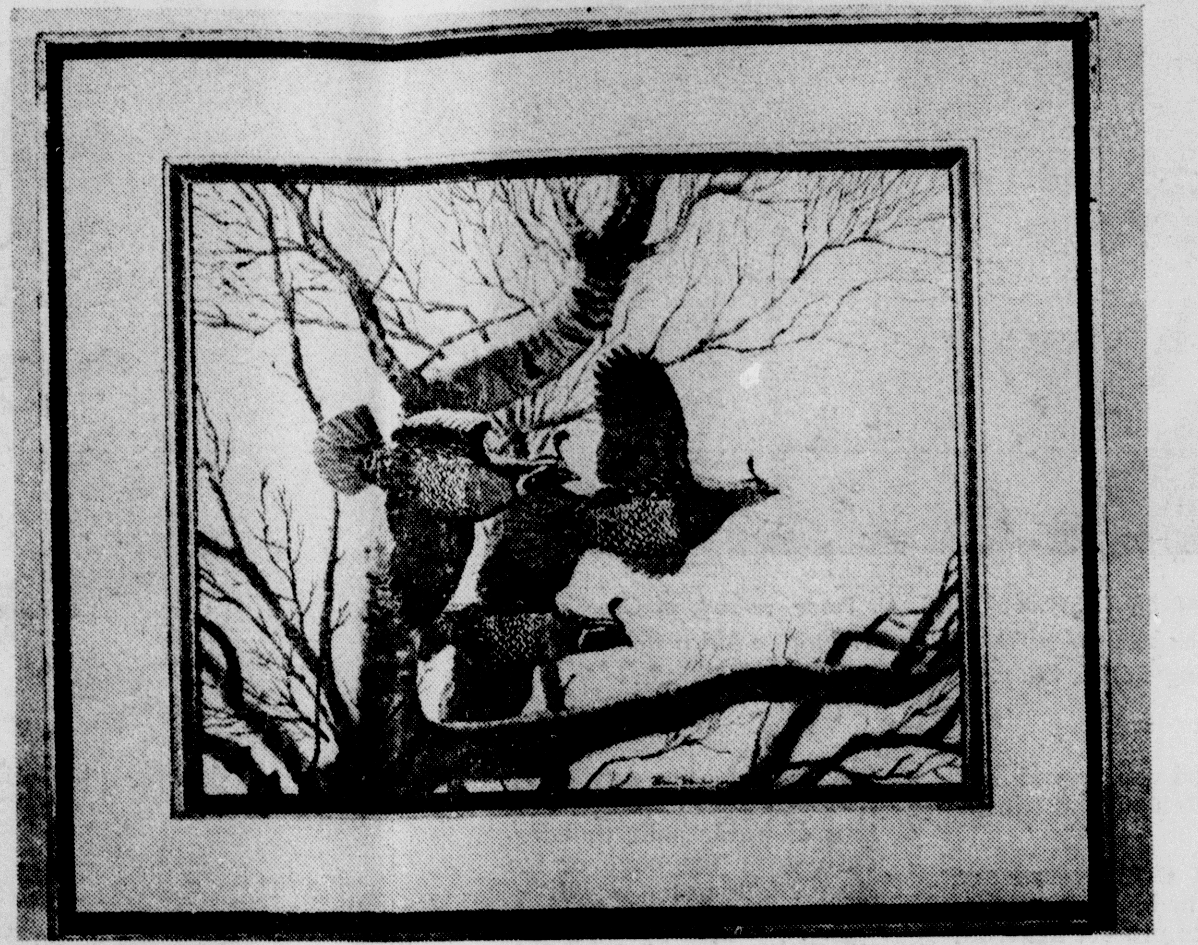
Does this new career provide him with more satisfaction and enjoyment than did the earlier, commercial one?

"Oh, yes," he answers quickly. "I think we all look forward to the day when we can work without pressure. Now I can choose my own subjects and work on my own time schedule."

ALONG WITH his bird paintings, Bomberger has done a number of protraits.

His subjects have included Mr. and Mrs. Barnaby Falvey, "and I have two new commissions now."

He has also had commissions for what is called "trompe l'oeil" paintings — "the realism that fools the eyes." For instance, the illusion that you are seeing through the door of a mansion into the artifact-laden shelves behind it.



A COVEY OF California quail provide the colorful and eye-pleasing subject for this Bruce Bomberger canvas, one of 100 bird paintings he has completed in the past two years.

BUT BIRDS are Bomberger's prime painting interest and have been for some time.

"I have always liked birds," he says. "And their patterns and colors are challenging to the painter."

He strives for realism, yet a decorative design. "As a rule I pick one of the more colorful birds," he says, "and if not, I try to work color into my setting."

GENERALLY HE works from a combination of photographs he has taken in zoos and pictures in books. Sometimes he sketches and photographs waterfowl in the San Rafael Canal upon which the Bomberger home is located.

A bird painting may take from one day to a week of work, while a portrait requires at least a week.

Bomberger's bird art will be shown during the month of March at the Ecology Center and Sunflower Bookstore, 710 Montgomery Street, San Francisco.

His next show at the Nut Tree, he says, will be a display of both bird and animal paintings.

"THE ANIMAL work will give me a little change of pace," he says.

No date for that show has been set as yet.

But the Nut Tree, he says, is a wonderful showcase for an artist's work. The paintings are displayed at the entrance to the dining room. "And the traffic is tremendous."

Mrs. Bomberger, also an artist painting under the name Dania Anixter, will be having a showing of her work starting Feb. 1 in the Coffee Tree, just across the highway from the Nut Tree.

"SHE PAINTS in our home, while I have a studio on Fifth Avenue," says Bomberger.

Which of them sells the most of their work?

"I do," smiles Bomberger, but adds: "But she really doesn't care all that much about how many she sells."

WHILE BY FAR the most of the paintings done by artist Bruce Bomberger in the past two years have been pictures of birds, he has also accepted commissions to do portraits. Here Mrs. Bomberger, who is herself an artist, working under the name Dania Anixter, watches as her husband puts some of his distinctive touches to a sketch.

REDWING BLACKBIRDS

A Marinite In Africa Visits Victoria Falls

By CHARLES T. STOFFER

The first impression of Bulawayo, Rhodesia, is that the city's setting and buildings look very much like California's Fresno.

But there are differences.

For one thing, the streets are about 100 feet wide. And only about one-fourth of the population is of European origin.

I was in Bulawayo after a 470-mile flight from Johannesburg, South Africa, the first leg of a long-desired trip to Victoria Falls and Wankie Park.

CUSTOMS AND immigration processing had been brief and pleasant, no visa being required from USA passport holders.

I received excellent and courteous assistance, too, from the Tourist and Publicity Bureau. When I informed them I had been unable to obtain a reservation to Johannesburg for the Victoria Falls Hotel, they telephoned the Falls and obtained a confirmed reservation for me.

In Bulawayo I visited a jeweler, hoping to see Rhodesia's famed Sandawana Emeralds and was shown three of them. They are more precious than diamonds, and practically the entire output is consigned to Paris.

THE NATIONAL Museum contains the world's largest known mounted elephant, standing 11 feet seven inches high at the shoulders.

Despite the embargo against Rhodesian trade, Bulawayo's stores appeared well-stocked, and cars were plentiful.

I left on the evening train for Victoria Falls, 273 miles to the northwest. A fine dinner was served enroute at a cost of $1.30 in U.S. money. And I arose early for breakfast, since the railway constitutes one of the boundaries of the huge 5,400-square-mile Wankie animal sanctuary, home of more than 50 species of the larger types of wild animals including more than 7,000 elephants.

THE RAILROAD station at Victoria Falls is only 50 yards from the hotel, and the roar of the Falls, although a mile away, was very distinct.

A booking was made for a boat trip up the mighty Zambesi River that required three hours. About 50 passengers were on board, and we passed scores of hippos, most of them submerged in the water under the overhanging trees along the banks.

We docked and went ashore at an upstream island where the boat crew served tea and cookies in as small open air pavilion. Troops of monkeys appeared from every direction as the food was served, begging, snatching and squealing.

AFTER OUR return and lunch at the hotel, I rented a raincoat to protect me from the spray and proceeded along a well-marked path to the Falls. A 10-minute walk brought me to the statue of explorer-preacher David Livingstone, erected at the location where on 1855 he became the first European to see the spectacular sight that remains one of the most treasured natural wonders of our world.

The 1,860-yard-wide Zambesi River becomes a curtain of roaring water as it suddenly plunges into a chasm in a fall of nearly 350 feet. During the April-May flood stage, 75 million gallons of water pour thunderously over the edge of the largest falls in the world.

A VOLUME OF water sufficient to meet the domestic requirements of Marin County from Hamilton Air Force Base to the Golden Gate for an entire day pours over Victoria Falls every 30 seconds.

Like Niagara, it is located on a national boundary. But there all similarity ends.

Nothing man-made, not even guard rails, have been allowed to mar the grandeur of Victoria Falls. Surfaced walks permit visitors

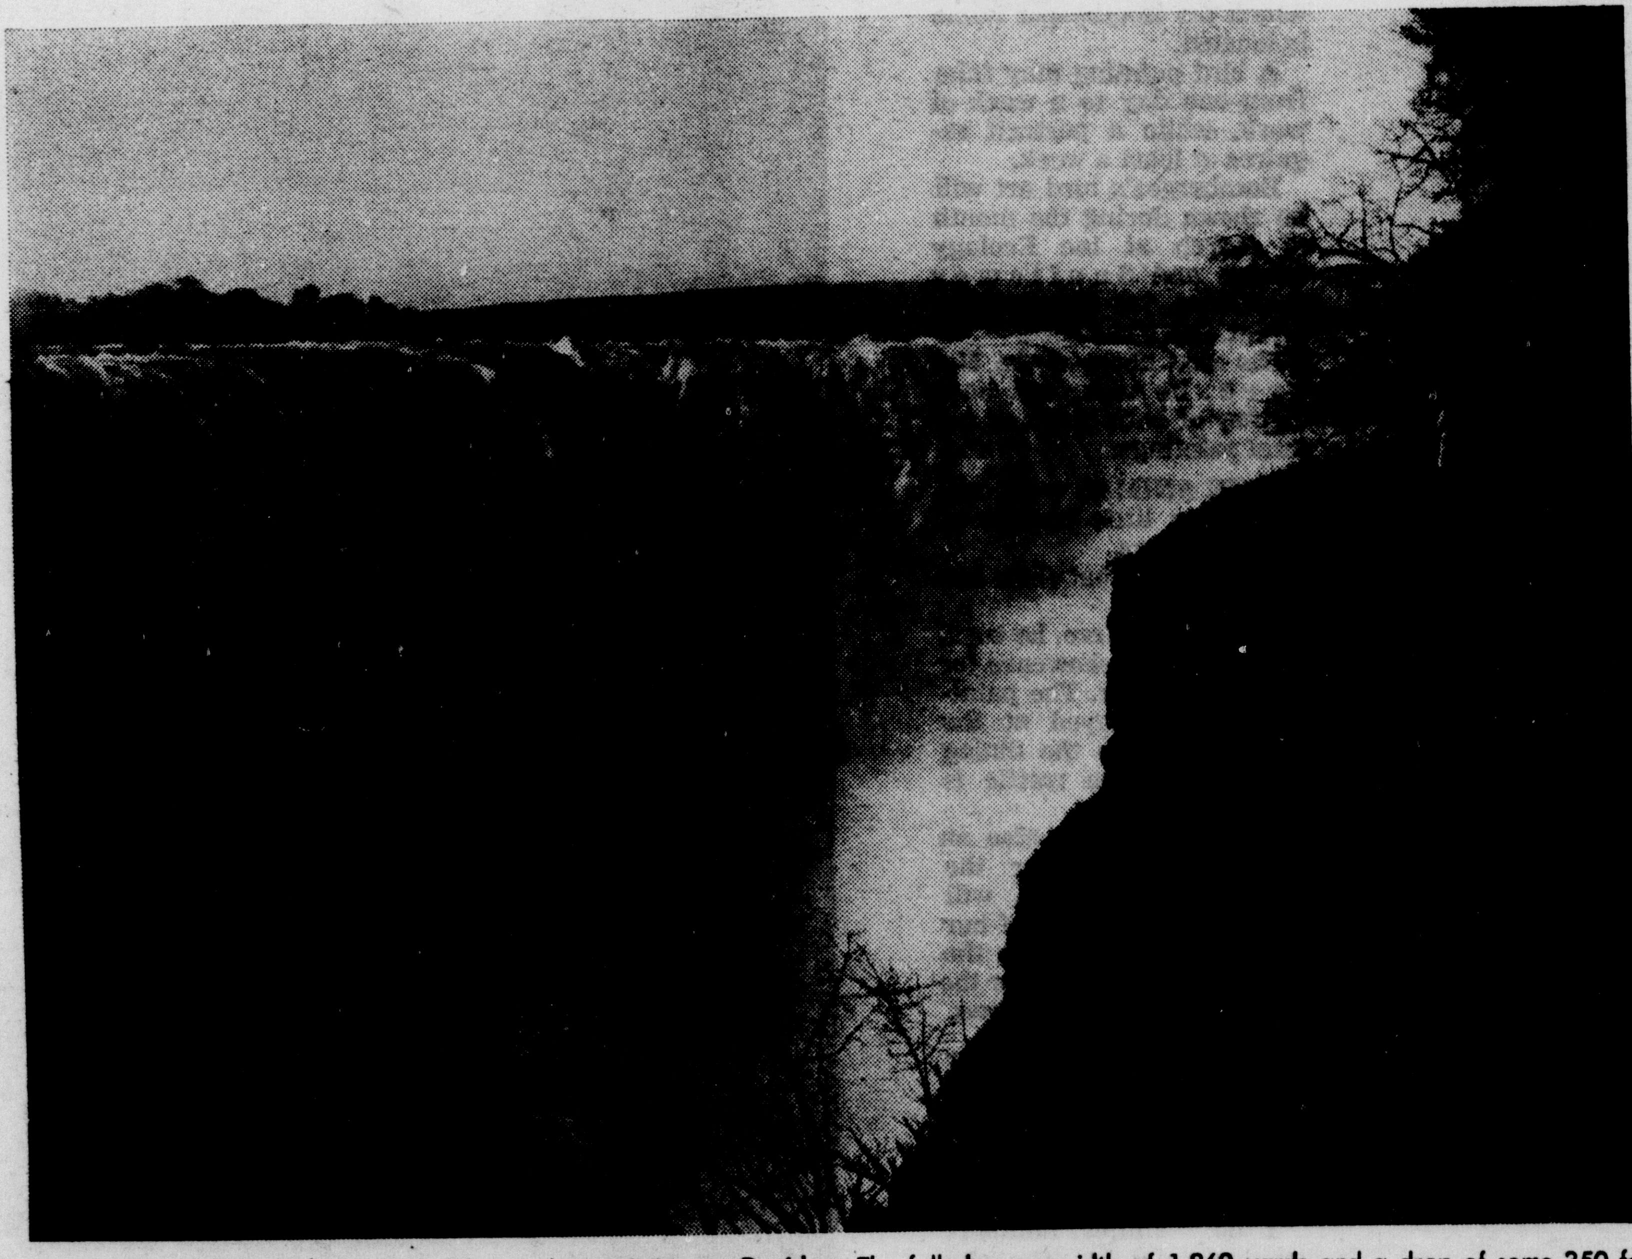
COL. CHARLES T. STOFFER, U.S. Air Force, retired, of Greenbrae, continues his series of articles on his 1970 trip to Africa with the story on these pages of his visit to Rhodesia and to Victoria Falls.



THE VICTORIA FALLS were discovered by explorer-missionary David Livingstone in 1855, and they remain one of the wonders of the world. The falls have a width of 1,860 yards and a drop of some 350 feet, and the spray rises to more than 200 feet. Here the main falls are viewed from the rain forest.

to walk along the opposite side of the one-eighth-mile wide chasm, as clouds of vapor sprays embedded with brilliant rainbows created by the sunshine make the view a matchless phenomenon.

THE FALLS TODAY are still unspoiled, preserved just as Livingstone saw them more than a century ago from the rain-forested ledge. It remains a perfect example of environmental control.

The famous hotel with its colonial style has excellent food and other services at about one-third less than the cost at leading American tourist centers.

The next day I took a flight in a four-place plane over the Falls, its adjacent game refuge and the northern part of the Wankie game preserve. Viewed from the air, the herds of animals seemed quite tame compared to the more stirring sight of big game roaming freely over the African veldt as seen from the ground.

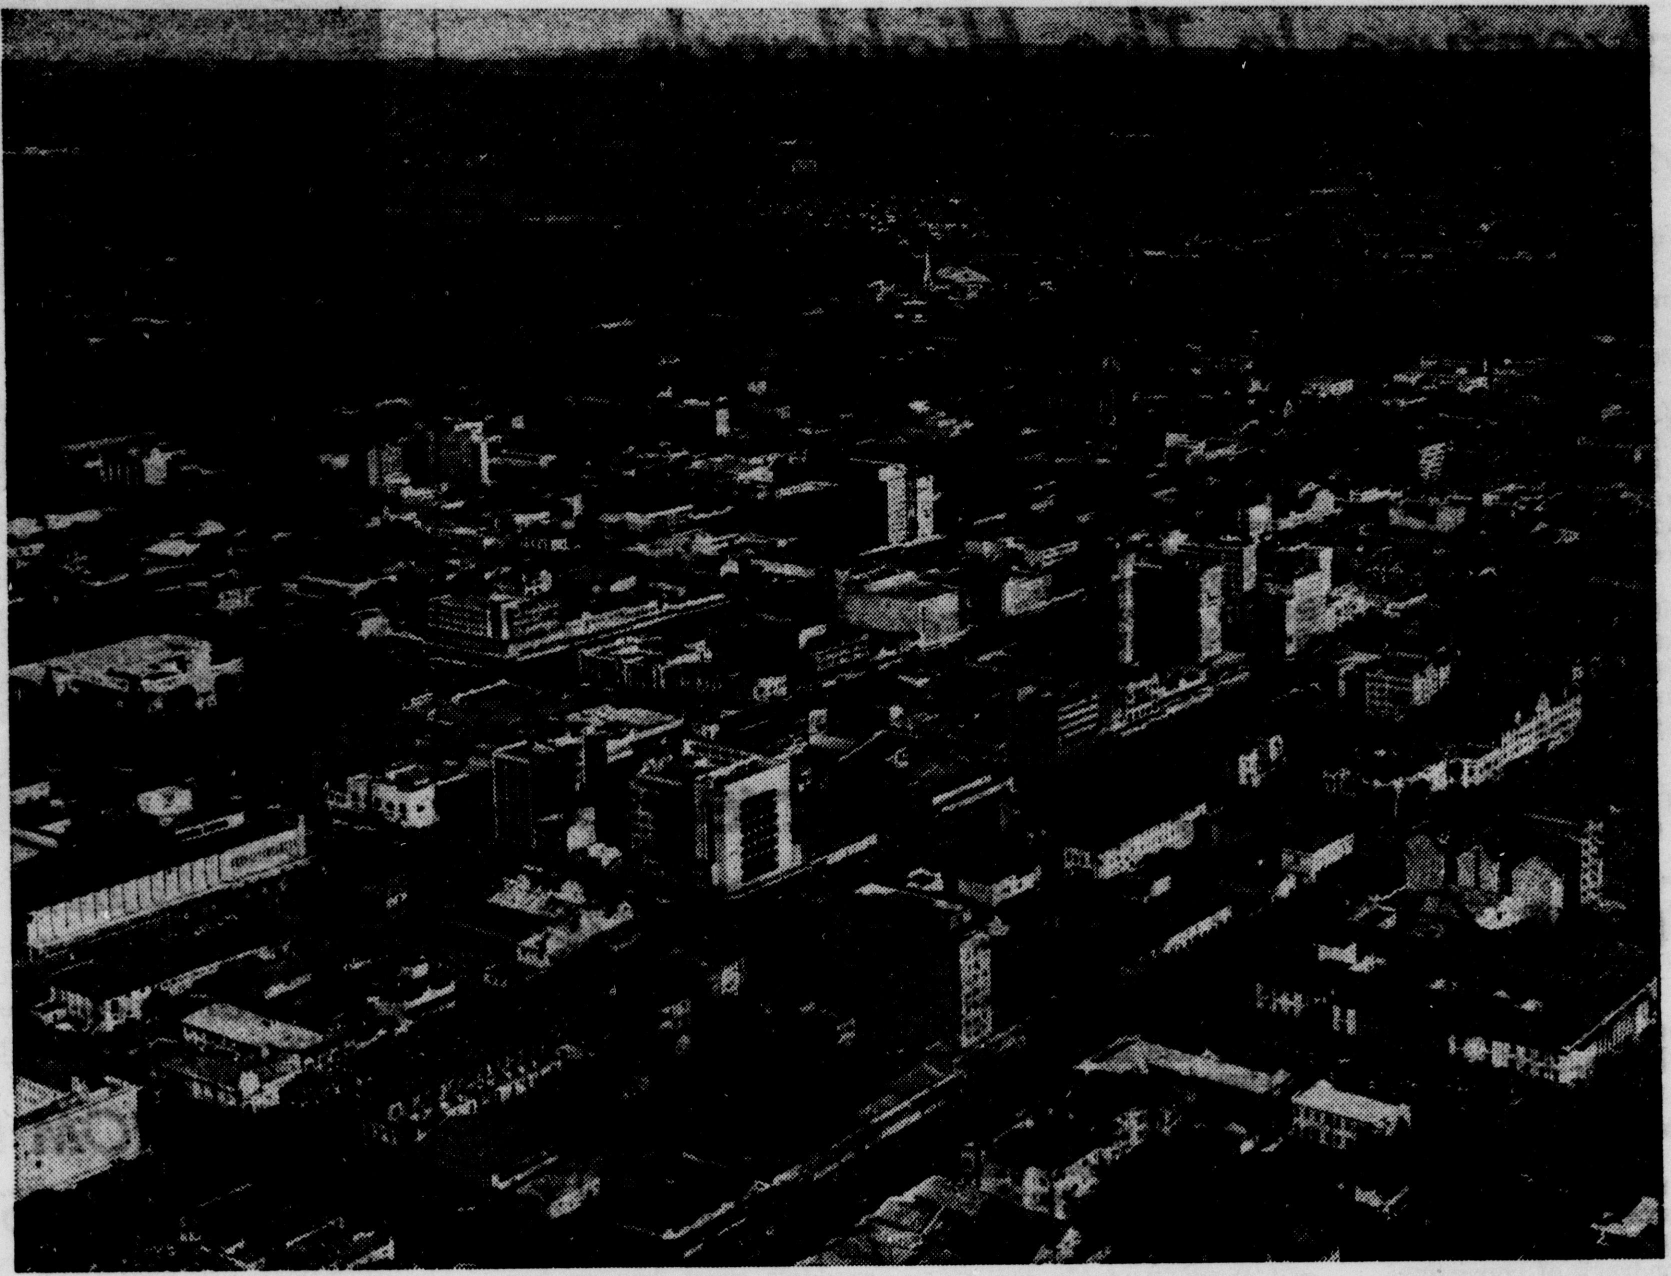
IN RHODESIA, 30,000 square miles, or roughly one-fifth of the country, has been set aside for wildlife management. The objective is to study and conserve one of nature's greatest remaining concentrations of wild animal life.

Later, flying south again, I visited booming Pretoria, the administrative capital of Soupth Africa, before heading for Marin County and home, 10,500 miles distant.

At Nairobi, our first northbound stop, we learned that the entire flight group scheduled to relieve our crew there had been involved in a serious road accident enroute to the airport. The captain had been killed and the others hurt.

WE WERE TAKEN to a Nairobi hotel for the night while our crew from Pretoria took its required rest break, before resuming our flight the next day.

In crystal clear weather we crisscrossed the Nile above Khartoum. Later our captain directed our attention to the huge new high dam at Aswan. We left Africa at El Alamein, and in less than an hour we were on the ground at Athens.



THE INDUSTRIAL CENTER of Bulawayo is Rhodesia's second largest city, and its buildings and setting reminded Col. Charles T. Stoffer of Fresno, Calif. The spire and structures of the Central African Trade Fair site appear here on the edge of the commercial district.

Adventure In The Highlands By Writer In Love With Region

THE HOUSE OF THE DEER by D. E. Stevenson; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 208 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

D. E. Stevenson has written this sequel to her "Gerald and Elizabeth" with all the competence she has accumulated in more than 40 years of writing novels.

Gerald Burleigh-Brown vacations in a remote and primitive old house in the Scottish Highlands, where he makes friends with villagers and shares their interests and activities including hunting in the deer forest. There's a kidnapping, a rescue and other adventures. Miss Stevenson tells her story crisply and cleanly, yet there is a touch of old-fashionedness, in the manner of Sir Walter Scott, in her narration that seems more a virtue than a fault.

But Miss Stevenson's real forte is her ability to recreate Highlands settings. She lives there, and obviously loves the region and understands its people.

Just listen to Sir Walter MacCallum describe the "large property" owned by Gregor MacAslan:

"Yes, a deer-forest, grouse moors, a sea loch with an island in the middle of it, pine woods, hills with sheep, and a few stony fields of hay, oats, turnips and potatoes. Last but not least, a comfortable house on the shores of the loch."

Makes you want to go there, doesn't it? And the best thing about it is that if one went, he would be able to find just such a place.

Faith Baldwin Again Recreates Life In A New England Village

ANY VILLAGE by Faith Baldwin; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 254 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

With more than 100 books to her credit, Faith Baldwin remains an oasis of calm and a bedrock of consistency in a literary world abuzz with novelists too often frenetic and erratic.

"Any Village" is typical Baldwin, a simply and effectively told novel dealing with human relationships.

For her setting she returns to the New England town of Little Oxford where her "Station Wagon Set" took place three decades ago. Dr. Bing Irvington is still there. And his son is also a practicing physician. Their involvement in the affairs of the villagers, and young Dr. Ben Irvington's romance with pretty Amy Meredith provide Miss Baldwin with her plot.

Some may find Miss Baldwin's novels a bit too mild and a touch old-fashioned for this day and age. But Faith Baldwin fans, and they are many, wouldn't want her or her stories any other way. And they will be delighted by "Any Village."

The Flaws In Freud's Thinking

THE CRISIS OF PSYCHOANALYSIS by Erich Fromm; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 161 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Shirley Luthman.

Dr. Fromm's discussions of the limitations of psychoanalytic theory and practice constitute a fresh viewpoint long overdue.

Freud's genius cannot be disputed. His deity is another matter.

Fromm states, "The theory of the unconscious is one of the most decisive steps in our knowledge of man and in our capacity to distinguish appearance from reality in human behavior. As a consequence, it opened up a new dimension of honesty and thereby created a new basis for critical thinking."

True. The difficulty occurred when proponents of Freud's theories responded to the criticism of other professionals by clinging rigidly to the theories and to each other. It is ironic that their process of opening themselves to change and new ideas was sacrificed to the idea itself. That substitution has held back the whole field of the study of human behavior for 30 years.

The other flaw in psychoanalytic theory was the assumption on the part of Freud and his followers that he had the "whole truth." In the study of human behavior, such an assumption is always suspect. Human behavior and development is too complex and changeable for any one theory to explain.

For example, if we make the accrual of knowledge about human development and behavior analogous to erecting a building, then psychoanalytic theory would be one cornerstone, of inestimable value, but not the whole foundation.

Fromm's discussion of the variations on Freud's theories by Marcuse, Hartmann, Sullivan and others, is extremely perceptive and lucid, therefore "must" reading for professionals in the field.

Dr. Fromm makes his most important point in the first two chapters, as I've already discussed. The rest of the book is anti-climactic. He discusses the areas of distortion he sees in psycho-analytic theory, such as his views on the female as a castrated male and the child as a "blank sheet" which the parents fill in. There is obvious evidence in current research and exploration that both these theories are erroneous.

These discussions are interesting and worth reading, but somehow don't seem to correlate with the major thesis of the book, so aptly stated at the end of chapter one — "In spite of some disquieting symptoms, however, psychoanalysis is far from dead. But its death can be predicted, unless it changes its direction."

The Shame Of California: Persecution Of Orientals

EAST MEETS WEST by George Goldberg; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 126 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

Oriental people have become so well accepted in California that it is difficult to realize how intensely they were persecuted because of racial prejudice a few years ago.

"East Meets West" is sub-titled "The Story of the Chinese and Japanese in California." As such, it is a story of repression which should remind any California reader that he had best think twice before pointing fingers at Southern whites for their treatment of the Negro. The record is no less shameful because the prejudice has finally almost vanished.

George Goldberg's account of the treatment of the Chinese, first on the scene in the Golden State, is sketchy. He is at his best in his recitation of the Japanese oppression during World War II, which he appears to have researched thoroughly.

And this should serve as a reminder of how bigotry and war hysteria can combine to blind a people to humanity.

The 'Old Redhead' Tells About His Years Behind The 'Mike'

By DON KEOWN

For nearly half a century now the ubiquitous play-by-play sports broadcaster has been almost as much a part of the American scene as apple pie and air pollution, sometimes as pleasure-giving as the former and sometimes as irritating as the latter.

Like any other profession institutionalized by society, sports broadcasting has developed its elite.

Walter (Red) Barber who began working behind a mike 40 years ago ranks high among the favored. He has known all of radio's and television's "greats," worked with most of them and feuded with a few.

His experience and a knack for writing that he now demonstrates as a sports columnist fits him ideally for the task of writing a book about the broadcasting vocation he also continues to practice on a more localized scale for a Miami station.

Our reaction to "The Broadcasters" was one of slight disappointment. The book is by no means uninteresting. It is just not as exhilarating as we expected it to be, given the author, his background and his subject.

It is perhaps a bit too much of an "in" book, although Barber's title quite honestly announces his subject. It is not the usual book about the sports events he has seen and the sports figures he has known; it is about the business of sports broadcasting and the men who make their living at it. In this book, the men on the field and arena are subordinate to the men on the booth and pressbox.

THE BROADCASTERS by Red Barber; Dial, 271 pages, $6.95.

But in a profession torn between journalism and showmanship, Barber has always opted for the former. In a field often rent with near-hysteria, his has always been the voice of calm and reliability, telling us crisply, expertly what has happened on the field and not his personal opinions of it. He has eschewed partisanship for objectivity.

It is not surprising, then, that in deciding to write a book about sports broadcasters, Red Barber should do pretty much exactly that, seldom straying from his central subject.

He gives us a little history of radio in general and of sports announcing in particular. He gives us some of his early biography, a boyhood spent in Florida, and his own introduction to radio in 1929 while a student at the University of Florida at Gainesville on the school station WRUF.

He tells us in detail of the years he spent first as a radio and then as a radio- and television broadcaster in Cincinnati, New York and hopping about the country for the networks.

And finally, he closes his book with a bit of advice for the young man who might be considering a career in sports broadcasting. Paramount is imperturbability as delineated in a quotation borrowed from Rudyard Kipling: "To keep your head when all about you are losing theirs." But there are also instructions on scoring, suggestions on interviewing, etc.

And always, Barber, the complete professional, stresses preparation before the game, a factor, he indicates, often neglected by the new crop of broadcasters, especially the ex-athletes who start at the top on the basis of their names and reputations.

Characters like Graham McNamee, Ted Husing, Bill Munday, Bill Slater, Harry Wismer, Bill Stern, Bob Elson, Mel Allen, Tom Manning, Ty Tyson, Curt Gowdy, Clem McCarthy, Jim Woods, Phil Rizzuto, Vince Scully, Russ Hodges, Arch McDonald, Dizzy Dean enliven the pages of "The Broadcasters," so that it cannot be considered dull.

And in his book, as on the air, Barber is scrupulously honest in his comments and evaluations of his colleagues.

Ted Husing fares the worst. Barber's analysis of Husing's prima donna tendencies is devastating, although the value of his pioneering work as a sports announcer is not denigrated. Stern and Slater receive some rough treatment, too. And so do most of the ex-baseball and former football greats who have crowded into the field, generally, Barber feels, without proper qualifications.

Joe Garagiola is a disruptive influence in the booth, "so self-centered I don't think he ever once paused to consider anybody else."

The expert who played the game now steals the thunder from the professional broadcaster whose personality and knowledge once made him the key figure. The broadcast has been depersonalized, and to Barber that is regrettable.

Some other Barber opinions:

Graham McNamee "was the greatest sports announcer we ever had." Working without the aids, assistants and comforts of today's broadcasters, he covered an amazing variety of sports and made them all come alive for his listeners. (Remembering as a boy listening to the great McNamee on football or baseball and the sense of the dramatic and excitement he generated inside us, we agree wholeheartedly.)

Curt Gowdy is the greatest television sports announcer today (we like Chris Schenkel), while Vince Scully is the best on radio. And Waite Hoyt was the best of the baseball players who transferred to the mike.

The best three-man team? Barber, never one to do the modesty bit, names them forthrightly: "Mel Allen, Jim Woods and Red Barber." Their closest challengers? "Connie Desmond, Vince Scully and Red Barber."

For Barber, sports broadcasting is strictly a business, to be approached and dealt with seriously and responsibly. As he pictures it, it is often not a pretty business. It seems a profession of big egos, petty jealousies and much backbiting — a cutthroat trade. And like the professional sports and entertainment fields with which it is closely related, it tends to overestimate its worth. But this is understandable in a society that tends to quibble over the pay of its garbage haulers, policemen, teachers and others without whom it could not function, while supporting the sometimes outlandish salaries sports and show business pay their stars without whom society could get along easily, if less pleasantly.

Barber, himself, emerges as a somewhat difficult character, stubborn, suspicious, inclined to feel and resent all slights, sometimes needlessly quarrelsome, not so much with his broadcasting colleagues as with network, team and agency officials. But he also emerges as a proud man with principles, dedicated to his trade and possessing the competency of the true professional.

On second thought, after reviewing our impressions of the book, perhaps the "Old Redhead" has written in "The Broadcasters" a history more provocative than we at first realized. If not all our expectations were met, there were also values in the book we had not anticipated.

RED BARBER draws upon his 40 years of experience in radio and television covering sports in writing "The Broadcasters." It is his fourth book.

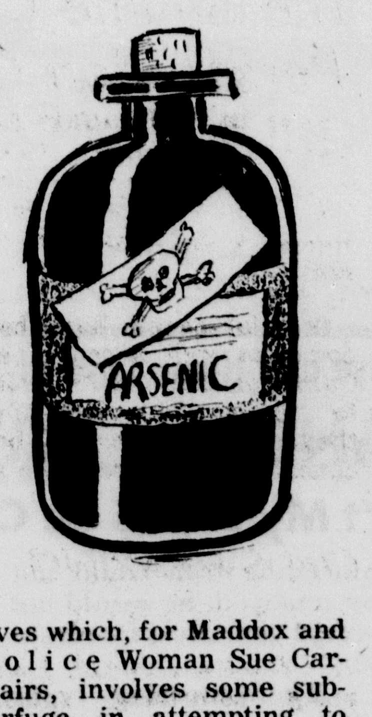
PRACTICE TO DECEIVE by Elizabeth Linington; Harper & Row, 212 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Elizabeth Linington stands alone as America's sole challenger to John Creasey-J. J. Marric as a writer of the police procedural novel.

If Miss Linington is not yet the English master's peer in incorporating deduction and mystery into her plots, she is his equal in creating interesting, believable characters and in picturing the day-to-day workings of modern police.

In "Practice to Deceive," Sgt. Ivor Maddix and his colleagues of Los Angeles' Wilcox Street Precinct are caught up in a welter of warm weather crimes including a compulsive rapist who finally kills, a dismembered and unidentified body, a locked door mystery and a murdered member of the force. They cope with the crime wave realistically, all the while going about the business of their daily lives which, for Maddox and Police Woman Sue Carstairs, involves some subterfuge in attempting to work out coinciding vacation dates so they can tie the nuptial knot.

It is another neatly-told triumph for Miss Linington and for the men and women of the Wilcox Street station who have become old friends.



UNIVERSITY of California Press has published "Flowers of Point Reyes National Seashore," $2.65 paperback, by Roxana Ferris, curator emeritus of the Dudley Herbarium at Stanford University and authority on the flora of the Bay Region.

It is a book for those visiting the Point Reyes Peninsula to enable them to recognize at least some of the thousands of different plant species that flourish in its diversified 53,000 acres.

Dr. Ferris' descriptions of 181 representative species are accompanied by drawings by Jeanne R. Janish. While there is no color, there is an index listing the plants by color groups.

"From Buttercup Family to Orchid Family" is the first chapter title, and from there Dr. Ferris introduces you to the likes of Hairy Cat's Ear, Slim Solomon's Seal, Wake Robin and Baby Blue Eyes.

A most worthwhile endeavor, and a most useful helpmate for the hiker with an eye for wildflowers.

Jazz, Soul And 'Pop' Albums From The Family Of Liberty Labels

By JOHN SUNIER

Continuing our quick run through recent releases from the Liberty "family," these in the jazz, soul and popular veins:

"Electric Byrd" (Blue Note 84349) is one of the more arresting jazz discs I've heard in some time. Donald Byrd's speech-like trumpet style is distinctively at the heart of these impressionistic arrangements by Duke Pearson, who is heard on electric piano. Three of the four tunes were composed by Byrd.

Try the cool Ellington-ish "Estavanico" for a starter, then settle back and float with this expressive, sensitive musical wizardry.

MARIN'S OWN George Duke has his album in "Save the Country" (Liberty 11004).

With a scholarly background gained at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, pianist Duke has climbed fast in the jazz world. Joined by an eight-man group, he bases his improvisations on songs of Laura Nyro, Judy Collins, Joe South and Lennon-McCartney.

Another pianist, McCoy Tyner, is featured in an LP entitled, "Expansions" (Blue Note 84338). Tyner who spent much time with the late John Coltrane's group.

The sextet heard with Tyner is unusual in including a cello played by Ron Carter. There is a Japanese-flavored duet for wood flute and clarinet in "Song of Happiness," and "I Thought I'd Let You Know" is a melodic ballad with the cello coming to the fore.

"SOUL SYMPHONY — A New Sound from The Three Sounds" (Blue Note 84341) is another effort at a fusion of jazz and the classics, which has been going on since the early 1920s.

The work of composer Monk Higgins, the piano-bass-drums group known as The Three Sounds, and the Hollywood studio orchestra with stars like Buddy Collette on woodwinds and Fred Robinson on guitar is no " Rhapsody in Blue," but if viewed as modest, swinging jazz with orchestral backing, it is very enjoyable listening.

After the 26-minute Symphony, flip side of the LP is devoted to four trio performances, all originals.

HERE ARE FOUR more entries in the "Best of. . ." sweepstakes. All are super for the collector on a budget. (I'll just list the album and one or two of the many top hits you'll find therein):

"The Best of Horace Silver" (Blue Note 84325) — "Doodlin'," "Sister Sadie." "The Best of The Gerald Wilson Orchestra" (World Pacific Jazz 20174) — "Blues For Yna Yna," "Viva Tirado." "The Best of the Jazz Crusaders" (World Pacific Jazz 20175) — "Tough Talk," "The Young Rabbits." "The Best of Buddy Rich" (World Pacific Jazz 20169) — "Channel 1 Suite," "West Side Story Medley."

The Imperial label has issued a big series which they call the Legendary Masters Series. These are re-issues of early blues, rock, gospel and so on.

TWO ESPECIALLY interested me: "Volume I, Gospel Music, The Soul Stirrers" (Imperial LM-94007), a black gospel quartet (called that though actually consisting of seven singers) of the late 1940s who balance traditional spirituals in a swinging style with secular songs of historical interest. "Why I Like Roosevelt" and "Pearl Harbor" are simply fascinating. "Volume 3, Rural Blues, Down Home Stomp" (Imperial LM-94006) is a reissue of blues from the late '40s and early '50s by Papa Lightfoot, Roosevelt Sykes, Little Son Jackson and others whose primitive styles were largely untouched by outside influences. These singers have a gutsy honesty that really comes across.

In the field of humor on LP, not much has happened lately. But a wonderfully humane, nutty voice from the past has been preserved on World Pacific 21889, "Bad Rapping of the Marquis De Sade," featuring Lord Buckley.

These tapes were made in an Oakland bar back in 1960 and show one-time Marinite Buckley, with his hipster translations of De Sade and "The Ballad of Dan McGrew."

His plan to our friendly forces of law 'n' order, "His Majesty The Policeman," will have even policemen victims of hilarity.

FINALLY, TO music of the East, a specialty of World Pacific Records, who brought Ravi Shankar to American ears.

"T. Viswanathan, South Indian Flute" (21451) is a trippy flight of sound. The five short ragas in the album demonstrate the close alliance of South Indian instrumental music to vocal lines.

"Bagavad Gita, Song of God" (21466) is a reading by Ravi Shankar of 21 stanzas from the epic Hindu poem about Lord Krishna. Musical background is by Ashish Khan. This is an instructive and interesting exploration of the most popular of the Hindu Scriptures, dating from about 600 B.C.

The music is wonderfully right and supports the words. And I really dig that Indian accent.

"Why Can't My Dress Be Cleaned?

It can be, of course, but you'd be unhappy with the result. While your dress is cleanable the dress trim is not. All of a garment should be drycleanable if it is to be truly serviceable.

Your dress has considerable decorative trim. Your drycleaner tested this trim and discovered that it would bleed in cleaning. Since the trim could not be removed, he would not accept your dress for cleaning.

There are many types of garment decorations which will not dryclean satisfactorily. Even beads can cause trouble; some turn color in cleaning, others are coated over black porous centers that bleed in cleaning; still other beads may dissolve completely when a garment is cleaned.

Before you buy any garment with decorative trim, make certain that the trim is drycleanable, too. Getting that assurance in writing will protect you completely.

Formal Dining Room Makes A Comeback

Open Plans Give Way To Separation Trend

Open plans, combining living and dining rooms and creating flowing floor spaces, won the greatest following in the 1960s.

But today's designers are veering back toward separateness.

Openness swept in a new living and entertaining style. The formal dining room merged into the living room, other walls came down, ceilings soared, and expanses of glass brought indoors and outdoors together.

Now in the '70s preferences seem to be shifting back to room divisions, prompted in part by a growing appreciation of privacy in everyday life.

WOMEN HAVE re-discovered the virtues of an enclosed dining room, beautifully set up and unseen by guests until the dinner hour. And how nice to just close the doors on the clutter when the meal is finished.

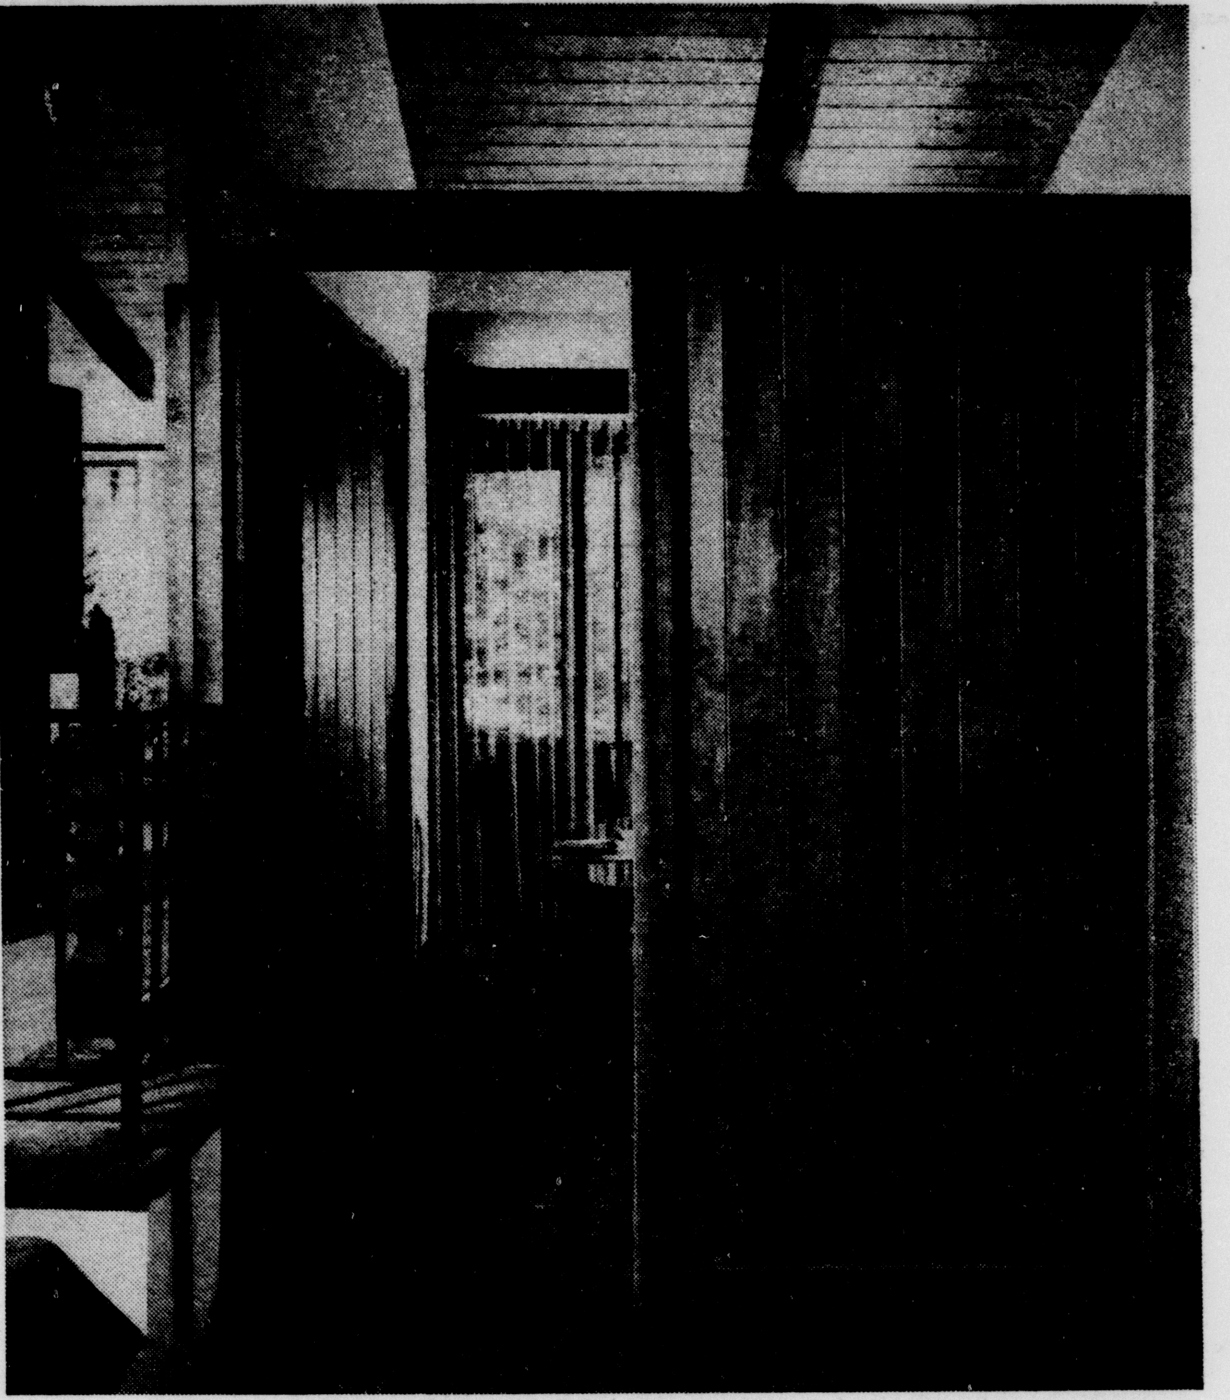
The style of a dining room should complement adjacent areas, providing a warm and gracious atmosphere for one of the most festive moments of the day.

A divider wall easily alters an open plan to achieve dining formality, yet retain spaciousness. Vaulted or pitched ceilings and a window wall lightly draped enhance this feeling.

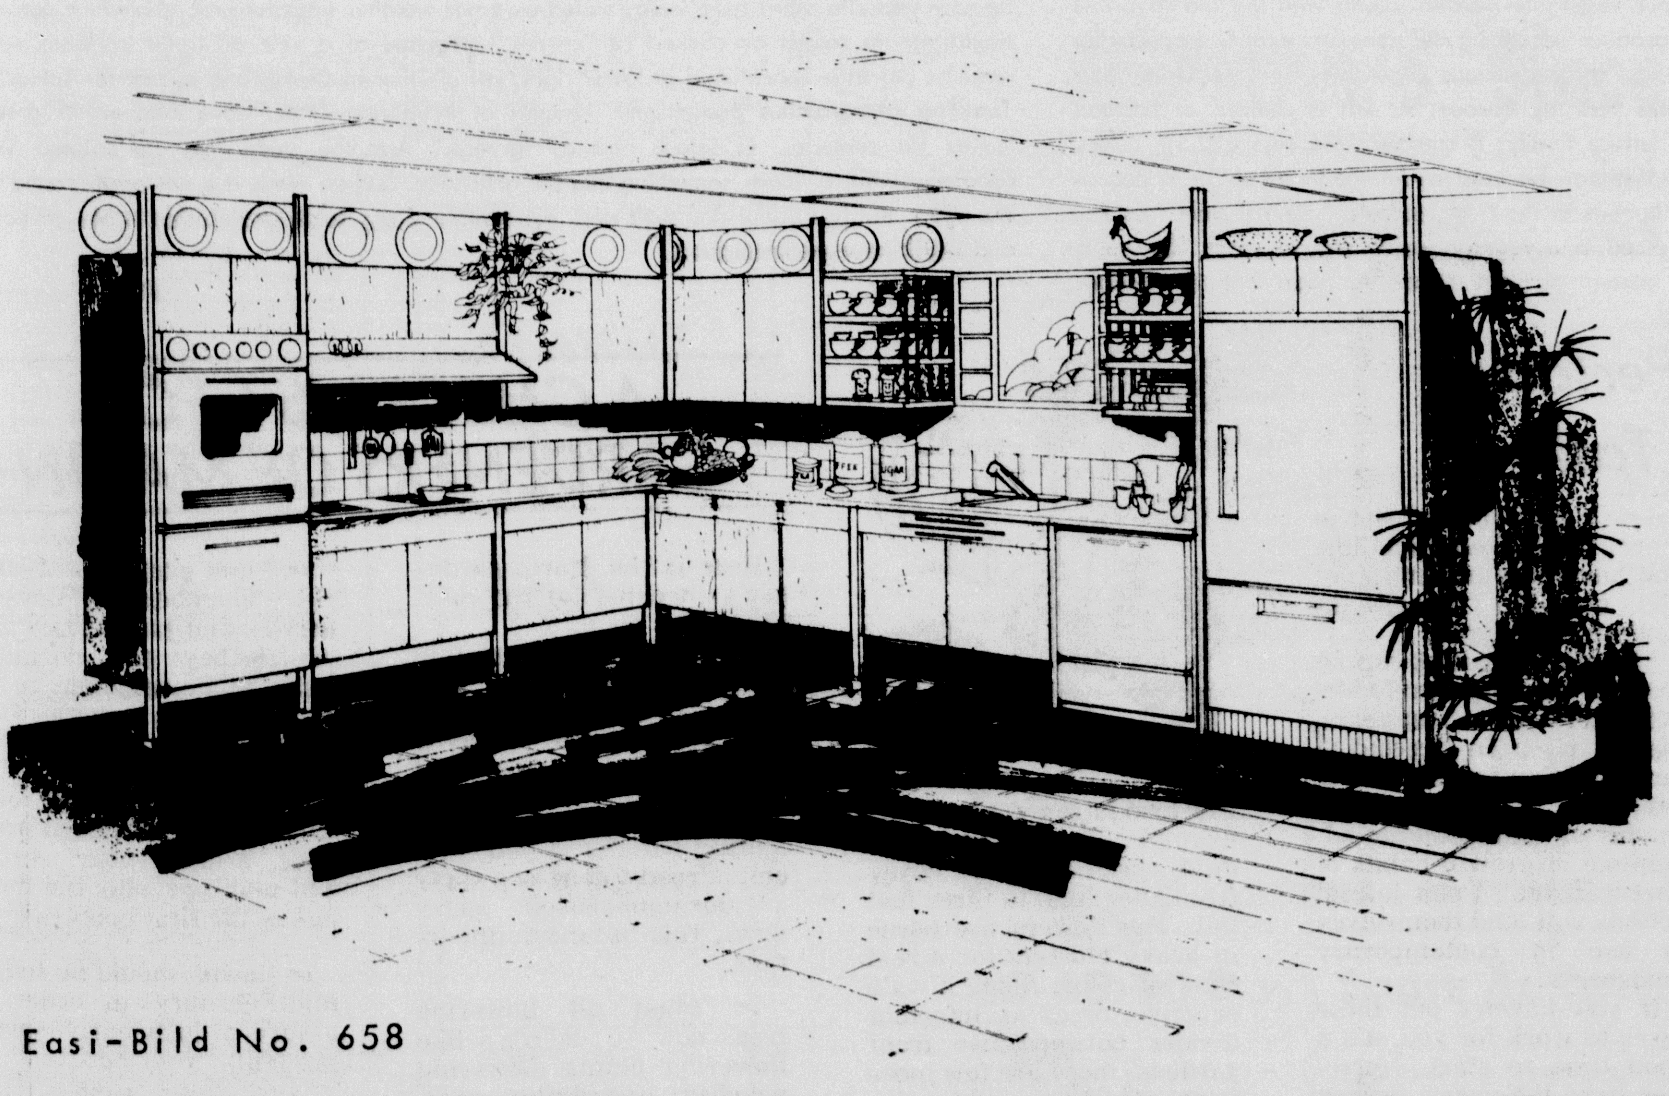
THE DIVIDER can be solid, one-by-six-inch cedar, hemlock or pine boards, with doors at one or both ends, and possibly with built-in storage for china and silver. Or consider a more open design, with shelves and display areas.

In smaller homes or apartments, where areas simply must blend together for multiple and more efficient use of space, dining room separateness still may be achieved with louvered doors or folding screens.

Wood paneling is effective in a dining room where a minimum of wood furniture is used. Wallpapered walls set off beautifully textured wood dining sets. And a mirrored wall may be used to expand the room visually.



A DIVIDER WALL with doors at each end and paneled in one-by-six-inch cedar boards sets off the dining room from the entrance area and living room in this home. A cathedral ceiling of unfinished knotty pine, two-by-12-inch beams, and a window opening onto the deck add spaciousness to what is actually a 10-by-11-foot room. The indirect lighting is in the valences. (Photo by Western Wood Prodqcts Association)



Easi-Bild No. 658

A NEW BOOK by the Easi-Bild Pattern Co. offers step-by-step instructions on how to build kitchen cabinets and contemporary furniture. More than 67 illustrations, plus easy-to-follow directions are designed to take the mystery out of kitchen modernization and to reduce the cost of cabinets and dividers by guiding you in the construction of your own. Send $1.50 to Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., and ask for Book No. 658-667 — "Kitchen Cabinets, Room Dividers and Cabinet Furniture." Include your zip code number to expedite mailing. Even if you don't decide to build your own, the book will be helpful in purchasing materials and in supervising the ones who do the work for you.

Cabinet Has Double Use If Planned

Need a desk niche in your living room or den?

A table-height cabinet can serve a dual purpose.

Build in a cabinet with raised panel doors that open to support a fold-down desk top. Plan its height to provide comfortable leg room.

When more floor space is needed, simply fold back the hinged top and close cabinet doors.

Raised panel doors are available in stock sizes and shelves are easily made of western fir or pine 12-inch boards. Finishing should generally match other woodwork in the room.

WHEN YOU PURCHASE seeds for your vegetable garden, along with the old favorites also pick up a few packages that will produce something different and exotic, suggests the W. Atlee Burpee Co. Something like these three delicious vegetables from the Orient that are being introduced to Americans this year by Burpee. At left is Celtuce or Lactuea sativa from China. A member of the lettuce family, it combines the uses of both celery and lettuce. When leaves are young, they can be used as lettuce in salads or boiled as "greens." But the real pleasure of Celtuce is in the thick, succulent central stalk that can be eaten raw like celery or cooked, diced in a vegetable side dish or soup. The young leaves have four times the vitamin C content of plain lettuce. At upper right is Malabar Spinach (Basella alba) from India, hailed as a hot weather substitute for spinach. It can be used fresh in salads or cooked as "greens." It grows as a vine on trellis or fence and requires but little space. And at lower right, yet another heat-resistant variant for spinach, Tamalpa (Amaranthus gangeticus). Peoples of India and China have enjoyed its green leaves for centuries, in salads and as "greens." And the stems may be cooked like asparagus with a flavor something like the artichoke. Burpee seeds are not easily found in our area. But just about any seed rack will contain a vegetable or two that is new to you, and worth an experimentation.

Roses Can Now Perform Wide Variety Of Tasks

There was a time when the formality of a rose discouraged its use with other flowering plants.

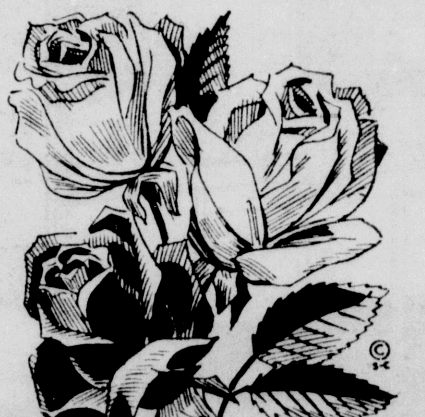
A rose was planted in a bed of fellow roses, where it complemented and was complemented by its beautiful companions.

That was yesteryear, however. Today, while the home rose gardens are still featured attractions, many roses have moved out of more formalized plantings and have become important and beautiful fixtures in modern landscapes.

The rose hybridist can be thanked for this lovely development. In recent years, his art has been directed at developing free-flowering varieties in unbelievable shades of colors, taking advantage of growth habits of parent plants so new introductions will lend themselves to use in contemporary landscapes.

If you haven't put these roses to work for you, it's a good time to start. Nurseries have the year's largest selection roses available now — in bareroot form. The roses, in their dormancy, are easily handled and transplanted into the garden.

To demonstrate the rose hybridist's achievements,



Floribunda roses are a good example. There are individual varieties which grow from knee high to three feet tall. The flowers are borne in heavy clusters for a real show of color. Along a walk or drive, or as an informal divider between two front gardens, there are few more fetching sights.

There are still the familiar specialists of the rose family, too: Pillar roses for post or trellis; climbing roses to follow a fence or eave — and aristocratic tree roses to serve as focal points.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓ Prune your roses this month. If in doubt as to how to go about it, ask your nurseryman's advice, or buy a good book of instructions.

✓ Fruit trees soon will be leafing out. So if you haven't already done so, apply a dormant-season spray now. This is most important.

✓ Plant all flowering trees now — things like flowering plums, flowering peaches, crabapples, cherries, etc. And while you are at it, take a look at the bareroot shrubs in the nurseries ready for planting in your garden.

✓ Practice snail and slug control by putting out pellets or powder regularly.

✓ Plant grapes, strawberries, blackberries, boysenberries and raspberries now while they are dormant. Ask the nurserymen to recommend the varieties best suited to our area.

✓ If fall and winter rains have created drainage problems around your shrubs and plants, repair the damage at the first opportunity.

✓ Lawns should be fed by mid-February in order to assure a lush early spring growth.

✓ Continue to plant Gladiolus bulbs periodically to assure a continuous show of their spectacular colors.

✓ After rains, stay off the lawn as much as possible until the earth has dried and hardened.

For Early Spring Color, Plant Your Annual Flowers Now

It's time now to prepare for spring, and there are no better things to plant for the seasonal transition than early-blooming annuals.

The Snapdragon family is most cooperative in providing loads of color for different areas in the landscape.

For borders, or edging plantings, there are dwarf Floral Carpet Snaps. For massed plantings, or raised beds, the intermediate-growing varieties (12 to 25 inches) — Sprite and Knee High — are ideal.

AND, WHAT garden background would be complete without the tall Rocket hybrid Snapdragons?

Plant "Snaps" in rich soil — a nurseryman's planter mix will help provide this and good drainage for the plants. Give them lots of sun.

The flowers are excellent for cutting and the scrumptions shades of pink, rose, salmon, yellow, copper and crimson will enhance your indoor decor as well as add cheer to your spring garden.

STOCKS ARE attractive annuals for garden beds and cut bouquets. The fragrant blooms come in colors ranging from white through pink shades to lavender-blue.

Tall growing, Stocks are magnificent by themselves in a planting or incorporated with other flowering plants in the garden.

One of the brightest of the spring-blooming favorites is the Calendula. Newer hybrids in radiant and intense shades of persimmon, gold, and cream are available, along with familiar orange and lemon hues.

USE CALENDULAS in borders, massed display beds, pots and window boxes. You may find container-grown plants already in bloom.

No spring garden would be complete without borders or massed plantings of Fairy Primroses. Tiny pink, rose, lavender and white blooms adorn handsome soft green foliage and the freshness of this combination is a seasonal delight. These will do best in a partially shaded area.

English Primroses — a perennial — are also a must, hence their mention here. The bright flowers have no peer in providing abundant beauty.

PANSIES AND Violas are gay brightener-uppers for an early spring garden. They provide a riot of color in borders and edging plantings. For cheery accents, tuck-in Pansies and Violas throughout the garden, in front of other annuals or landscape shrubs. They are great with bulbs and in window boxes, too.

THE SNAPDRAGON family is among the many early-blooming annuals that can be planted in your garden now to assure you of a colorful spring garden. The "Snaps" range from tiny dwarfs to tall-growing hybrids, with the intermediates, 12 to 25 inches, in between. The variety seen here, the Sprite, falls into that category. Snapdragons are excellent for borders, as edgings and as massed plantings.

A Good Time To Plant Trio Of Garden Favorites

The start of a New Year is a good time to select and plant Azaleas, Camellias and Rhododendrons.

Nurseries have their largest selection of this trio of favorites at this time. Plus, earlier-blooming varieties are showing color, and others are chockful of buds which will unfold their beauty for you to enjoy in the coming weeks.

Planting is fairly simple, with the most important factor being to make sure you provide good drainage for the plants.

The basic soil and water requirements are similar for both Azaleas and Rhododendrons. Both require an acid soil that drains well and at the same time retains moisture. This is easy to provide: Use a planter mix rich in organic matter (such things as pre-moistured peat moss, ground bark, sawdust or leaf mold).

Plant Azaleas and Rhododendrons at or slightly above the soil level. Both are surface rooters and also would appreciate a covering layer of mulch.

Hedges That Bloom Are Popular With Calfornians

There are those who think of hedges only as clipped and formal.

Certainly, in the correct setting, a formal hedge is a handsome fixture. However, while contemporary architecture finds no trend towards formal design, still home owners continue to incorporate hedges in their landscapes.

This is especially true in California, where the emphasis is on outdoor living — and both home and garden are aimed at this end.

INFORMAL HEDGES are the order of the day, and in recent years gardeners in California have planted flowering hedges — gaining the benefits of lovely colors of the blooming specimens, as well as a functional addition to the garden.

Where a privacy screen is needed, for instance, large-growing Oleanders — in bright red, pink and white — fill the bill. As does the sturdy red-blooming Bottle Brush.

Where winter frost is not a threat, Hibiscus, in a wide range of colors is a beautiful choice, too.

AT THE FAR reaches of the property, where a low hedge planting is desired, the carefree Rockroses are a natural. The flowers come in shades of pink and rose or in white.

Too, the newer Juniper varieties are worth looking at for difficult hard-to-water garden spots. Varieties with blue or gray foliages are a lovely sight from afar — or up close. There's a height for any situation.

The India Hawthorne (Raphiolepis) is a popular flowering choice — for hedges or individual planting. Low-to-medium growers, they bloom in shades of pink and red and are to be found throughout the state.

VERONICA, WITH lilac-like blooms, are modest growers; the foliage texture and color make this an ideal hedge choice where lower-growing plants are required.

Camellias make a pleasing hedge and are among the best for shadier places.

Rose Marie Keeps Busy To Ease Pangs Of Widowhood

By VERNON SCOTT

Rose Marie, widowed six years, shares a roomy San Fernando Valley home with her daughter, Georgiana, 23, and works steadily in two television shows.

Her busy schedule is more than economic.

Rose Marie's relationship with her late husband, musician Bobby Guy, was so close that she still has not adjusted to his death.

"We were a little too close," she says. "When I lost Bobby I lost half my own life."

TO COMPENSATE for the long, lonely hours at home Rose Marie co-stars in "The Doris Day Show" and doubles as a semi-regular on "The Hollywood Squares."

Her work occupies Rose Marie five days a week, often keeping her at the studio until 7 p.m. or later. But she usually returns home in time to fix dinner for Georgiana whom she calls "Noopy."

Rose Marie is proudest of Georgiana's accomplishments as an equestrienne.

THE HOUSE IS filled with ribbons, trophies and silver plates won by Georgiana in shows. She has five horses of her own and trains them at a suburban stable.

Weekends Rose Marie catches up on mail, does some shopping and cleans house although a cleaning woman comes in once a week.

Much of the wardrobe she wears on television is from her own closets which bulge with dresses and suits that reach the knee and are as tailored as she can find.

CAST AND CREW members of both her television shows are frequent dinner guests.

Rose Marie doesn't care for informality when she entertains. Most often she invites a dozen guests to a sit-down nine-course dinner served formally.

"I never invite more than 12," she says, "because that's as many as I can serve at the table."

HER GUESTS ARE treated to her unusual dinnerware. She collects China.

She has five services of 12 and different services for eight. There are special dishes for Valentine parties, Christmas feasts, Thanksgiving dinners and the like. Included in her collection are special dishes shaped as cabbage leaves for cabbage delicacies and plates in the shape of asparagus.

THEY LEND A festive touch to Rose Marie's parties.

The actress-comedienne believes anything she can do to make her home a merry place diminishes the pangs of widowhood.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

The role of Dick Van Dyke's wife in his new CBS series next September will be filled by Hope Lange, who has appeared in numerous movies and won two Emmys as the star of video's "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir" series. Van Dyke plays the host of a television variety show in Phoenix, Ariz. Other players are Marty Brill as Van Dyke's manager and Fannie Flagg as his sister.

You can stop worrying about the "Lassie" series that CBS has been telecasting for 17 years. The Jack Wrather firm, which "owns" the collie, has a new three-year agreement with the show's long-time sponsor that extends to September, 1974.

NBC has scheduled a repeat of "It Couldn't Be Done" for Feb. 9. The special celebrates unusual accomplishments by Americans and was telecast originally last April. The network has slated a Feb. 20 repeat for "The Pogo Special Birthday Special." This is the animated musical based on Walt Kelly's newspaper comic strip.

MEN AND MOUNTS on the mountain trail to the tiny kingdom of Nagar is just one of the scenes in the Russ Potter color movie "High Himalaya," to be shown by the film-maker Monday at 8:15 p.m. in the San Rafael High School auditorium as part of the Explorerama Series. The picture was made in West Pakistan, Gilgit, Hanza and Nagar and includes such other scenes as the bazaars of the legendary city of Peshawar, pagan rituals in the Valley of the Kafirs, the long-living Hunzakuts at work and play, sword dancers, fakirs and the use of a mind-expanding drug to produce a clairvoyant trance.
